The County Council will meet in Toronto next week, and we must that they will give their best consideration to the question of the York toll gates. An agreement between the city and the county has been drawn up with a provisional clause, allowing the two parties interested to take advantage of it any time up to Dec. 31 of this year. The provision in question is to the effect that, provided the city abandon the collection of tolls in the farmers' markets, the county on its part will abolish the tolls within the Township of York. Some time ago the city and the county had almost agreed on the matter, and through some technicality the deal was not consummated. It is to be hoped that the County Council will consent to the abolition of these tolls and that the city will cease harassing the farmers with market fees. This is the last session of the County Council previous to the expiry of the provisional agreement. If the bill is not put through now it may hang fire for many years to come. The County Council have hitherto not seen their way clear to abolishing the tolls, because no method was presented to them by which money could be raised to maintain the roads. We understand that Deputy-Reeve Goulding of York Township has proposed to overcome this difficulty. His idea is to charge each municipality with the amount of money that is derived on an average from the tolls within its limits. This would be an equitable arrangement, because the municipalities where the travel is light as a rule would have less to pay, because the travel on those roads is proportionately smaller. We sincerely trust that the gentlemen from the outlying districts of York county especially will come to Toronto prepared to deal with this matter in an amiable way. We know that the city on its part is prepared to make a fair deal as soon as the other side is willing.THE RULE OF THE ROAD.
Mr. Beverley-Jones has apparently been sleeping on the bicycle nuisance, and the town is indebted to him for a code of rules which has emanated from his fertile brain. The rules in question have quite a legal and formal aspect about them. For the purposes of argument and legal finesse, the rules admirably fill the bill, but for all practical purposes, bicyclists declare them overbearing. The first thing to consider in preparing a set of rules for the guidance of whomever is that the rules belong to the pedestrian and the roadway to the wheelerman, and where the two cross each must exercise care to avoid the other. A pedestrian is as much at fault in crossing the roadway without taking precautions as a cyclist in riding along the sidewalks. It is the latter who need to be cautioned more than the former. Let them once clearly understand that they should not leave the sidewalk without taking a full survey of the street up and down.DON'T CONSIDER EXORBITANT CLAIMS.
The citizens of Toronto have very generously decided to meet the expense of widening the Queen-street subway. No sooner has the bylaw providing the money for this undertaking been passed than those who prospered by the subway are immediately affected by the improvement come forward and demand exorbitant land damages for their property. The duty of the city in this case is plain: First, the work must be done, and until every possible claim for land damages is finally settled, and secondly, the work must not be undertaken at all as long as fictitious and exorbitant claims are presented. The latter for interested parties as well understood this first as last.BETTER ACCOMMODATION NECESSARY.
The Street Railway Company ought to make an effort to provide better accommodation for the public during the evening hours, when everyone wants to get home at the earliest possible moment. The day's work is done the weary toiler feels the need of a seat more than at any other time of the day. Instead of its being a pleasure to get out of the workshop and ride home in a comfortable seat, he finds that one of the most disagreeable tasks of the day is his journey home. The cars on nearly all the routes are overcrowded, and men and women are obliged to stand on their feet when they have paid a fare that entitles them to a seat. The railway company have had long enough now to procure conveniences for meeting the necessities of the case. The railway company have two lessons to learn from the policy of cheap tickets. In the first place the low rate has increased their traffic so much that their whole outfit is unable to take it to provide as are necessary to take home the people decently and comfortably. The next lesson the railway should learn is that the reduction of fares on the rest of the day would result in a proportionate increase in their traffic. If the three cent fares were made available for the whole day, the equipment that is necessary for the bill during the other hours of the day. It seems to us it would pay the railway to keep out a uniform number of cars on the tracks from morning till evening, instead of cranking off cars on trail cars during the busy hours of the day. The company's receipts would be bigger. The public would appreciate the change.Knights of Labor in Session.
New Orleans, Nov. 16.—The Knights of Labor convention met at 9 o'clock to-day as usual, and adjourned at 12:30 p.m. The reports of the Finance Committee of the Executive Board and of the preceding year's convention were read and referred. There was also presented the report of the special committee, with General Master Sovereign at its head, which called the convention of national labor leaders at New Orleans on June 15. That report was also referred.

The Musical Festival—L.O.F. Concert—
No Lack of Variety.

The Kimball Opera Comique Company, composed of 30 good-looking and interesting people, and the peerless Corinne, singing, dancing and merry-making in the operatic extravaganza "Hendrick Hudson," will be the attraction at Jacobs &amp; Sparrow's Opera House.

The company embraces the names of many well-known actors, the most prominent of whom are William Simms, who plays the part of Kill Van Kullian, impersonation made famous by this clever comedian last season; James Strang, the American stage; Charles Fostelle, who plays the part of a woman of the future; Harry Dils and Frank Hayden, vocalists; and Fields and Wooley, dialect and character comedians. The many features of the production can be but lightly touched upon. There is a bright and beautiful musical comedy, "The Cairo Quadrille," and the novel dancing of the Persian dancing girls. The sale of the new in progress. Matinees will be given on Tuesday, Thanksgiving and Saturday.

Sadie Martin in "The Passport."
The play "The Passport," in which Miss Martin will be seen at the Grand Opera House on Monday evening is described as an irresistibly funny comedy mixed with situations and abundant cause for mirth. In it Miss Martin will assume the role of a capricious young widow, whose forgotten husband is forever under the wings of all sorts. She will be accompanied by Mr. Flegman, who is personally against the piece.Next Week at the Academy.
Mlle. Delmore, the famous little Parisian dancer, will doubtless be the favorite of the next week at the Academy.

Although a stranger in Toronto she comes here well endorsed by the press and public. A parade will be made on Monday.

"My Partner" was considered a great American play in its day. That was a good many years ago. It is now a play that is given at the opera house in the city to packed houses. In Louis Aldrich's revival of the old play at the Grand Theatre, Thursday matinee promises a good deal and pretty mountain scenery.

The play is his own appearance in the leading part.
