

British Grenadier Guards Refuse to Parade.

A Number of the Older Heads Placed Under Arrest—Causes of the Trouble.

LONDON, April 21.—For some years past there has been a feeling of growing discontent in some portions of the British army. This feeling, it was supposed, came to a head about a year ago, when the Second Battalion of the Grenadier Guards, quartered near Buckingham Palace, practically broke out into open mutiny and was exiled to Bermuda. It was supposed that the authorities would take steps to remedy the evils complained of. This does not seem to have been the case, for this morning there is renewed and great excitement in military circles caused by a mutiny in the Grenadier Guards. The Second Battalion of Grenadier Guards is to be sent to Bermuda in disgrace, and again it is the Grenadier Guards who are in revolt. The Third Battalion of the Grenadier Guards quartered at Chelsea barracks, were ordered to parade in full marching order at 8 o'clock this morning. The men, who have been in a sullen frame of mind for some time, refused to obey this order. The officers of the battalion thereupon held a hurried consultation, and the leading non-commissioned officers were communicated with. The latter attempted to reason with the mutineers and to persuade them to parade, and after a long period of waiting four companies started slowly and with every mark of outward discontent out upon the parade ground. The remaining companies, however, refused to leave their rooms in the barracks. After the officials of the War Office had been informed of the occurrence the oldest members of the more discontented portion of the battalion were placed under arrest and an investigation into the cause of the mutiny was commenced. The discontent has been growing for a long time. The mutineers offer as a justification that the order for the companies to parade in full marching order is an unprecedented step for their commanding officer to take upon a day when the battalion is called upon to mount guard at the palace on the same day. The men also declare they have been long subjected to a series of excessive and annoying drills, for which there is no excuse or reason. They assert these alleged excessive drills were not ordered with the view of perfecting the battalion in military maneuvers or the manual of arms, but solely for the convenience of their officers, who are thus enabled to leave London to enjoy themselves while the privates and non-commissioned officers remain in London and are subjected to long and tedious drills under command of the few less lucky or poorer officers.

PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND.

Resignation of the Conservative Administration.

HALIFAX, N. S., April 21.—The Local Government of Prince Edward Island has resigned, but the Lieutenant-Governor declines a dissolution on the advice of Premier Yeo, and sent for Frederick Peters, one of the Liberal members, for a consultation. Mr. Peters has called a meeting of Liberal members of both Houses of the Legislature to discuss the situation.

Saved the "Fool-Killer" a Job.

SPRING VALLEY, Minn., April 21.—John Wright yesterday bet $1 that he could run across the Milwaukee bridge in advance of an approaching train, but the train overtook him and he was killed.

A Syndicate to Boom Mrs. Langtry.

LONDON, April 21.—Lord Alington undertakes to float Mrs. Langtry on the coming season. For a long time he has been a six-sided society man, who can do anything he likes. Associated with him are the theatrical season. Every body who is to be provided—there, conch, machinery and decorations. The entire business of the season will be run by this combination. Although Mrs. Langtry has made ample money, she is living in her good looks and fine spirits and has high hopes for the future. Her admirers are more numerous and she is more devoted than ever. Under the new arrangement that has been made for her the Lily has earned the sobriquet of "Lady of the Syndicate."

A London Sensation.

LONDON, April 21.—The verdict for the defendant in the case of Gladys Evelyn against Harburt was rather a surprise. The finish of Justice Cave's charge bore heavily against the plaintiff, though at times it must have made Harburt wince. Mrs. Harburt was in court and created a sensation. The court said and created a thing of Harburt's counsel, intimating they let his interests almost go by the board. While Justice Cave was charging the jury Mrs. Harburt burst became very much excited, and exclaimed that the statements referred to by him were a pack of lies, and she did not believe them. Justice Cave stopped, the jury was led out of court, accompanied by Mr. Beckett, member of Parliament, an intimate friend of the family. The jury was out 90 minutes. The jury evidently did not believe Harburt had promised the woman marriage, but they evidently were not so sure that he had not been on intimate terms with her.

