

HOUSE MOVING PROVES COSTLY

Large Force Takes Cottage Through Center of City WORK DONE DURING NIGHT Expense Heavier Than Cost of Building, Says Owner

Three Public Utilities men, two Bell Telephone men, three street railway men, four laborers and four teams of horses were required to move a small frame cottage owned by Benjamin Goldberg through city streets early this morning.

The house, which was until yesterday located at Fullarton street, just west of Talbot street, had been standing in the middle of that street for over 26 years until permits could be secured from the City Council last night to move it farther.

Mr. Goldberg declared last night that it was going to cost him far more to move the house than what he paid for it. "In the first place I thought I would only have to pay the contractor a couple of hundred dollars to move it, but I have had to deposit $100 with the City Council and have to pay for all these extra workmen," he stated.

CLAIM FUEL OIL NOT FIRE HAZARD

Dealers Object to Proposed City Regulations

UNDERWRITERS TO DECIDE Revised Tenders for New Ridout Street Bridge Asked

Whether fuel oil should be classed with gasoline and coal oil and therefore restricted as to storage in residences, etc., was debated at the regular meeting of No. 2 committee of the City Council last night.

The committee finally decided to refer the question to the Canadian Fire Underwriters' Association and to the fire marshal for advice and suggestions. When these are received a conference with oil and burner dealers will be held and, if necessary, regulations will be adopted governing the installation of oil tanks, etc.

It was also stated that Toronto has no such restrictions covering the installation of oil tanks. The general opinion expressed by this delegation was that the cost of installation would be much higher in London than in any other city. If these regulations were put into effect, Mr. Benson suggested the simplest way out of the difficulty was to substitute the word oil for fuel oil in the present by-law.

City Engineer Near reported, in connection with Ridout street bridge, that he had asked for revised estimates of a new structure from two bridge manufacturing companies and one bridge engineering firm. These will be at hand soon, he thought.

Col. William Mitchell Advocates Strong Air Force NOVA SCOTIA ATTACK BASE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—Nova Scotia as a jumping-off place for a British air attack upon the United States was suggested by Col. William Mitchell, former assistant chief of the United States air service, to-day in picturing the dangers to which his country was exposed as a result of alleged inefficiency in the administration of the air service.

Col. Mitchell appeared as a witness before President Coolidge's investigating board, the appointment of which was due largely to repeated attacks made by him upon army and navy officials in connection with the conduct of the air service.

For external enemies, he declared, the United States must look across the Atlantic and Pacific. He added, however, that there was no reason to expect hostile relations with Great Britain, nevertheless such a possibility must be considered in drafting defense plans.

It was felt by the executive that the club in all its years of existence had never been properly "sold" to the average merchant in London, and a steady canvass will be made of those who might be prospective members before the dinner season starts.

After dinner last night the members adjourned to the Arcade Bowling Alley for a friendly game. Two neophytes, Prof. E. H. Morrow and Tom Yull, entered the lists against each other in a fight to a finish. There was no official decision, and the newspaper verdict was that a draw fairly met the demands of justice and the fans.

POLICE ARE ORDERED TO ARREST "MASHERS"

Windsor May Open War on Motorists Who Annoy Girls on Streets

WINDSOR, Sept. 29.—War was declared to-day by Mayor Frank J. Mitchell on men who annoy girls by inviting them to drive in their motor cars, when he instructed Chief of Police Daniel Thompson to arrest these drivers and hold them without bail on disorderly charges.

In a letter to Chief Thompson, the mayor, who also is chairman of the Windsor Police Commission, urged that policemen on all beats be ordered to keep a strict watch for offenders, especially on the principal streets, following complaints from girls and their parents.

"I suggest they be held without the option of bail for hearing before the magistrate. Keep them in jail all night and file charges of disorderly conduct against them. It may help remedy a situation which is becoming serious," Mayor Mitchell said in his letter.

OUTLINES SCHEME FOR U. S. DEFENSE Col. William Mitchell Advocates Strong Air Force

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—Nova Scotia as a jumping-off place for a British air attack upon the United States was suggested by Col. Turning to the Pacific he asserted that 1,000 airplanes could be landed in Nova Scotia in from eight to 10 days, he said. United States cities could then be reached in about three hours.

Dirigible airships for carrying airplanes, he asserted, can be built that will fly from Europe to the United States and return. For the Atlantic, he said, the United States needed an army to protect the land, a navy equipped with submarines, but above all an air force to protect the nation from attack by air.

Considering our East coast defense plans," he continued, "we must think of England as dominating the Atlantic and as strong in the Caribbean."

Declaring Great Britain's force of 1,000 airplanes could be landed in Nova Scotia in from eight to 10 days, he said. United States cities could then be reached in about three hours.

SAYS MANUFACTURERS AGAINST HIGHER TARIFF

Hon. G. N. Gordon's Declaration in Address at Stouffville. STOUFFVILLE, Ont., Sept. 29.—Declaring what he alluded to as the pessimistic attitude toward the country's affairs, Hon. G. N. Gordon, minister of immigration, speaking here to-night in support of Premier King's candidacy in the latter's own riding of North York, quoted departmental figures showing that 24,000 Canadians had returned from the United States since April 24, that double that number of farmers had come from the United States to seek Western Canadian locations for settlement during the past year and that the newcomers had brought $10,000,000 in goods and money into the country.

posed to tariff increases which would enhance the cost of raw material, thus raising the ultimate price of the finished product. "The whole thing," he averred, "would result in export difficulties and make it harder to sell in world markets. The Quaker Oats Company, the General Electric, the Canadian National Paper Company, all these I know. They are large export manufacturers, their goods sell in the markets of the world, and they do not want an increase in tariffs to cripple their business, hamper their industry and thus react upon the prosperity of those employed by them."

Touching on Mr. Meighen's chances of going into power, Mr. Gordon predicted that "it could not be done." "Mr. Meighen's party had 49 seats in the last Parliament," said the Minister of Immigration. "This means he would have to win 74 more and without losing any at all in order to gain a majority in the House of just one seat—and he can't do it."

In the elections of 1921, declared the minister, Mr. Meighen and his followers were defeated by an aggregate of 1,039,000 votes. That, he said, was the minority the Conservative party polled on the last occasion, and he added that they had appealed to the country on the same issue then that they are pleading before the people of Canada to-day, pre-
