not take promises too seriously."

And then besides "what may have been convenient before the election is not convenient after the election. Therefore my promise is charged."

(Cries of Hear! Hear!)

Now, I turn to another portion of Jerry's speech, and this is the real article I have in my hand now. This is the whole speech. I just want to refer to a statement made by Jerry in this speech at page 12. Mr. McGeer says there (and he turned in doing this--he turned to Dr. King, who was sitting beside him) and he said:

"I ask Dr. King to bear witness to this. Did Mr. Stevens ever since Dr. King went to Ottawa move on the floor of the House that British Columbia should have equal freight rates? Never has he done it."

Well, let me see. In 1921, the year before Jerry appeared on the horizon (laughter) I introduced a bill into the House of Commons. Before stating what that bill was, let me say this--in the Railway Act which controls and governs the Railway Board in its fixation of rates, the word "discrimination" frequently appears, but it is always preceded in every case by a qualifying word, such as, "undue", "unreasonable" or "unfair", that is, it leaves to the Railway Board discretionary powers to determine whether a given discrimination is an unfair or an unreasonable or an unjust discrimination.