Every tissue of the body, every bone, muscle and organ, is made stronger and more healthy by the use of Hood's Sarsaparilla.

CANADIAN.

The Young Liberals of Toronto hold their annual banquet to-night.

The Dominion Line has discontinued insuring cattle carried by its boats.

The Canadian Pacific Railway has begun to rebuild the Montreal shops burned down Monday morning.

Rev. Dr. S. Small—otherwise "Sam Small"—is to preach and lecture in Toronto shortly, and will be there two weeks.

Editor Mangar, of the Orangeville Post, charged with criminal libel, preferred Tuesday committed for trial.

Rev. Charles Tully has resigned from the pastorate of Bartholomew Church, Montreal, to enter the Anglican Church.

He has accepted the incumbency of Christ Church, West Kensington, London.

The prohibitionists of West Bruce have buckled on their armor for another campaign, and propose wiping out the liquor traffic in as many municipalities as possible.

Temperance sentiment in West Bruce is strong.

Hon. Edward Blake, G. T. Blackstock, Wm. Dawson and A. T. Grier have arrived at Winnipeg en route to the mountain section of the C. P. R. to take part in the arbitration between the company and the Government.

The Banff Springs (N. W. T.) hotel was opened Tuesday for the season of 1891.

The first arrivals were Lieut. Leo Weeks, the Arctic explorer, Mrs. Schwartz, of Chicago, and Dr. Seward, of New York.

At a meeting of the Toronto Defense League at Dublin, Mr. Redmond stated that a continuance of the plan of campaign for the fund now held in the hands of the fund-raising committee was necessary.

The mutiny of the Third Battalion of Grenadier Guards appears to have been a premeditated affair. It is announced that the mutiny was planned by a detachment of Grenadier Guards quartered at St. George's barracks, and that the mutineers were placed under arrest.

At the meeting of the Ministerial Association yesterday Rev. J. G. Bishop read a paper on "Church Entertainments," in which he denounced the most forms of such amusements, claiming that they cultivated a taste for theaters and worldly amusements generally. The discussion was generally supported. Mr. Bishop's argument was that the church should be a place of refuge from the world, and not a place of worldly amusements.

Phillips and W. H. Cline: "Resolved, that this association hereby expresses its disapproval of the action of the local newspaper in instituting a popular preacher contest."

Revs. John Burton and G. M. Milligan dissented, claiming the matter was beneath their notice and should be treated with contempt.

The Young Women's Christian Guild is suing the Young Women's Christian Association for $10,000 left by the late Mr. Fitzgerald for the purpose of erecting a building for the Young Women's Christian Association.

Blake, C. C. W. T. Atkins, M. D., H. Howland and John Harris, trustees of the Young Women's Christian Guild. Mrs. Harris is president of the Guild. Both Blake and Harris are organized since the death of Mr. Goodenough, and the executor and the beneficiaries are uncertain as to whom they should pay the bequest, of which $6,000 has been paid into court.

St. John's, Nfld., April 21.—On Saturday 600 Newfoundlanders in 70 schooners assembled at Fortunate Bay, determined to haul herring and sail to Frenchman's Bay. A bait cruiser interfered and the fishermen resisted. Officer Olinpath, of the cutter, shot and injured the fishermen. The Government has dispatched the steamer Lady Glover and Favorite to the scene of the disturbance. Some arrests have been made.

The Local Option Law Defective.

TORONTO, April 21.—At Osgoode Hall yesterday, in the case re Jeffries and village of London West, E. C. Cameron (London) moved to quash a local option by-law of the village of W. W. Fitzgerald (London) showed cause. Order to quash by-law with costs. The learned chief justice gave judgment quashing the law. He has other cases similar to this under consideration, and will give his written judgment and reasons therefor in those cases during the present week.

Str. Knights and Companions Meet.

