$42,000 for Jake Gaudaur.

Duluth, Minn., April 30.—Jake Gaudaur, at one time champion oarsman of the world, who has not been heard of in recent years, is in a fair way to become a wealthy man.

Gaudaur is down in the Cobalt district in Ontario, where sensational finds of silver have been made, and where there are now several thousand people living in tents as a result of the rush to the district. Gaudaur, who is now in the district three months ago, has taken a lease of the only hotel at Cobalt, a hamlet on the edge of the district, and the real rush into the locality was fairly begun.

In those three months according to Frank McCormick of Duluth, who has just returned there, Gaudaur cleaned up $8000, and a few days ago sold out for $42,000. During this period the oarsman, by reason of his fame and popularity, and his position as a hotel proprietor in a country where hotels are greatly appreciated, got news from the outside of good things in the mineral way quicker than he, and the result is he has an interest in quite a large number of what are said to be valuable properties.

McCormick says Gaudaur will devote himself entirely to prospecting and mining. With the start he has in a rich district, the result is he has an interest in quite a large number of what are said to be valuable properties.
