

A NEW STORE

Early next week we open our new show-rooms for Ladies' Walking Hats and Water-proof Coats. It will be in itself a whole new store, occupying an entire floor of the large addition to our building. It will contain only the latest designs issued—all of these, some fifty cases, arrived by express yesterday and Thursday. Watch for the opening. It will be a red letter day for dressy women of Toronto.

CONGRESS AGAINST G.T.P.

Continued From Page 1. The closing chapter of the important commercial record was written in terms of loyalty to the Crown and the person of the King, a cable being authorized to convey these sentiments to His Majesty.

It is resolved that the transcontinental railways of Canada, those existing and those projected, are in the opinion of this Congress for the general advantage not merely of Canada, but of the empire, and should receive some imperial support and consideration in any proposed plan of imperial federation, not merely on the ground that they furnish rapid and effective modes of transportation of troops and munitions of war for imperial defence, but also on the ground that they are the chief land links in the chain of British commerce and are the inlets to the empire and outlets from the granary of the empire and the future food supply of Great Britain.

With a Few Words. Mr. Graham remarked: "At the present time I do not feel that I should take up the valuable time of this Congress in discussing the merits of the resolution concerning the Transcontinental Railway at this late hour, but I will comply with the request of the Board of Trade of Belleville, that I move the resolution as printed. There was no opposing speech, but as if the obscure manner in which the resolution on so momentous a question had been sprung by a small town in the Dominion had created general suspicion as to its purpose, it was deliberately voted down.

Lord Brassey's exact words were: "I declare the motion lost by a large majority." Now some of the Canadian delegates are anxious to know what influence prompted the introduction of the measure by the Belleville Board of Trade representative. As if to show the contrast with which the Congress regarded the all-British world-circling system of telegraphs, Sir Sandford Fleming moved the adoption of this resolution, for which Toronto and Ottawa stood sponsors.

That in the opinion of this Congress in the self-governing British communities around the globe should be united by a continuous chain of state-owned telegraphs. That such an international line of communication would, under government control, put an end to the difficulty which has been caused by the allied cable companies in Australia and remove all friction which has arisen between the partners in the Pacific cable; that it would lower charges to a minimum on over-sea messages passing between New Zealand, Australia, India, South Africa, the West Indies, Newfoundland, Canada and the Mother Country; that it would provide a double means of communication at low uniform rates, between the Mother Country, or any one British state and all the self-governing British states; that it would constitute the most effective means by which the several governmental units of the empire may hold communication with each other whenever they desire, and that while it would be of the highest importance to the commercial and industrial interests of the British people.

around the world, it would, by the subtle force of electricity, at once prove an indispensable factor in Imperial unity.

Attached by Wire.

He said in support: "The proposal is that all the self-governing British possessions should be connected telegraphically by a state-owned and state-controlled chain of electric telegraphs; that should be a continuous chain, girdling the empire and encircling the globe, so that in the event of interruption from any cause, telegraphic communication may nevertheless be maintained by sending messages in the opposite direction; that the submarine cables should be laid for network security, deep water; and that no part of the electric telegraph circle touch land which is not British. (Applaud.) That is the whole scheme. The Pacific cable recently laid between Canada and Australia is regarded as part of it. The cost involved in completing the whole scheme is estimated not to exceed four million pounds sterling. It would be held in common ownership by Great Britain, Canada, New Zealand, Australia, India and South Africa.

The speaker laid before the congress a letter from the British Empire League in Canada, setting forth the objects to be attained as follows:

- 1. It would forever settle the dispute which has arisen and remove the possibility of any further of a like kind.
2. It would reduce rates on telegraph messages between Australia and England to half, and eventually to less than half the present charges.
3. It would play a most important part in the maintenance of the commercial, social and political relations of the whole British people.
4. It would provide a double means of telegraphing—that is to say, eastward as well as westerly, by a national line, at low uniform charges, between any one British state and all the other self-governing states.
5. It would be a most effective medium for daily communication between the governmental units of the world-wide empire, by and thru which many questions would be settled as they arise, which, without it, might not be disposed of in months.
6. It would contribute in the most practical manner to the consolidation of the empire.
7. It would prove in every sense an important and indispensable factor in Imperial unity.