Last evening Conclave No. 2, K. S. F., paid a fraternal visit to Pride of the East Circle. Besides the six knights, a large number of friends of the companions were present. A programme was provided, consisting of songs, readings and recitations, in which the following ladies and gentlemen took part: Misses Phoenix, Mrs. Gibling and Miss Skinner, Messrs. Hogg, J. Brown, F. Skinner, F. Westlake, F. W. Findlater, Albert Seijohn and Geo. Watts. At the conclusion the entertainment Chief Comp. Mrs. May called upon the energetic committee which had charge of the arrangements to serve refreshments.

W. Richards setting forth the aims and objects of the Companions of the Forest, and expressing a wish that Conclave No. 2 would soon call again. Supreme Commander W. T. Duffapack on behalf of the Supreme Conclave of Canada, while Sir Knight Commander Frank Plant thanked the members of Pride of the East Circle for the cordial reception they had given to the knights. The committee which had charge of the affair deserve great credit for the able manner in which they conducted things generally. Pride of the East is the most flourishing circle in the city.

At this season of the year Centenarians should be used for chopped hands, face and lips. This is a lot of superior excellence, put up in 25-cent bottles and sold on a guarantee at Synod's Drug Store, 184 Dundas street west.

New Wall Papers.

Embroidered papers, borders to match, ingrain, glimmers, window shades, relief curtain poles, room mouldings, all the latest designs, at prices that cannot be beaten. Geo. Braden, 208 Dundas street west.

The Toronto "Mail's" Voting Scheme Severely Criticized.

Brantford Ladies College Flourishing—Uniform Posture During Public Prayer Desirable—Other Business.

Tuesday Morning Session.

The Synod was commenced promptly at 10 o'clock in the morning for business. One of the first things that claimed the attention of the members was the voting scheme of the Toronto Mail respecting the popularity of the ministers.

Rev. G. Munro was the only member who he took no notice of it at all. It would be a fatal mistake if that motion was seconded. We cannot prevent a dog from barking at our heels. The way to treat the matter would be to stick our minute in the stove when you receive it. Stick it in the stove, but never in our literature would be a sad thing if that motion receives a second.

Rev. W. S. Ball was the first to secure the motion. Mr. Munro finished speaking. "I am sure that we feel with the previous speaker," he said, "but the best way to bury the matter out of sight would be to take no notice of it at all. It would be a fatal mistake if that motion was seconded. We cannot prevent a dog from barking at our heels. The way to treat the matter would be to stick our minute in the stove when you receive it. Stick it in the stove, but never in our literature would be a sad thing if that motion receives a second."

Rev. W. S. Ball was the first to secure the motion. Mr. Munro finished speaking. "I am sure that we feel with the previous speaker," he said, "but the best way to bury the matter out of sight would be to take no notice of it at all. It would be a fatal mistake if that motion was seconded. We cannot prevent a dog from barking at our heels. The way to treat the matter would be to stick our minute in the stove when you receive it. Stick it in the stove, but never in our literature would be a sad thing if that motion receives a second."

Rev. W. S. Ball was the first to secure the motion. Mr. Munro finished speaking. "I am sure that we feel with the previous speaker," he said, "but the best way to bury the matter out of sight would be to take no notice of it at all. It would be a fatal mistake if that motion was seconded. We cannot prevent a dog from barking at our heels. The way to treat the matter would be to stick our minute in the stove when you receive it. Stick it in the stove, but never in our literature would be a sad thing if that motion receives a second."

Rev. W. S. Ball was the first to secure the motion. Mr. Munro finished speaking. "I am sure that we feel with the previous speaker," he said, "but the best way to bury the matter out of sight would be to take no notice of it at all. It would be a fatal mistake if that motion was seconded. We cannot prevent a dog from barking at our heels. The way to treat the matter would be to stick our minute in the stove when you receive it. Stick it in the stove, but never in our literature would be a sad thing if that motion receives a second."

Rev. W. S. Ball was the first to secure the motion. Mr. Munro finished speaking. "I am sure that we feel with the previous speaker," he said, "but the best way to bury the matter out of sight would be to take no notice of it at all. It would be a fatal mistake if that motion was seconded. We cannot prevent a dog from barking at our heels. The way to treat the matter would be to stick our minute in the stove when you receive it. Stick it in the stove, but never in our literature would be a sad thing if that motion receives a second."

