

CONTENTS.

CHAPTER.	PAGE.
III.—At the "Moss-Rock"	163
IV.—Showing that it is Highly Imprudent for Young Ladies to Talk in their Sleep..	169
V.—The Payment	178
VI.—In which Canolles Informs Walter that hav- ing Accomplished His Aim He is about to Leave Virginia Forever	186
VII.—Canolles and Harry Cartaret	192
VIII.—The Commission	196
IX.—A Reconnoissance Reconnoitred	202
X.—In which a Profane Acquaintance of the Reader Reappears upon the Scene ..	207
XI.—In which Col. Tarleton Lays His Hand Upon His Sword	211
XII.—The Portrait	218
XIII.—How Col. Tarleton Arrived Too Lat ..	222
XIV.—How Colonel Lord Ferriers Rode in an Unex- pected Direction, and with Whom He Supped	228
XV.—The Supper	237
XVI.—In Which Lord Ferriers Comes to the Point	243
XVII.—Henry Cartaret, of Chatsworth	248
XVIII.—What Had Taken Place in Congress	258
XIX.—How Col. Ferriers Proposed a Toast.. ..	263
XX.—The Rough Riders	269
XXI.—What Took Place on the Same Night ..	278
XXII.—At Glen Lodge.. .. .	285
XXIII.—Ten Minutes before Sunrise.. .. .	294
XXIV.—The Brothers	300
XXV.—The Sentence	303
XXVI.—The End of All	306