The resolution was seconded by Mr. Cockshutt of Brantford for the Toronto Board of Trade, and adopted unanimously.

Labour Unions.

Then "Labor unions raised their hideous head" as one excited delegate put it. He knew what strikes were because 5 men once quit on a barn he was raising, and he lost money by it. The original intention of this resolution was to prevent the interference of labor disputes. It was aimed at the American Federation of Labor, which the delegate said had branched all over Canada who were weekly sending large sums of money into the States, and in return, the American Federation organizations were directed in times of great unrest and strikes by the American officials. This was the humiliating spectacle that the delegate said he was trying to abolish.

Beitton Speaks.

S. B. Beitton of London spoke on the subject, saying the representative of the Belleville board, which had submitted a resolution on this subject, had gone into the matter. "The two resolutions you see on the agenda paper were of such a nature that the members of the Board of Commerce would have been obliged to oppose some of the clauses. I therefore ventured to ask the delegates, and I am glad to say they agreed. That resolution I am going to put to you. It is resolved that the Transcontinental Railway existing between capital and labor demand legislative action through the empire, for the purpose of preventing strikes and lock-outs, and of securing to the interests of the employers and employees, and to the whole country, and this Congress has the honor to give sanction and encouragement to the promotion of a unitary conciliation board, which have achieved a great measure of success in Great Britain; and further, that labor unions and employers' associations in all cases be incorporated and registered.

"This is one of the most important questions which could be brought before any congress. We shall not absolutely have time to discuss it, but I will venture to say that the experience of the London Chamber of Commerce, which has entered very largely into this question, is that you take some of that for granted. The London Chamber of Commerce could not agree to the resolutions as they stood. There are many reasons why labor disputes should not be taken directly in hand by the government in any country. There is great danger they might get mixed up in party political considerations."

Mr. Irving (Vancouver Board of Trade): "Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen—I have been on my feet already half an hour, and so shall confine myself to a few remarks. In accordance with this resolution, I shall merely content myself by remarking that in British Columbia, in common with other portions of Canada, have felt the disastrous result of labor strikes. The fact that Canadian labor organizations are sometimes affiliated with, and under the control of organizations in the United States in itself, as a menace which should be guarded against by legislation. We in British Columbia have recently by the aid of trade organizations coming from the United States to engineer the strikes on British soil. Where public utilities are concerned, such as the supply of water, light, power, transportation, mail or telegraph services, it is more particularly necessary that steps should be taken to protect public interests from any sudden interruption. It is right that labor unions should become financially responsible for any losses which may be caused by illegal acts (hear, hear)—and the incorporation and registration of those unions will greatly assist towards this end. I have much pleasure in seconding the resolution, as proposed by the London Chamber of Commerce." (Applause.)

Wanted Delay.

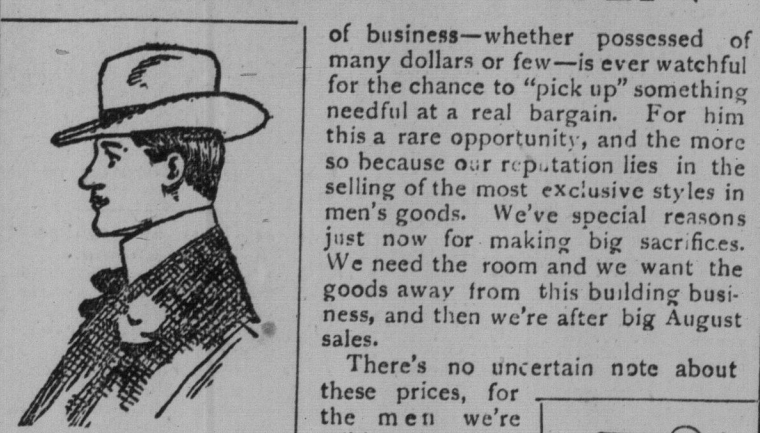

Mr. Hatheway (St. John, N.B., Board of Trade): "I might say almost in the words of the gentleman who has just spoken that some of these large industrial syndicates that were formed during the last three or four years have taken a large extent hurt the existing section of Canada and have been the Sir Sandford Fleming.