Rev. W. S. Ball was the first to secure the motion. Mr. Munro finished speaking. "I am sure that we feel with the previous speaker," he said, "but the best way to bury the matter out of sight would be to take no notice of it at all. It would be a fatal mistake if that motion was seconded. We cannot prevent a dog from barking at our heels. The way to treat the matter would be to stick our minute in the stove when you receive it. Stick it in the stove, but never in our literature would be a sad thing if that motion receives a second."

Rev. W. S. Ball was the first to secure the motion. Mr. Munro finished speaking. "I am sure that we feel with the previous speaker," he said, "but the best way to bury the matter out of sight would be to take no notice of it at all. It would be a fatal mistake if that motion was seconded. We cannot prevent a dog from barking at our heels. The way to treat the matter would be to stick our minute in the stove when you receive it. Stick it in the stove, but never in our literature would be a sad thing if that motion receives a second."

Rev. W. S. Ball was the first to secure the motion. Mr. Munro finished speaking. "I am sure that we feel with the previous speaker," he said, "but the best way to bury the matter out of sight would be to take no notice of it at all. It would be a fatal mistake if that motion was seconded. We cannot prevent a dog from barking at our heels. The way to treat the matter would be to stick our minute in the stove when you receive it. Stick it in the stove, but never in our literature would be a sad thing if that motion receives a second."

Rev. W. S. Ball was the first to secure the motion. Mr. Munro finished speaking. "I am sure that we feel with the previous speaker," he said, "but the best way to bury the matter out of sight would be to take no notice of it at all. It would be a fatal mistake if that motion was seconded. We cannot prevent a dog from barking at our heels. The way to treat the matter would be to stick our minute in the stove when you receive it. Stick it in the stove, but never in our literature would be a sad thing if that motion receives a second."

Rev. W. S. Ball was the first to secure the motion. Mr. Munro finished speaking. "I am sure that we feel with the previous speaker," he said, "but the best way to bury the matter out of sight would be to take no notice of it at all. It would be a fatal mistake if that motion was seconded. We cannot prevent a dog from barking at our heels. The way to treat the matter would be to stick our minute in the stove when you receive it. Stick it in the stove, but never in our literature would be a sad thing if that motion receives a second."

Rev. W. S. Ball was the first to secure the motion. Mr. Munro finished speaking. "I am sure that we feel with the previous speaker," he said, "but the best way to bury the matter out of sight would be to take no notice of it at all. It would be a fatal mistake if that motion was seconded. We cannot prevent a dog from barking at our heels. The way to treat the matter would be to stick our minute in the stove when you receive it. Stick it in the stove, but never in our literature would be a sad thing if that motion receives a second."

Rev. W. S. Ball was the first to secure the motion. Mr. Munro finished speaking. "I am sure that we feel with the previous speaker," he said, "but the best way to bury the matter out of sight would be to take no notice of it at all. It would be a fatal mistake if that motion was seconded. We cannot prevent a dog from barking at our heels. The way to treat the matter would be to stick our minute in the stove when you receive it. Stick it in the stove, but never in our literature would be a sad thing if that motion receives a second."

Rev. W. S. Ball was the first to secure the motion. Mr. Munro finished speaking. "I am sure that we feel with the previous speaker," he said, "but the best way to bury the matter out of sight would be to take no notice of it at all. It would be a fatal mistake if that motion was seconded. We cannot prevent a dog from barking at our heels. The way to treat the matter would be to stick our minute in the stove when you receive it. Stick it in the stove, but never in our literature would be a sad thing if that motion receives a second."

Rev. W. S. Ball was the first to secure the motion. Mr. Munro finished speaking. "I am sure that we feel with the previous speaker," he said, "but the best way to bury the matter out of sight would be to take no notice of it at all. It would be a fatal mistake if that motion was seconded. We cannot prevent a dog from barking at our heels. The way to treat the matter would be to stick our minute in the stove when you receive it. Stick it in the stove, but never in our literature would be a sad thing if that motion receives a second."

