WHITE WOMEN MOURN AS NEGRO "HEALER" IS EXILED

Strange Darkey, Jailed and Driven From Evansville, Ind., Has Loyal Followers Who Say He Works Miracles

(Times Special Correspondent) Evansville, Ind., Feb. 10—There was a rattle of keys in the big steel, triple-locking doors of the jail of Vanderburg county, Indiana.

The click of the lock was the signal for fifty white women out in the jail yard to say "Amen!" in reverence.

The big doors swung open. Through them stepped briskly a medium-sized negro about forty welcomed by these fifty waiting white women as "Healer" Johnson.

Recently he raised his hands. "God be praised, dear sisters," he said in a monotone. They parted to make way for him, each hoping that he would brush the hem of their garments. So he walked to liberty, bound for Cleveland, O., where he says he will open a "temple."

He has been deported from the county of Vanderburg, state of Indiana. A stay-away order is against him.

Even as a slave girl in the family of Joel Ford of Adams county, Tenn., Melvina Johnson, his mother claimed to possess occult powers. She said she passed them to her son.

The two had a large following in Tennessee, but Johnson grew ambitious to expand. He came to Evansville. His power to heal was heralded by negro servants to their white mistresses and his fame went scurrying along the back yards and the front from door to door.

In his "temple" in Fulton avenue Johnson held his services, appointing with olive oil and saying mystic words and waving magic wands. His following grew alarmingly. The police arrested him.

He was rushed to the city jail. Behind him followed a score of white women crying that his arrest was an injustice.

Before City Judge Gould seventy-five white men and women appeared in his defence. One man held up a child.

"Why shouldn't I have faith in him? For twelve years I paid the doctors nearly all I made to treat my crippled child, and they didn't do any good; this colored man cured her, and he has charged me nothing."

"He cured me of consumption when three doctors said I would fall," a frail white woman said as she stepped before the judge.

"I could give you the names of hundreds of respectable white people he has healed," said the wife of a west-side business man.

The judge pondered. It was apparent that Johnson and his followers were sincere.

"It is true the constitution guarantees religious freedom, but I must fine you for promoting the mingling of races," said Judge Gould, with the memory of the awful riots of a few years ago still fresh in his mind.

So Johnson went to jail. But the white women followed him to the jail, too, with chickens baked, fried and stewed and made into pie. They brought him every delicacy. They clamored, begged, prayed to see him.

Inside he turned the "kangaroo court" into a revival meeting with daily sermons and "healing" demonstrations, until the sheriff stopped him.

In the day and a half he was in jail hundreds of women begged Judge Gould
