One of the current stories about Leo XIII. is to the effect that a Franciscan friar, who had the reputation of being a saint while he lived, predicted, claiming that the fact had been revealed to him in 1878, that the successor of Pius IX. would occupy the Papal throne until 1898, at least. His prediction seems to be in a fair way of being verified, for but three years more are required to bring the date he fixed, and the Pope's physician has but recently given the world the assurance that the Sovereign Pontiff's physical condition is apparently as good now as when he ascended the Papal throne.

Cardinal Gibbons will be accompanied to Rome next month by Bishop Foley, who has announced his intention of crossing the Atlantic with the cardinal and paying his respects to the Pope. Dr. Foley was, it will be readily remembered, a priest of the Baltimore diocese, and one of the most intimate friends of the cardinal prior to his promotion to the purple; and Monsignor Gibbons went to Detroit to install him in his see when he took possession thereof. Rumor has hinted that when a coadjutor is appointed for the Baltimore archdiocese it will not be surprising if Dr. Foley be sent back to the episcopate in which he labored for so many years with signal success.

Cardinal Benavidez Navarrete, whose death was recently announced from Saragossa, of which city he was the archbishop, was one of the few members of the Sacred College who were created by Pius IX. Monsignor Navarrete was made an archbishop March 12, '72, and he was created a cardinal five years subsequently, in the last year of Pius the Ninth's pontificate. Other cardinals created at the same consistory are Monsignors Parocchi and Ladochowski. The deceased prelate was a man of great piety and learning, and his death is deplored by all Catholic Spain, one of whose representatives he was in the Cardinalial College.

Bishop Watterson of Columbus has become noted throughout the land for his advanced stand in favor of temperance; but the Columbus prelate has nothing of the fanatic about him, and in a recent address which he delivered at Cleveland, he said: "I am not now and I have never been a prohibitionist in the sense that the manufacture and sale of alcoholic liquors must of necessity be universally forbidden and everywhere forcibly suppressed by the legislative and police force of the state. I do not believe that the state does a sinful act when it passes a license law and thus recognizes the liquor traffic in its efforts to restrain it within the limits of the public welfare." At the same meeting similar ideas were uttered by Bishop Horstmann of Cleveland, who also spoke, and introduced Dr. Watterson.

It is nothing new for Bishop Spalding of Peoria to find himself made the subject of rumors that assign him to other sees than the one which he at present fills so worthily. It is rather difficult, however, to imagine from what source could have emanated the statement, published the other day that he was to go to Boston, to be coadjutor with the right of succession, to Archbishop Williams. The impending golden sacerdotal jubilee of the archbishop will probably occasion other rumors to be circulated about the archdiocese; but as Vicar-General Byrne remarked in a recent interview, when a successor to the archbishop is to be chosen—Bostonians all hope that will not be required for years yet—the selection will unquestionably be made in the regular way.

If invisible ourselves, we could follow a single human being through a day of his life and know all his secret thoughts and hopes and anxieties, his prayers and tears and good resolves, his passionate delights and struggles against temptations, we should have poetry enough to fill a volume.—Henry Wadsworth Longfellow.

CANCER ON THE LIP CURED BY

AYER'S Sarsaparilla

"I consulted doctors who prescribed for me, but to no purpose. I suffered in agony seven long years. Finally, I began taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. In a week or two I noticed a decided improvement. Encouraged by this result, I persevered, until in a month or so the sore began to heal, and, after using the Sarsaparilla for six months, the last trace of the cancer disappeared."—JAMES E. NICHOLSON, Florenceville, N. B.

AYER'S PILLS Regulate the Bowels.

Men seem neither to understand their riches nor strength. Of the former they believe greater things than they should: of the latter less. Self-reliance and self-denial will teach a man to drink out of his own cistern and eat his own sweet bread, and to learn and labour truly to get his living and carefully expend the good things committed to his trust.

"IT IS A GREAT PUBLIC BENEFIT."—These significant words were used in relation to DR. THOMAS'S ELECTRIC OIL, by a gentleman who had thoroughly tested its merits in his own case—having been cured by it of lameness of the knee, of three or four years' standing. It never fails to remove soreness as well as lameness, and is an incomparable pulmonic and corrective.

The difficulty is to know how to adapt ourselves to the slow step of time, whose progress can never be forced on without danger.—Emile Souvestre.
