

PAGE BLURRED /
PAGE BARBOUILLEE

3
C164573

This line of thinking is presumably based on a concept that primitive man -- roaming the forest -- was free to come and go -- in accordance with the dictates of his own impulse.

As he joined with his fellows in tribes and clans -- he submitted to certain limitations of his personal and individual freedom -- either by mutual consent of all members of the band -- or under the orders of a tribal council -- or a powerful chieftain.