Rev. W. S. Ball was the first to secure the motion. Mr. Munro finished speaking. "I am sure that we feel with the previous speaker," he said, "but the best way to bury the matter out of sight would be to take no notice of it at all. It would be a fatal mistake if that motion was seconded. We cannot prevent a dog from barking at our heels. The way to treat the matter would be to stick our minute in the stove when you receive it. Stick it in the stove, but never in our literature would be a sad thing if that motion receives a second."

Rev. W. S. Ball was the first to secure the motion. Mr. Munro finished speaking. "I am sure that we feel with the previous speaker," he said, "but the best way to bury the matter out of sight would be to take no notice of it at all. It would be a fatal mistake if that motion was seconded. We cannot prevent a dog from barking at our heels. The way to treat the matter would be to stick our minute in the stove when you receive it. Stick it in the stove, but never in our literature would be a sad thing if that motion receives a second."

Rev. W. S. Ball was the first to secure the motion. Mr. Munro finished speaking. "I am sure that we feel with the previous speaker," he said, "but the best way to bury the matter out of sight would be to take no notice of it at all. It would be a fatal mistake if that motion was seconded. We cannot prevent a dog from barking at our heels. The way to treat the matter would be to stick our minute in the stove when you receive it. Stick it in the stove, but never in our literature would be a sad thing if that motion receives a second."

Rev. W. S. Ball was the first to secure the motion. Mr. Munro finished speaking. "I am sure that we feel with the previous speaker," he said, "but the best way to bury the matter out of sight would be to take no notice of it at all. It would be a fatal mistake if that motion was seconded. We cannot prevent a dog from barking at our heels. The way to treat the matter would be to stick our minute in the stove when you receive it. Stick it in the stove, but never in our literature would be a sad thing if that motion receives a second."

Rev. W. S. Ball was the first to secure the motion. Mr. Munro finished speaking. "I am sure that we feel with the previous speaker," he said, "but the best way to bury the matter out of sight would be to take no notice of it at all. It would be a fatal mistake if that motion was seconded. We cannot prevent a dog from barking at our heels. The way to treat the matter would be to stick our minute in the stove when you receive it. Stick it in the stove, but never in our literature would be a sad thing if that motion receives a second."

Rev. W. S. Ball was the first to secure the motion. Mr. Munro finished speaking. "I am sure that we feel with the previous speaker," he said, "but the best way to bury the matter out of sight would be to take no notice of it at all. It would be a fatal mistake if that motion was seconded. We cannot prevent a dog from barking at our heels. The way to treat the matter would be to stick our minute in the stove when you receive it. Stick it in the stove, but never in our literature would be a sad thing if that motion receives a second."

Rev. W. S. Ball was the first to secure the motion. Mr. Munro finished speaking. "I am sure that we feel with the previous speaker," he said, "but the best way to bury the matter out of sight would be to take no notice of it at all. It would be a fatal mistake if that motion was seconded. We cannot prevent a dog from barking at our heels. The way to treat the matter would be to stick our minute in the stove when you receive it. Stick it in the stove, but never in our literature would be a sad thing if that motion receives a second."

Rev. W. S. Ball was the first to secure the motion. Mr. Munro finished speaking. "I am sure that we feel with the previous speaker," he said, "but the best way to bury the matter out of sight would be to take no notice of it at all. It would be a fatal mistake if that motion was seconded. We cannot prevent a dog from barking at our heels. The way to treat the matter would be to stick our minute in the stove when you receive it. Stick it in the stove, but never in our literature would be a sad thing if that motion receives a second."

Rev. W. S. Ball was the first to secure the motion. Mr. Munro finished speaking. "I am sure that we feel with the previous speaker," he said, "but the best way to bury the matter out of sight would be to take no notice of it at all. It would be a fatal mistake if that motion was seconded. We cannot prevent a dog from barking at our heels. The way to treat the matter would be to stick our minute in the stove when you receive it. Stick it in the stove, but never in our literature would be a sad thing if that motion receives a second."

