Should Go Two Weeks And is Good For Full Houses at Every Performance.

Some people thought they couldn't do it, but the crowd in the Alexandra last night had the time of their life with Percy Haswell's very own comedy opera company. There were more encores to the features than the latest New York successes get in the regular season, and they were not quite so many features and the dialog "Forty-five Minutes From Broadway" is strong enough to stand up on its own support. The curtain went up there was a gasp of delight at the beautiful set, the exterior of the Bennett home at New Rochelle. Miss Julia Hanchett and J. T. Galloway had everyone laughing immediately, as Mrs. Purdy and Andy Gray and as soon as Fred Tiden appeared as Kid Burns as soon as the musical comedy was a huge success never flagged. Miss Percy Haswell herself comes on early as Mary Jane Jenkins and the smooth and artistic acting of these two leaders indicated both a masterly versatility, and a capacity for character comedy which is rarely seen in the best visiting companies. The favorite song, "Mary's Grand Old Name," was given with tenderness and sweetness by Miss Haswell and she was thrice encored. Mr. Tiden got a lot of laughter for his gags in the tree, and when Mrs. Haswell announced "I'll do the talking," the audience roared over his comment. "She's a female Jimmie Hughes."

(Are You a Piano Pounder?)
The noisiest piano din
Is made by Elsie Lucy Finn.
Her family, and all around her
Call her the "prize piano-pounder."

OBSERVATION

Have you ever sent a child into a room for something that you knew was directly in front of him, and have him return without it?

Of course you have. Every mother has. Children have a way sometimes of looking all around a thing, but never seeing the thing itself. Perhaps other things distract him, but whatever the cause, he does not see that which he was sent to see.

When he came back to tell you he couldn't find the thing because it wasn't there, what did you do?

Ten to one you scolded, and in disgust performed the errand yourself. Think a minute. Can you continue to do this feeling for him always? Will not the time come when, unless he sees for himself just what he should see, he must be counted a dummy?

Then, obviously, what the mother and teacher must do is to train the child to see.

It is pitiable how the trainings of observation is neglected. We do not get half out of life that we should, because we have never been trained to properly.

Children differ in the possession of this faculty. Two children about the same age will see the same thing. One of them will get a fairly good idea of it, some feature of it will impress him, and he will be able to give a very good description. The other child will have the vaguest notion of the thing, and he will be unable to give a description.

Children must be taught not only to see things, but to see them with understanding. They must see with the mind as well as the eye. If the mother is interested in what interests her child, she will tell him of new things, explain what they are, and their relation to the things of which he already has knowledge. She will point things out to him, and he will be led to see intelligently for himself.

Tomorrow we will discuss the training of the observation.

LYNHURST HOSPITAL OPEN TO PUBLIC

New Institution on Yorkville Avenue Modern in Every Respect.

COMFORTABLE ROOMS

Wards Will Accommodate Thirty-Five Patients—Miss M. Power in Charge.

In an altogether new dress and looking as apt and open as can be imagined, the Lynhurst Hospital, formerly located at 22 College street, opened its doors anew to the public at 100 Yorkville avenue, yesterday afternoon.

Finding the old quarters inadequate to meet the increasing call for accommodation and service, the management determined on a change, and the fine house with the spacious grounds, where the hospital is now established, is the result.

The building has the appearance of a comfortable English residence, the smooth croquet lawn in front with the lawns and paths all ready for use, the handsome iron railing and the high lattice screen separating the premises from the back, all tending to the effect.

At the rear is another large lawn with shrubs and shady trees, where a hammock swings and easy chairs invite one to their depths.

The opening was neither formal nor formidable, but just an easy social gathering of doctors, nurses, graduates, patients, ex-patients and friends generally of the institution.

Miss M. S. Power, the capable superintendent, told The World that the hospital was a graduate of St. Michael's Hospital, had several years' service with the late Dr. Kelly on the other side of the line. There is accommodation for thirty-five patients, different departments being provided for maternity, medical and surgical cases. There are at present seven nurses besides the superintendent, and it is the intention to enlarge the number in the near future.

After being shown thru the house by the head of the establishment, The World was taken in hand by a dear little modern Priscilla, in a blue dress with smooth white kerchiefs around her shoulders, and about her face, and under her cap came the most coquettish black sliver curls imaginable. It was a pleasant patient just to get one glimpse of the attractive little lady, who served The World with dainty tea and delicious ices, from a table decorated with crimson roses and nestling cozily under the shady trees.

If first impressions count for anything, and the popular belief is that they do, Lynhurst is a most inviting place. It is a pleasant patient just to get one glimpse of the attractive little lady, who served The World with dainty tea and delicious ices, from a table decorated with crimson roses and nestling cozily under the shady trees.

Better than the best. Go with the Grocers to the Falls tomorrow.

MRS. WIGGS' STORY NEVER GROWS OLD

Bonstelle Players Gave Splendid Presentation of Popular Play.

"Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" never grows old. Although it has been depicted on the stage for years it continues to hold an appeal. Last night it was revived in Toronto when the Bonstelle Players gave a splendid presentation of the famous story at Shea's to a crowded house. Despite the fact that it was not exactly the usual summer stock production, the difficult characters, such as Mr. Stubbs, Miss Hazy, Mrs. Elchorn, Mrs. Schultz and all the other human oddities of the cabbage patch, were delightfully portrayed.

Mrs. Wiggs was played by Miss Beaumont, and it would not be flattery to say that the originators of the role did any better acting of this modern, lively woman, who managed to bring joy to other lives by her own sorrow. Edward H. Robbins, in taking the part of Mr. Stubbs, showed that he possesses remarkable versatility. His portrayal of Stubbs meant a laugh every minute. Jane Wheatley as the pathetic Miss Hazy, who ventures out on the matrimonial market with Mr. Stubbs, made a capable presentation of the role. Miss Kathleen Macdonell, as Lovey Mary, did her usual good work. It is needless to relate the story of the Cabbage Patch, which even outsiders have heard of, but the production of last week's production of "Mrs. Wiggs" Judging by the reception by the audience the tale will stand retelling again and again in Toronto.

A record crowd is promised for the Lennox Picnic on Wednesday at Jackson's Point. Fifty brands, Automobile procession, Athletic events, Grand Baby Show. These are only a few of the attractions.
