On Saturday afternoon, Aug. 1st, Peters with his horse and wagon boarded the ferry at Nelson with the intention of crossing over to Newcastle. It appears that the captain had had some difficulties with the Jew before on the ferry, and he accord-ingly asked him for his fare before leaving Nelson. The Jew offered the captain a ticket which he said a friend gave him. The captain took the ticket and tore it into pieces, saying that it was no good. He then ordered the Jew to pay or get off the ferry. The who arrived last night. Yesterday af-Jew refused, and the captain, without saying another word, walked ashore, got a birch cudgel, came back and used it freely over the Jew's head, neck and shoulders. The Jew, neverthe fresh breeze that was blowing and theless, did not get off the ferry until it reached Newcastle. J. E. Petrie of Baird & Peters, Jas. Maher, fireman, and two women were eye-witnesses to the affair. Mr. Petrie and the fireman were subpoenaed to give evidence, and the case came up for hearing last Thursday. As Mr. Petrie was un-avoidably absent after the taking of some evidence the case was adjourned until yesterday morning. But as the defendant's attorney could not then attend, it was further adjourned until Monday morning. R. T. D. Aitken appeared for Peters; C. J. Thompson the cat, nor what to call it. The name is the lesser trouble. Chief Officer Randall thought it would Capt. C. D. Robinson of St. John, and be a good thing to call the cat "Eureka," because they found it, but the name was too clumsy. Third officer Lingan suggested Scotch, cause it was black and white, but that would be more appropriate for a goat. Other names have similarly been invalidated. The main issue is what disposition to make of the stowaway. No seama will drive a cat off a ship, for it is a well-established fact that to do so is to invite certain shipwreck.

It is on record that a western ocean packet had all her light spars and sails blown away because the crew refused hopelessly to shorten sail after the cook had kicked a cat out of the galley into a sea which swept it over-away at either side so smartly mmetrically that one might think tall to lie in it at full length, but he the ends were waxed.
