CARDINAL RICHARD

Addresses a Letter to the President of

His Eminence, Cardinal Richard, Archbishop of Paris, has just recently addressed to the President of the Republic, a letter of dignified protest against the law which is to impose fresh burdens upon the religious congregations in France. The full text of the letter appeared in the columns of Le Monde of Thursday, October 3. After declaring that the law of April 16 had more than invited all the more tagget and the columns of the fenian that the law of April 16 had more than invited all the more tagget and the fenian that the law of April 16 had more than invited all the more tagget and the fenian that the law of April 16 had more than justified all the worst anticipations that had been formed of it, His Eminence proceeds to point out that it has come most linopportunely, at the very moment when there was a general movement in public opinion towards the laying aside of political differences for the ing aside of political differences for the sake of common effort in defense of reduction of 7s. 6d. in the pound. ligion and social order. Catholics, it is explained, are willing to take their part in the affairs of the Republic, but they cannot allow themselves to be made the victims of laws which are alike contrary to Christianity and to the Constitution. They demand no privileges—only equality and liberty under the law of the land. The exceptional measures which, during recent years, have been enacted against the religious orders have not been applauded or ratified by the national voice. Expelled from communal schools and banished from the hospitals, the religious have still had confided to their care the children of parents who could not pay, and the wounded in war. These facts are sufficient indication that no revolt of the religious congregations against the Government is to be expected even in the present instance.

"But, proceeds his Eminence, "after so many proofs of the devotion of the rethe influence of France, it is our duty and no less our right to demand that age of eighty-four years. they should not be thrust outside the ordinary law, and that the financial measures against them, instead of being aggravated in each succeeding budget, should be so changed as to insure them complete equality of taxation for the future." In spite of the attempts of the Masonic bodies to deprive her of her Christianity, France is still Christian, reduced rent. and it is her wish so to remain. In this war upon the Church, the multitude of dangers that beset the State from the menacing passions that are brewing in the minds of the masses, seems to be forgotten. The future of France is preprecious to the Cardinal; and he considers that in thus claiming justice for the religious orders he is advocating a policy which will make strongly for the restoration of internal peace, uniting and spurring, as it will, the loyalty of multitudes to labor even more carnestly than ever for the honor and prosperity of France. His Eminence concludes by declaring that he does not despair of his country, and by citing the last words of Cardinal Guibert to the President of the Republic: "We cannot resign ourselves to the thought that France will ever allow herself to be despoiled of the faith that has been her glory in the past, and that insured her a front rank among the nations of the world."-Western Watch-

When the reporter pointed out that he was in a position to let thousands know and probably be the means of giving them information that would lead to their recovery, he began to hesitate, and finally, he gave a brief account of the girl's remarkable restoration. He said :

" My niece is more like a daughter to me. She has been in my care since she was a child, and when she was taken sick a few months ago I was heart-broken. I works for her eternal peace and everlast-ing repose, cines made her worse instead of better, She laid in bed week afterweek, looking And be it resolved—That a copy of like a corpse, eating nothing, and apthese resolutions be forwarded to the parently wasting away in a mysterious Rev. I sent for a box Bourget College, Rigaud, P.Q., October and Cora took them in a mechanical kind of a way. Well, sir, when she had taken them four days a change came over her. She began to eat with a relish, and every day she seemed to gain fresh strength. She adhered faithfully to the directions, and took four boxes. By that Rev. Brother,-It is with much regret time the roses had returned to her cheeks that we heard yesterday of the affliction and she was a different looking girl. She discontinued taking the pills and later the same languid feeling began to creep over her, so she bought another box and "That is the whole story," added Mr. Ramsay. "There may not be much in it for others, but I believe these pills saved Cora's life, and while I am not anxious for publicity on her account, it may be that other sufferers will be benelitted by hearing of this remedy. I cannot speak too highly of Pink Pills. I recommend them to everyone I know, and I take them myself." Mr. Ramsay is one of the best known men in his neighborhood. He is the superintendent of the Sunday school of Concord Congregational church, and has the confidence of the entire community among which he lives. He has spent two years in business at his present location and his business has grown so much that he is about to remove to larger premises in the Douglas block on Bloor street, near Bathurst.

His statements as to the young girl's condition are amply corroborated by residents of the locality, and up that way there is a boom in Pink Pills.

Any sceptic who has the inclination to visit Mr. Ramsay will be courteously received, no doubt, and the circumstances frankly related. His gratitude for his niece's recovery leads him to make the most enthusiastic statements regarding the efficacy of the remedy that saved his girl's life.
