ANOTHER LIGHTNING STORY.—The Recorder says that during the storm on Tuesday evening, an artilleryman named francis Mouck, who was going up Buck, ingham street, had reached the corner of Albermarle street, when he was struck and thrown across the street, through a window, and into the shop of Mr. M J. Power. He was, of course, very much frightened but not seriously hurt.
It is a great pity the Recorder did not specify the kind of "lightning" employed to operate so powerfully upon this poor soldier.