Rev. W. S. Ball was the first to secure the motion. Mr. Munro finished speaking. "I am sure that we feel with the previous speaker," he said, "but the best way to bury the matter out of sight would be to take no notice of it at all. It would be a fatal mistake if that motion was seconded. We cannot prevent a dog from barking at our heels. The way to treat the matter would be to stick our minute in the stove when you receive it. Stick it in the stove, but never in our literature would be a sad thing if that motion receives a second."

Rev. W. S. Ball was the first to secure the motion. Mr. Munro finished speaking. "I am sure that we feel with the previous speaker," he said, "but the best way to bury the matter out of sight would be to take no notice of it at all. It would be a fatal mistake if that motion was seconded. We cannot prevent a dog from barking at our heels. The way to treat the matter would be to stick our minute in the stove when you receive it. Stick it in the stove, but never in our literature would be a sad thing if that motion receives a second."

Rev. W. S. Ball was the first to secure the motion. Mr. Munro finished speaking. "I am sure that we feel with the previous speaker," he said, "but the best way to bury the matter out of sight would be to take no notice of it at all. It would be a fatal mistake if that motion was seconded. We cannot prevent a dog from barking at our heels. The way to treat the matter would be to stick our minute in the stove when you receive it. Stick it in the stove, but never in our literature would be a sad thing if that motion receives a second."

Rev. W. S. Ball was the first to secure the motion. Mr. Munro finished speaking. "I am sure that we feel with the previous speaker," he said, "but the best way to bury the matter out of sight would be to take no notice of it at all. It would be a fatal mistake if that motion was seconded. We cannot prevent a dog from barking at our heels. The way to treat the matter would be to stick our minute in the stove when you receive it. Stick it in the stove, but never in our literature would be a sad thing if that motion receives a second."

Rev. W. S. Ball was the first to secure the motion. Mr. Munro finished speaking. "I am sure that we feel with the previous speaker," he said, "but the best way to bury the matter out of sight would be to take no notice of it at all. It would be a fatal mistake if that motion was seconded. We cannot prevent a dog from barking at our heels. The way to treat the matter would be to stick our minute in the stove when you receive it. Stick it in the stove, but never in our literature would be a sad thing if that motion receives a second."

Rev. W. S. Ball was the first to secure the motion. Mr. Munro finished speaking. "I am sure that we feel with the previous speaker," he said, "but the best way to bury the matter out of sight would be to take no notice of it at all. It would be a fatal mistake if that motion was seconded. We cannot prevent a dog from barking at our heels. The way to treat the matter would be to stick our minute in the stove when you receive it. Stick it in the stove, but never in our literature would be a sad thing if that motion receives a second."

Rev. W. S. Ball was the first to secure the motion. Mr. Munro finished speaking. "I am sure that we feel with the previous speaker," he said, "but the best way to bury the matter out of sight would be to take no notice of it at all. It would be a fatal mistake if that motion was seconded. We cannot prevent a dog from barking at our heels. The way to treat the matter would be to stick our minute in the stove when you receive it. Stick it in the stove, but never in our literature would be a sad thing if that motion receives a second."

Rev. W. S. Ball was the first to secure the motion. Mr. Munro finished speaking. "I am sure that we feel with the previous speaker," he said, "but the best way to bury the matter out of sight would be to take no notice of it at all. It would be a fatal mistake if that motion was seconded. We cannot prevent a dog from barking at our heels. The way to treat the matter would be to stick our minute in the stove when you receive it. Stick it in the stove, but never in our literature would be a sad thing if that motion receives a second."

Rev. W. S. Ball was the first to secure the motion. Mr. Munro finished speaking. "I am sure that we feel with the previous speaker," he said, "but the best way to bury the matter out of sight would be to take no notice of it at all. It would be a fatal mistake if that motion was seconded. We cannot prevent a dog from barking at our heels. The way to treat the matter would be to stick our minute in the stove when you receive it. Stick it in the stove, but never in our literature would be a sad thing if that motion receives a second."

