

scheme tending to the promotion of the general good. Firm and fixed in his endeavors to attain an object once definitely settled upon as being desirable, his great influence was naturally always sought for and highly prized.

Not only was Dr. Campbell deservedly looked up to as the leading surgeon of the city, but he was held in the warmest estimation as a citizen. His voice and influence were always to be counted upon to assist in any good work, and many an undertaking to-day in flourishing condition, and on a firm basis, owes the success of its early efforts to the assistance then lent it by this public-spirited man. The greatest of our public charities, the Montreal General Hospital, always claimed and received a large share of his fostering care. In every matter connected with the medical management of this large Institution, the advice of Dr. Campbell was looked for, and time and attention to its interests were given ungrudgingly and without stint. It is not for us to speak of the many marks of the esteem in which he was held amongst our merchants and laymen—the many posts he has held, of themselves, speak for this. He was for many years Director, and lately Vice-President of the Bank of Montreal, and also Director in the City Gas Company, the Montreal Telegraph Company, and many others. He will long be remembered amongst his fellow-citizens as a clear-headed and judicious business-man, possessing qualities in this respect sufficiently uncommon amongst medical men.

For nearly half a century Dr. Campbell's name has been identified with the Medical Faculty of McGill University, and it is largely due to his ability as a teacher of surgery that that school attained the high degree of popularity which it has so long enjoyed. As its Dean, he always possessed the fullest confidence of his colleagues, and, under his able management, its policy was always
