

Since racial persecution came to curse the land of Beethoven and Goethe you have honoured yourselves and the high cause which you uphold by receiving into your midst one who belongs to the sainthood of science -- Professor Einstein. I am sure that you are content that Princeton should be gratefully remembered for the broad humanity of Wilson and for the patient search for truth and its triumphant discovery which have distinguished the life of Einstein.

And just because Wilson's humanity ^{and rational thinking} and Einstein's truth have been banished from many lands, the universities of this North American continent stand ^{more than ever} as the watch towers of human freedom.

For a university can only endure in a society where life is many-sided, and social purposes are not single but manifold. It must languish and die wherever human activity is subordinated to the glory of the state and the enhancement of its ^{material} power. For in such a society a university becomes a school where men learn only how to adapt art for the deification of a tyrant and ^{to} apply science for the tyranny of the state.
