Language.—The following blunders in phraseology occur so frequently, that the ear is accustomed to them, and they pass unnoticed;

'I walked backwards and forwards.'

'He put on his shoes and stockings, then his coat and waistcoat, then his hat and wig.'

'She will come the latter end of the week.'

Mr. Bull meets Mr. Brown, and the following dialogue takes place:

'Ah! Mr. Brown, my worthy, how goes it?' 'Very well, I thank you, Bull.'

'How is Mrs. B.?' 'Indeed, sir,' replies Bull, 'I'm sorry to say she enjoys very bad health.'
