Millions of people are brushing teeth in a new way. If you don't know the good results, make this free test.

Fight dingy film

One object is to fight the film on teeth - that scous film you feel. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays. Food stains, etc., discolor it, then it forms dingy coats. Tartar is based on film. No ordinary tooth paste effectively combats alm. So, under old methods, beautiful teeth were seen less often than today.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acids. It holds the acids in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of

Very few people escaped such troubles under old

New ways found Then dental science found two film combatants. One acts to curdle film, one to remove it, and without any harmful scouring.

Able authorities proved these methods effective. Then dentists everywhere began to advise their use. A new-type tooth paste was created, based on modern research. The name is Pepsodent. In that tooth paste are embodied those two great film

Five effects

But Pepsodent brings five effects. These are very important. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is there to constantly neutralize the acids which cause decay. It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits on teeth which may otherwise ferment and form acids.

Those are Nature's ever-present tooth-protecting agents. Every use of Pepsodent gives them mani-Pepsodent also polishes the teeth so film adheres less readily.

You see them now nearly the world over

These glistening teeth are now seen nearly the world over. Careful people of some fifty nations are now using Pepsodent. And those whiter teeth mean safer teeth. They mean a new dental era.

delightful concert has been arranged for the evening commensing at 8.15. "Dressing" the Princess.

Queen Mary has decidedly "quiet" taste in clothes, and has always had strong opinions as to how the Princess Mary should be dressed. While in her earlier years the eldest daughter of the King and Queen was always "sensibly" attired-an expression used by Her Majesty-when she grew up to young womanhood it was noticeable that the prevailing fashions were very faintly followed.

Sale of Work.

On the subject of the mode for short skirts, the Queen is most emphatic, and indeed on occasions severe comments have been passed upon leaders of very extreme fashion. Queen Alexandra, on the other hand, has always been far more interested in dress than the King's Consort. It may be recalled that she won an "astounding victory," when on Diamond Jubilee Day Queen Victoria's delighted subjects noted that the aged Sovereign had discarded the gloomy bonnet still reminiscent of bereavement, and had blossomed forth in one of the lightest hues.

The story is told that, the night before the auspicious day, the Princess of Wales (as Queen Mexandra then was) tactfully broached the question of a more becoming head-gear. There was, of course, determined opposition with much questioning as to how 'dear Albert" would have regarded innovation. Finally consent "for a slight alteration" was given, and then the gay bonnet was produced. It remains to be said that, late that night, the famous black bonnet with its wealth of funeral trappings was consigned to oblivion. Another "crisis" of this description arose in the early womanhood of the Princess Mary, when fashion took a decided change. There was a difference of opinion as to whether the Princess should reflect the prevailing find it. fashions to some extent. The Queen was decidedly adverse. A tactful series of suggestions by the Queen-Mother, who is admittedly the authority upon dress in the Royal circles, resulted in a new "dresser" assisting the Princess's personal attendents. The result was undeniably striking, and caused much comment mong the myriad admirers of the Princess. The Queen disagreed with her august Mother-in-law, but she ad-
