President of Austrian Chamber of Deputies Testing Electrical Machine

London, July 8—The president of the Austrian Chamber of Deputies has decided to make a trial of an electric voting machine for use in the house.

Each member will have two electric buttons on his desk, one marked "Pro" and the other "Contra." On the wall opposite the president's chair an indicator is fixed, consisting of 516 glass tablets, numbered 1 to 516. These tablets are normally dark, but when a vote is taken each shows either a white light, for "Pro," or a red light for "Contra."

Each member has a number corresponding to one on the board, and can therefor personally check the accuracy of his vote. An automatic apparatus counts the vote, and the totals are shown on another indicator. If names are required, they are shown on the glass tablets in either white or red letters. In case of a secret vote, the glass tablet indicator is switched off, and only the counting apparatus remains active.

The action to be taken on the petition protesting against the amendment to the city by-law limiting the construction of wooden buildings to two stories will probably be decided upon at a special meeting of the common council tomorrow. At yesterday's meeting of the common clerk reported that the petition complied with the requirements of the law and, under the referendum provision of the city charter, the commissioners must now either repeal the section to which objection is taken or else submit it to the electors at a special plebiscite. The course to be pursued has not yet been discussed by the commissioners but it is believed that they may decide to repeal the section for the present at least.

they may decide to repeal the section for the present at least.

At the special meeting tomorrow the bond issues for water and sewerage extensions will be voted on. Commissioner McLellan has been reported by the morning papers as refusing to vote for any further bond issues until the other members approve his demand for the open door but other commissioners said this morning that they did not believe that this was his meaning and that he would attempt to hold up bond issues on an irrelevant issue.

MORE COMPLAINTS AGAINST I. C. R. METHODS

Passengers Needlessly Delayed Nearly Two Hours at Moncton -A Frequent Occurrence

The number of complaints regarding

he management of the I. C. R. and the ack of attention to the convenience of lack of attention to the convenience of the patrons of the road are not growing fewer. When the train which comes from Point du Chene and connects with the Ocean Limited at Moncton arrived in the city last evening there were more than a score of persons whose indignation regarding the treatment they had received had not cooled off even after a three hours run from Moncton.

The cause for the complaint lay in the fact that they arrived from Prince Edward Island via Point du Chene, and reached Moncton in plenty of time to connect with the C. P. R. express, but were not notified of the fact and had no means of learning until after the C. P. R. had pulled out and they were condemned to a wait of an hour and forty minutes until their own train left.

Although the time of the arrival of this train at Moncton is dependant upon the time of the arrival of the island steamer and therefore does not always connect with the C. P. R., it frequently does so, and complaints to the same effect have been made frequently in the past. In the case of through passengers to connect with the C. P. R. west bound express from St. John it has been very irritating for passengers to learn that by walking across the platform at Moncton and taking another train they could have reached St. John in time to make connections and save themselves the wait of a whole day here.

It is recognized by the passengers that the railway is under no absolute obligation to advise them of such connections, but the opinion has frequently been expressed that it would be a simple matter for the officials to take this course in a case where it is of considerable importance to their patrons. the patrons of the road are not growing
