The Proper Tribunal.

Does Mr. Whitney really prefer a committee of the House to a commission of judges for the Gamey investigation? Had the Government referred the matter to a House committee it is hard to resist the belief that Mr. Whitney would foam with indignation just the same. It is probable he is disappointed by the Government's decision for other reasons than he has given. If the inquiry had been delegated to the committee on privileges and elections, what a fine opening he would have had! The majority of that committee necessarily would be Government supporters, and there would be some color to the charge that it would not be an impartial tribunal. As the Attorney-General pointed out, the majority of the House might, in such a case, pack the tribunal and "play with loaded dice."

The Hamilton Herald truly remarks that the cruelest thrust at Gamey is the following from the London Free Press: "Mr. Gamey's decision to 'make a clean breast' of the corrupt overtures by which he was betrayed from the path of political honor will be hailed with satisfaction throughout Ontario."

It is easy to misrepresent by tearing a paragraph from its context. What the Advertiser did say was that Gamey's methods were little short of disgraceful and that the word of a man who would stoop to them should not convict a cabinet minister without corroborative evidence. Is there anything wrong in that? The Spectator might have reproached the Advertiser if it had pooh-poohed the charges, but this journal called for a thorough investigation. The Tory papers show indeed haste in assuming that the Minister accused is guilty before his trial. If they ventured to do that in an ordinary criminal case they would be brought up with a sharp turn by the courts.

It was unfair and unmanly of Mr. Whitney to make the use he did of Hon. Mr. Latchford's letter to Gamey. Mr. Whitney directly charged that Mr. Latchford had knowledge of a corrupt bargain with the member for Manitoulin. As a matter of fact, Mr. Latchford's communication was dated Feb. 7, over a week after Gamey had publicly proclaimed himself a supporter of the Government. The letter was a reply to one written by Gamey, asking for an appropriation for road grants, and it was such a reply as ordinary courtesy would dictate. A man who would attack the personal honor of a minister of the crown on such a pretext cannot hold his own honor at a very high rate. It is more shameful on Mr. Whitney's part, as his position as leader of the Opposition should make him jealous of the reputation of the house.

Belleville Ontario. To satisfy numerous inquiries we say that those sounds of uncontrollable laughter which issued from the office of the newspaper today were caused by Sir Mack Bowell trying to speak about Foster's defeat in North Ontario.

Setting the Question. [Judge.] Barbara—Mamma says that after we are married she'll come and show us how to keep house. Cholly—That settles it. We board!

The Weak Point. [Toronto Star.] The weakness of Mr. Gamey's story is that he claims to have entered shyly into the city from his country home on Manitoulin Island and sold a good brick to those who are, he says, professionals in the business.

Light Literature. London Public Library Board has side-tracked a motion to banish "light" literature. "That was wise. Who is to say what is 'light' literature? What an attractive paper a library would be with the shelves filled with bound copies of Hansard, blue books, Kant's Critique of Pure Reason, the unaltered Edwards' sermons, and a lot of Scripture commentaries! After all, it is a great deal better that the young people should read even 'light' literature, than practice squirting tobacco juice at trolley poles and veranda posts or spend their evenings in other questionable amusements.

An Author's Profit. Jeanette Gilder calculates that Mrs. Humphry Ward will get at least $150,000 for her latest new novel, in addition to not less than $25,000 already paid her for the serial rights. If this calculation is anywhere near correct, Mrs. Ward is the best paid among living novelists. Considering that the novel should read even "light" literature, than practice squirting tobacco juice at trolley poles and veranda posts or spend their evenings in other questionable amusements.

ty for them from punishment except that the dice be loaded, except that the tribunal chosen to try them shall be nominated by themselves." The Mail and Empire, his own organ, reports him thus: "The honorable gentlemen opposite know they have no safety except the dice is loaded—except they name their own tribunal."

The Advertiser's reporter in the gallery understood him to the same effect. When Mr. Pettypiece (East Lambton) attempted to quote the Mail and Empire in corroboration of the Globe, Mr. Whitney tried to prevent him by an appeal to the chair. The truth is that Mr. Whitney realizes that his unbridled license of speech has drawn him into a grave offense, and he tries to retrieve himself by his favorite trick of blaming it on the reporters. The evidence is too strong against him this time. The game is played out. The Toronto Globe does well to refuse to take back water.

We always predicted Mr. Whitney's tongue would get him into trouble. At the risk of confusing metaphors it may be said that he has put his foot in it badly. The Gamey incident isn't a patch on the McGreevy scandal of 1891. Sir Hector Langevin was obliged to resign, but the Government did not feel called upon to step out with him.

The Hamilton Herald truly remarks that the cruelest thrust at Gamey is the following from the London Free Press: "Mr. Gamey's decision to 'make a clean breast' of the corrupt overtures by which he was betrayed from the path of political honor will be hailed with satisfaction throughout Ontario."

