The adjourned case of John Strader of the Davisville Hotel was heard in the police court yesterday. He was not that kind, so-clable; in fact, everything that could be desired. He came to board with me from his cousin's, Mrs. Lampman's, place last September. He wanted a room to himself. I could not give it to him, so I told him that I would fix up a bed in the parior and he could have that. He seemed very pleased, and said that the place he was at was too noisy. COMPULSORY ARBITRATION

Editor World: I wish to express appreciation of J. E. Stewart's letter of the 19th, re the "Compulsory Arbitration Bill," now before the Dominion house.
