

of Delcassé (June, 1905)—The Jury Court of the World— Analogy of Criminal Procedure—The Historical Antecedents Furnish a Prima Facie Case for Germany's Will for War—That is War as we Love it	PAGE 94-145
---	----------------

CHAPTER III

GERMANY AND THE HAGUE CONFERENCES

Those Guilty of the Past. Those Guilty of the Future—The First Hague Conference—Germany against Arbitration. White's Autobiography—International Commissions of Inquiry. "Good Services" and Mediation—Cour Permanente d'Arbitrage—The "Initiative" of the Hague Bureau—Professor Zorn and the Problems of The Hague —The Second Hague Conference—Obligatory Arbitra- tion, World Treaty or Individual Treaty?—Hague Cause, Triple Entente Effect—German Anti-Pacifism in Theory and Practice—Taft's Treaties of Arbitration—The Bryan Treaties—Idealism or Egotism?—Schiemann and the Hague Conferences—The "Freedom of the Seas"— Between the First and Second Hague Conferences—One "Block," not "Blocks" in Europe	146-209
---	---------

CHAPTER IV

ENGLISH PACIFISM IN WORD AND DEED

England's Action during the Bosnian Crisis and the Balkan Conflict—Bethmann's Reasons for Refusing the Confer- ence—The Russian Mobilisation as a Reason for Refusing the Conference—England's Behaviour during the Bosnian Crisis and the Balkan Conflicts—An Article in the Pester Lloyd , a new Self-accusation of Austria—A Falsification of the Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung —The Chancellor with the Iron Forehead	210-234
---	---------

CHAPTER V

THE ANGLO-GERMAN NEGOTIATIONS FOR AN UNDER-STANDING (1909-1912)

Course of the Negotiations—"A Couple of Dreadnoughts, More or Less"—Germany's Last Word: Retardation but not Reduction of Naval Construction—England's Neu- trality as an Equivalent—Why was Germany Unwilling to Restrict her Naval Armaments?—An Anglo-German Agreement would have prevented the War—Metternich's Reports of Feb.-March, 1912—Haldane—Voluntary Re- duction of Naval Construction; Naval Holiday	235-274
---	---------