When it was understood that Mr. Gamey had traitorously deserted the Conservative party The London Advertiser applauded his action. But now that he has exposed the corrupt act of a minister of the crown, The Advertiser says that Gamey has disgraced himself. The Advertiser is a thoroughbred—Hamilton Spectator. It is easy to misrepresent by tearing a paragraph from its context. What the Advertiser did say was that Gamey's methods were little short of disgraceful and that the word of a man who would stoop to them should not convict a cabinet minister without corroborative evidence. LAWN BOWLING PROSPECTS BRIGHT FOR LONDON CLUB

Coming Season Likely To Be a Record-Breaker.

Enthusiastic Annual Meeting of the London Club—Interesting Figures.

Bowling will hold the fort in a few months among the sports in this city. The prospects are that London will have such a season with this increasing popularity game that it has never had before. The greatest interest has already been manifested in what will be done this summer by the London Rowing and Bowling Club. The game is spreading in its popularity all over the Province, and nowhere more than in the western portion. Last summer there were 124 members actively engaged in the sport, and the members are all re-enthusiastic, so that with this new blood that will come in there are prospects of having 150 members when the season opens. London may reasonably expect to carry off some honors this year in bowling.

MANY WILL ROW. The games that are associated with bowling in the club, rowing and tennis, are almost as popular with another portion of the membership. Last year there were over a hundred members of the club who were actively engaged in the sport of rowing, and almost 50 in tennis. In both of these summer sports it is said that the summer of 1903 will be one of the best in the history of the club. The Thames River has always been a favorite resort with Londoners, and this summer it is expected that there will be an especial interest taken in canoeing. For the past few years this branch of boating has been receiving more attention than ever. Last year the canoe companies based at Peterboro and around Rice Lake could not meet the demands for canoes of the summer that were wanted, and the same was true the few years before that. Previous to that time, however, there was a considerable fairing of the canoe business, it having taken the people some time to have recovered from the report that canoeing will have a unprecedented boom in the Muskokas, the Peterboro lakes and at Toronto, as well as at the majority of summering places. That it will experience a distinct advancement in this city is assured by enthusiasts and along with the rowing that will of course be done by the members of the London Rowing and Bowling Club, the river should have its share of kind attention.

Bowling, rowing, canoeing, tennis—all will be among the sports of the season in London. That this is an assured fact may be at least deduced from the enthusiastic meeting of the club which was held last night at the Tecumseh House, with a large attendance. It was the twelfth annual meeting of the club, and the reports that were presented showed that the previous years had been very prosperous, and what was best of all, each year had been better than the preceding one.

THE CLUB'S FINANCES. A very encouraging report was presented by the treasurer, in which it was shown that after paying not only all outstanding accounts, but also the rent of the grounds and building for the coming year in advance and setting aside an expenditure of $1,000 towards the new building, there was a cash balance of $152 on hand. A report was presented giving some statistics showing the interest that is taken in the various departments of the club. In 1902 there were 234 active members, of whom there were 91 interested in bowling alone, 44 in rowing and 2 in tennis, 36 in rowing and tennis, 32 in rowing and bowling, 1 in bowling and tennis, and 5 interested in all three branches of the club, while there were 21 associate members. Of 10 life members 3 were actively engaged during the summer in bowling. The membership list for the total days on which the courts were used were 100, by 47 members. There

The very best medicine for the relief and cure of chronic coughs and bronchitis; dry, harsh throat coughs; irritating coughs of grippe and consumption; whooping cough; croupy coughs of children, is Angier's Petroleum Emulsion. It soothes and heals the inflamed and irritated membranes of the throat and air passages, promptly relieves the cough, removes foul mucus, makes breathing easy, and puts the respiratory organs in a strong, healthy condition, so that they are able to resist further attacks. It is pleasant to take, agrees with weak stomachs, aids digestion, and has a healthful action upon the bowels.

Thomas Coffey, of London, who succeeds Senator O'Donoghue, is better known in this vicinity than are the other two gentlemen. He is the publisher of the Catholic Record, an excellent religious journal, and a prominent citizen of London. Mr. Kerr is a Toronto lawyer of many years' experience, both at the bar and in politics. Mr. Frost is the head of the large agricultural implement works at Smith's Falls. He sat in the House of Commons in the last Parliament.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

Of the business transacted the most important perhaps was the election of officers. A feature of this proceeding was the re-election of the secretary. He was elected under protest—his own protest. He wanted to drop out this year as this is his seventh as secretary of the club, but the members would not hear of anything of the kind. They told him that they could not consider doing without him, and so for another year he will hold the responsible position of secretary, as after much persuasion he consented to do so. The officers as elected were as follows: Col. Macbeth, honorary president; Dr. W. M. English, first vice-president; Thomas Alexander, second vice-president; James S. McDougall, honorary secretary; W. J. Hayward, honorary treasurer; C. B. Edwards and E. Paull, auditors; E. H. Rowland, James Stevenson, C. M. R. Graham, James McDougall, house committee; E. Rechinier (captain), A. Mortimore, E. Douglass, P. Collins, W. Southern, J. K. Spry, J. A. Carick, Dr. Alexander, W. O. Cox, A. N. Udy, bowling committee; G. Aust, B. Barter, A. G. Dunn, Geo. Phelps, A. S. Swine, Mr. T. Hardy Shore, (chairman), Mr. Shaw-Wood, John Hobbs (St. Ives), George Green (Fairview), D. DeCorsey (Bornton), and Ed. Brian (Ridgeway).