Rev. W. S. Ball was the first to secure the motion. Mr. Munro finished speaking. "I am sure that we feel with the previous speaker," he said, "but the best way to bury the matter out of sight would be to take no notice of it at all. It would be a fatal mistake if that motion was seconded. We cannot prevent a dog from barking at our heels. The way to treat the matter would be to stick our minute in the stove when you receive it. Stick it in the stove, but never in our literature would be a sad thing if that motion receives a second."

Rev. W. S. Ball was the first to secure the motion. Mr. Munro finished speaking. "I am sure that we feel with the previous speaker," he said, "but the best way to bury the matter out of sight would be to take no notice of it at all. It would be a fatal mistake if that motion was seconded. We cannot prevent a dog from barking at our heels. The way to treat the matter would be to stick our minute in the stove when you receive it. Stick it in the stove, but never in our literature would be a sad thing if that motion receives a second."

Rev. W. S. Ball was the first to secure the motion. Mr. Munro finished speaking. "I am sure that we feel with the previous speaker," he said, "but the best way to bury the matter out of sight would be to take no notice of it at all. It would be a fatal mistake if that motion was seconded. We cannot prevent a dog from barking at our heels. The way to treat the matter would be to stick our minute in the stove when you receive it. Stick it in the stove, but never in our literature would be a sad thing if that motion receives a second."

Rev. W. S. Ball was the first to secure the motion. Mr. Munro finished speaking. "I am sure that we feel with the previous speaker," he said, "but the best way to bury the matter out of sight would be to take no notice of it at all. It would be a fatal mistake if that motion was seconded. We cannot prevent a dog from barking at our heels. The way to treat the matter would be to stick our minute in the stove when you receive it. Stick it in the stove, but never in our literature would be a sad thing if that motion receives a second."

Rev. W. S. Ball was the first to secure the motion. Mr. Munro finished speaking. "I am sure that we feel with the previous speaker," he said, "but the best way to bury the matter out of sight would be to take no notice of it at all. It would be a fatal mistake if that motion was seconded. We cannot prevent a dog from barking at our heels. The way to treat the matter would be to stick our minute in the stove when you receive it. Stick it in the stove, but never in our literature would be a sad thing if that motion receives a second."

Rev. W. S. Ball was the first to secure the motion. Mr. Munro finished speaking. "I am sure that we feel with the previous speaker," he said, "but the best way to bury the matter out of sight would be to take no notice of it at all. It would be a fatal mistake if that motion was seconded. We cannot prevent a dog from barking at our heels. The way to treat the matter would be to stick our minute in the stove when you receive it. Stick it in the stove, but never in our literature would be a sad thing if that motion receives a second."

Rev. W. S. Ball was the first to secure the motion. Mr. Munro finished speaking. "I am sure that we feel with the previous speaker," he said, "but the best way to bury the matter out of sight would be to take no notice of it at all. It would be a fatal mistake if that motion was seconded. We cannot prevent a dog from barking at our heels. The way to treat the matter would be to stick our minute in the stove when you receive it. Stick it in the stove, but never in our literature would be a sad thing if that motion receives a second."

Rev. W. S. Ball was the first to secure the motion. Mr. Munro finished speaking. "I am sure that we feel with the previous speaker," he said, "but the best way to bury the matter out of sight would be to take no notice of it at all. It would be a fatal mistake if that motion was seconded. We cannot prevent a dog from barking at our heels. The way to treat the matter would be to stick our minute in the stove when you receive it. Stick it in the stove, but never in our literature would be a sad thing if that motion receives a second."

Rev. W. S. Ball was the first to secure the motion. Mr. Munro finished speaking. "I am sure that we feel with the previous speaker," he said, "but the best way to bury the matter out of sight would be to take no notice of it at all. It would be a fatal mistake if that motion was seconded. We cannot prevent a dog from barking at our heels. The way to treat the matter would be to stick our minute in the stove when you receive it. Stick it in the stove, but never in our literature would be a sad thing if that motion receives a second."