Sir Sandford Fleming had charge of the resolution regarding wireless telegraphy being added to the equipment of lighthouses and lightships. Owing to the pressure of time Sir Sandford merely moved the resolution, and it was seconded by Mr. Cockshutt of Toronto and carried unanimously. Commercial education engaged the attention of the congress. It was an important resolution regarding the efforts that ought to be put forward throughout the empire to encourage and furnish facilities for commercial education. Charles Lancaster of Liverpool introduced the resolution and made an appeal for a more thorough grounding of the young men of the empire in commercial education, so that they could be worthy sons of the "Nation of Shopkeepers."

B. Irving of Vancouver also appealed for thorough technical education, so that the rising generation could maintain the prestige of the empire for it was of the opinion that too much attention was paid to Latin and Greek in the system of modern education, and the average man who went out into life with the least possible debt of knowledge of the classics did not mean "bread and butter."

The Canadian bankruptcy law brought Major-General Laurier to feet in strong support of a bankruptcy bill being enacted in the Dominion with the least possible delay. The resolution, in his opinion, was also more gratifying as it was put on by a Canadian Board of Trade. The resolution carried amid cheers.

The congress then pointed upon the final resolution. It was in regard to the insertion by Canadian shipping companies of the London clause in bills of lading. In the twinkling of an eye the resolution was passed, and the end of the agenda paper was reached.

Then came the final scenes. The big hall had filled up gradually, and when Lord Brassey rose to move the motion of thanks there was a big crowd of delegates to greet him. "It was a delightful treat that he had to perform," said the general president. He moved that the congress express its warmest thanks to Lord Hodgson, the president of the Montreal Board of Trade, George E. Drummond, the vice-president, and Messrs. Hadfield and Brasse for his noble services on the chair, and when His Lordship rose to speak he was accorded a unique reception. The audience rose to its feet and "He's a Jolly Good Fellow" rang thru the hall.

The noble president of the congress was visibly affected. He began in low tones and expressed his appreciation of the way his services had been recognized. He had felt it an honor in the closing years of his life to be of some slight service to the empire, by filling the chair at that most important congress. Passing on to the next item, he said that the chair had been a privilege to the delegates for their unflinching loyalty and regard to the chair, a fact that had made his services much easier. The chairman resumed his seat amid intense enthusiasm. The packed hall and crowded gallery rose and the demonstration was unique in its enthusiastic significance, and adjourned singing the National Anthem.

TAKES HIS OWN MEDICINE.

St. John, N.B., Aug. 22.—Dr. William Fayard, the Nestor of the medical profession in St. John, celebrated his 90th birthday to-night. Many called to congratulate him and he received numerous valuable presents. Telegrams came from Canadian and United States friends and five congratulatory cables were received from England. Dr. Fayard has been more than sixty years a physician and is still in active practice and in excellent health.

BE YOUR OWN DOCTOR.

And instead of sending for the physician so often see that a bottle of the old family stand-by, Polson's Nervilles, is in the house. If the baby gets a cold, a few drops of Nervilles, and for your own stomach and bowel troubles Polson's Nervilles, too. You will find that more lasting in results than any other pain reliever. Don't fall to get Nervilles to-day. It will cure the pains and aches of the whole family and sits but 20c in any drug store.

A "Coup d'Etat" in Axminsters.

Great Special Underpriced Purchase of Absolutely New Axminsters from England.

It's hard to explain all the ins and outs of it. It is not a "job" line in any sense of the word. The Carpet is perfectly new and fresh from the famous Kidderminster mill, where it was woven, every yard of it, since the 1st of March. Nor is it a broken line, there being a full range of patterns and colors with borders and stair carpet to match. It's a case where the name of this store and the competition of the manufacturers for this store's business counts, and counts into a big saving for those whose new houses are to be ready for occupancy this fall.

This lets house-furnishers out of the slough of perplexity. It's Axminsters for both drawing-room and best bedroom—both. For at this price, why not? Luxury is economy. 3800 yards of Extra Quality English Axminster Carpet, some with border and stairs to match, 20 new patterns to select from, all made for this season's business, on sale Monday, per yard... 1.19 Please bring rough measurements.