GENERAL BUSINESS. A recommendation from the executive committee was adopted to provide for the collection of annual fees by sending out notice on May 1 to each member notifying him that fees are due, and if not paid by the same date to draw for slight draft. A vote of thanks was tendered unanimously to the retiring officers, which a large number of gentlemen were proposed for membership.

The Strenuous Mr. Gamey.

'Twas a gent from Manitoulin, boys, Surmising (nothin' doin'), boys, Decided to investigate the politicians' dream; And the way he went about it, boys, Are the reasons why we doubt it, boys. For such foolish accusations are surely seldom seen. Now, in matters queer and whimsical, It's no use being personal, Till a sound investigation proves where the trouble is. But there are scores of Mr. Gameys, Whose long, delightful dream is To upset our good old Government, the pride of thirty years. The Mail and Empire's editorial is rightfully satirical, In denouncing the corruption our opponents seem to see; But of course it stands for reason That's our friend from Manitoulin. To be so very near the land, and yet so far at sea. Now the finale and conclusion, And lamentable delusion, Of those mutual stenographers so easily misled, Will eventually result in Our friend from Manitoulin Waking up, put out his hand, to find himself in bed. MUSIC AND DRAMA

The Ten-ichi Show Was Entirely Unique and Interesting.

Ten-ichi, the Japanese magician, and a company of entertainers, gave one of the cleverest shows last night ever seen at a London theater. They appeared at the Grand, and the audience, while fairly large, was not by any means of proportions corresponding to the merit of the performance. The work of Ten-ichi is indescribable. He can do all that is wonderful, amazing and unexplainable, and the members of his troupe are apt pupils of their great master. The O'Rourke and Burnett trio, which includes Master O'Rourke, are exceptionally good dancers. The boy is a gifted youngster. He sings and dances wonderfully well for one so young. Leon Morris, educated dog, is a comic especially the latter, gave what was in several respects the best animal show that has ever been seen in London. Miss Rita Curtis also was good in her violin specialty. Superlatives must be used in referring to the whole show, which was entirely unique and interesting.

"THE EVIL EYE" TONIGHT.

"The Evil Eye," or the further funny freaks of Nid and the continued comical contortions of Nod, will appear at the Grand, matinee and evening, tonight. This spectacular musical extravaganza keeps the audience in an uproar from the beginning to the end. This season everything is new, clever and original, and Messrs. Yale & Ellis promise it the best "Evil Eye" of its five years of continuous success.

MISS ISABEL IRVING MONDAY.

The Toronto News says: Dainty, winsome Isabel Irving made her first appearance at the Grand last night. Her portrayal of Virginia Carvel in "The Crisis" is a sweet spring memory to those who have seen her. She may not be particularly strong in tragic parts, but she did delight the crowded house with her natural and spontaneous representation of that incarnation of sweet contrariness, Virginia Carvel. So far as the acting goes, there is little to criticize adversely in last night's presentation. The staging is correct and effective, and the costumes in strict conformity with the time. The audience received the play enthusiastically. "The Crisis" comes to the Grand Monday evening.

MR. J. H. STODDART COMES BACK.

Next Wednesday and Thursday at the Grand Mr. Stoddart in "The Bonnie Brier Bush" will be the attraction. Theatregoers will be delighted with another opportunity of hearing the favorite actor. The story of the play, briefly told, is this: Flora Campbell, daughter of a shepherd, is married to an earl's son according to the Scottish rite—that is, the action has declared her his wife and placed the ring upon her finger. The union is legal if the declaration is made in the presence of a witness. Flora keeps her wedding a secret and is cast from her home by her father, Lachlan Campbell (Mr. Stoddart) because he believes she has brought shame upon his name. The couple are separated by hardened fathers and the wretched girl fears she has been deserted. Then her father learns of the marriage, which was witnessed by the tipping post-carrier of Drumtochty from behind a hayrick, and the young lovers are brought together. The seat sale opens Monday.

"BONITA" AT THE LONDON.

"Wine, Woman and Song" will appear at the London Monday and Tuesday evenings. Bonita, with her Cuban and African milagets, a most entertaining act, again heads the bill. "At Camp in the Philippines" is a singing act, with scenic effects, presented by Bennett and Rich. The Yale Duo will please those who enjoy club-swinging that has novelties in manipulation. Gaffey and Shuby, a musical team, offer a variety of harmonies, while Mile, Vida, with her sensational swinging wire change act, comes from the Folly Bougere.

THE GLICK COMPANY.

At last night's amateur contest at the London twelve competitors took part. The Grayson children, in a cake walk, won the prize, whilst Master Perrin, in a cornet solo, ran them hard for first place. Tonight the Glick Stock Company present that old favorite play, "Uncle Tom's Cabin," and doubtless the house will be crowded. This company presents this play for three weeks each season in the Grand Opera House, Cincinnati, and will put it on here in identically the same way. At the close of the performance the ton of hard coal will be given away.