Rev. W. S. Ball was the first to secure the motion. Mr. Munro finished speaking. "I am sure that we feel with the previous speaker," he said, "but the best way to bury the matter out of sight would be to take no notice of it at all. It would be a fatal mistake if that motion was seconded. We cannot prevent a dog from barking at our heels. The way to treat the matter would be to stick our minute in the stove when you receive it. Stick it in the stove, but never in our literature would be a sad thing if that motion receives a second."

Rev. W. S. Ball was the first to secure the motion. Mr. Munro finished speaking. "I am sure that we feel with the previous speaker," he said, "but the best way to bury the matter out of sight would be to take no notice of it at all. It would be a fatal mistake if that motion was seconded. We cannot prevent a dog from barking at our heels. The way to treat the matter would be to stick our minute in the stove when you receive it. Stick it in the stove, but never in our literature would be a sad thing if that motion receives a second."

Rev. W. S. Ball was the first to secure the motion. Mr. Munro finished speaking. "I am sure that we feel with the previous speaker," he said, "but the best way to bury the matter out of sight would be to take no notice of it at all. It would be a fatal mistake if that motion was seconded. We cannot prevent a dog from barking at our heels. The way to treat the matter would be to stick our minute in the stove when you receive it. Stick it in the stove, but never in our literature would be a sad thing if that motion receives a second."

Rev. W. S. Ball was the first to secure the motion. Mr. Munro finished speaking. "I am sure that we feel with the previous speaker," he said, "but the best way to bury the matter out of sight would be to take no notice of it at all. It would be a fatal mistake if that motion was seconded. We cannot prevent a dog from barking at our heels. The way to treat the matter would be to stick our minute in the stove when you receive it. Stick it in the stove, but never in our literature would be a sad thing if that motion receives a second."

Rev. W. S. Ball was the first to secure the motion. Mr. Munro finished speaking. "I am sure that we feel with the previous speaker," he said, "but the best way to bury the matter out of sight would be to take no notice of it at all. It would be a fatal mistake if that motion was seconded. We cannot prevent a dog from barking at our heels. The way to treat the matter would be to stick our minute in the stove when you receive it. Stick it in the stove, but never in our literature would be a sad thing if that motion receives a second."

Rev. W. S. Ball was the first to secure the motion. Mr. Munro finished speaking. "I am sure that we feel with the previous speaker," he said, "but the best way to bury the matter out of sight would be to take no notice of it at all. It would be a fatal mistake if that motion was seconded. We cannot prevent a dog from barking at our heels. The way to treat the matter would be to stick our minute in the stove when you receive it. Stick it in the stove, but never in our literature would be a sad thing if that motion receives a second."

Rev. W. S. Ball was the first to secure the motion. Mr. Munro finished speaking. "I am sure that we feel with the previous speaker," he said, "but the best way to bury the matter out of sight would be to take no notice of it at all. It would be a fatal mistake if that motion was seconded. We cannot prevent a dog from barking at our heels. The way to treat the matter would be to stick our minute in the stove when you receive it. Stick it in the stove, but never in our literature would be a sad thing if that motion receives a second."

Rev. W. S. Ball was the first to secure the motion. Mr. Munro finished speaking. "I am sure that we feel with the previous speaker," he said, "but the best way to bury the matter out of sight would be to take no notice of it at all. It would be a fatal mistake if that motion was seconded. We cannot prevent a dog from barking at our heels. The way to treat the matter would be to stick our minute in the stove when you receive it. Stick it in the stove, but never in our literature would be a sad thing if that motion receives a second."

Rev. W. S. Ball was the first to secure the motion. Mr. Munro finished speaking. "I am sure that we feel with the previous speaker," he said, "but the best way to bury the matter out of sight would be to take no notice of it at all. It would be a fatal mistake if that motion was seconded. We cannot prevent a dog from barking at our heels. The way to treat the matter would be to stick our minute in the stove when you receive it. Stick it in the stove, but never in our literature would be a sad thing if that motion receives a second."

Rev. James Sutherland and John Kernaghan were received and granted.

The Synod will overture the General Assembly to take the necessary steps to secure a uniform posture throughout its jurisdiction during public prayer.