

"Come," said Jake, "let's go up and tell them."

And yet there was very little need for words when Sally came in hanging on Jake's arm, and laid her curly head with a little happy cry on Aunt Mary's knee, with the spotted snake-skin tied in a clumsy bow about the creamy slimness of her bare neck.