THOUGHTS ON CLOTHES CLOSETS.

While we were rambling about the outskirts of a little town where I was visiting recently, we came to a tumble down brick building which my companion told me had once been an Inn.

It was utterly deserted now, the steps sagged, the door swung open, one caught glimpses of barren rooms with paper peeling from the walls. The sight of a fine old fireplace lured me within and presently we were exploring the old ruin, treading gingerly on wavering floors, taking our careful way around an old mattress which had evidently been the couch of some tramp, regretting that the several fine old fireplaces should not be transplantable, enjoying the view from the vine shadowed windows, telling each other which room we would choose (you see we have never gotten over that childish habit "choose").

Only One Closet.
In the last room into which I went was a door leading I thought into another room. I opened it and behold a closet. Perhaps I should call it a clesette since it was not more than most as many changes for the male children.

Our Best Clothes.
The people of that day had their every day outfit which they wore every day, and then they had Sunday clothes and possibly a besty best. These were hung up in state in the big closet in the spare room. Even in my own earlier days I remember that big closet, though we did have several others. I can remember what a halo its remoteness threw over the dresses which were considered grand enough to be hung there. I still have at intervals a dream in which I go to that closet and find there some beautiful dress which belongs to me.

To-day the spare room has become the guest chamber with its closet theoretically kept vacant for the guest (I say theoretically for even in these days besty best things of the family occasionally find their way to its vastness). And every room has its closet and every member of the household has plenty of things to put in that closet and usually an overflow. I wonder if we are as much happier as you would think we'd be?

WISDOM.
(By Bat.)
There was a man in our town. And he was very wise. He had some things he did not want. So he thought he'd advertise. The things he did not want, he sold. The prospects came, indeed. And now he has the cash to buy such things as he may need.

Salvage Notes.

We were apprised last week that diphtheria had made its appearance at Sandy Cove, Happy Adventure, and since then three new cases have been reported. We understand all the patients are doing well.

Since our last notes Rev. and Mrs. Humphries have been to Alexander Bay, where they spent a most enjoyable time, their only regret being that duties and uncertainty of winter weather made their stay shorter than they would have liked.

Mr. Ruthcrest, travelling salesman, was here for a week and made temporary headquarters at Back Side, Bishop's Harbour. He left yesterday and we understand is bound to St. John's to replenish stock.

We regret to hear that Mrs. Stead, widow of the late Thomas Stead, has to go to the General Hospital for treatment. We wish her a speedy recovery of her malady.

A young man by the name of Butt, formerly of Flat Island, but now residing at Alexander Bay, met with a very painful accident on Tuesday. It appears that he was making a slide when a nail hit him in the eye, which necessitated his coming to Salvage. Dr. MacDonald immediately ordered him to General Hospital, but it is not known whether the sight of the eye is irreparably gone or not.

Tuesday night, Shrove Tuesday, was a busy one. Parties were the cry of the night and everyone was intent looking for the buttery, and hiding them "20 at a time" before 12 o'clock ushered in the Church's season of fasting. Ash Wednesday, however, did not prevent the varicoloured and doggerel valentine from making its appearance and many a jest and laugh kept alive the old familiar custom.

The woodsmen are working hard these days taking advantage of the splendid spell of weather. It has been very frosty, but exceptionally fine for woodwork and in Newman's Sound may be seen "bulked" evidence of the wood rangers' play with the axe.

We understand that 36 signatures from Salvage and Bishop's Harbour appeared on the U.F.U. resolutions. Well played—COR.

A Country on The Move!

Some parts of the world are changing their positions! Perhaps the most interesting case is that of Greenland. Two Danish scientists have been investigating, and their results show that the country is moving to the west at the rate of about twenty yards a year. Two other observations, one taken in 1870 and the other in 1907, showed a difference of roughly 1,310 yards. Another portion of the globe which is altering its position is the North Pole. Owing to the small area of the pole—it is about the size of a tennis court—observation is difficult, but two observations have reported that it is moving slowly to the north. It is also stated that the coast of Labrador is rising from the sea. Many authorities declare that both the poles are moving, and that this alteration to the world's axis will mean in time that regions which are now frozen will become warm and habitable.

Norma Talmadge's Finest Picture

SEEN AT THE NICKEL THEATRE LAST NIGHT.

Norma Talmadge has done many fine things in the line of screen entertainments, but we doubt if anything ever done before will be quite as generally liked as "The Wonderful Thing," her latest production, which opened an engagement at the Nickel Theatre yesterday. Miss Talmadge has a role which gives her opportunity for exhibiting a decided talent for comedy, an accomplishment which is generally supposed to have gone entirely to her sister Constance, at least as far as the Talmadge family is concerned. In addition, the story does not deprive the audience at the theatre of seeing Miss Talmadge do some of the emotional acting which has made her so popular.

"The Wonderful Thing" is really good entertainment. The wonderful thing about it is the wonderful way in which excellent comedy has been mixed in with drama and pathos. The entire cast is fine, and naturally, Harrison Ford carries away the honors that go to the male characters. Howard Truesdale, however, is admirable as the self-made American Hog King, and others in the cast who give good account of themselves are Robert Agnew, Ethel Fleming, Mabel Bert, Fanny Burke, Walter McEwen and Charles Craig.

Satanic Geography.

No person, either historical or legendary, has more places named after him than the Devil. The famous explorer, Captain Amundsen, added to the list during his last expedition. He gave us "The Devil's Glacier" and "The Devil's Dancing Room." In Dorset one finds the "Devil's Bellows," near Lyme Regis. The name was given because of the fury of the wind as it sweeps through the passage. Near Scotland is the "Devil's Nightcap," a block of sandstone shaped like a cone and placed on top of a hill.

Government Too Costly.

Wherever the fault lies, the fact is potent, our National Government is costing too much. At its highest, during the peak of the war period, we expended about $450,000,000 per annum. To-day our annual expenditure amounts to about $400,000,000, and a deficit for the calendar year 1922 seems inevitable. Perchance our system of collecting the various taxes levied is defective and is costing too much. Perhaps there are too many people on our national payroll. Whatever the leaks are they should be stopped, so that taxation can be brought within reasonable limits. Already the United States has been able to slice down their annual expenditure by something like forty per cent. from the peak, and taxation has come down in proportion. Sir Frederick William-Taylor of the Bank of Montreal referred to this state of affairs recently, remarking that Canada could not hope to make headway, nationally, while the cost of living and taxation remained upon a higher scale than that of our neighbors. And unfortunately Sir Frederick is right—Saturday Night, Toronto. (And unfortunately also, the same thing applies to Newfoundland. Telegram.)

Fifteen Bob.

His lordship had engaged a new butler, and a week later the man had to announce the guests at a ball. "Mr. N. Jimjams, Mrs. Jimjams, and Miss Jimjams!" called out the butler. This got on his lordship's nerves. "James," he said, "pray be more brief when you announce the next arrivals." The next people to arrive on the scene were Mr. Crown, Mrs. Crown and Master Crown. The butler waved his hand to indicate which direction they should take, at the same time calling out: "Fifteen bob."
