

SIN'S WAGES IS DEATH

Dual Life of Chicago Couple Has Terrible Ending

Both Were Married but Loved Each
Other—Woman in Committed Suicide in Chicago Hotel.

Chicago, Oct. 20.—Grieving over the dual life she was lead with Dr. Orville Burnett, a Chicago dentist, Mrs. Charlotte Nichol, wife of W. L. Nichol, Jr., commercial agent of the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis railroad, committed suicide to-day in the Marlborough hotel. Burnett also tried to end his life at the same time but was unsuccessful. The two were found in their rooms, stretched across the bed, the woman dead and Burnett with his neck pierced with a hat pin, a bottle of morphine clutched in his hand and the gas turned on from each of the six jets in the suite. Dr. Burnett is still alive and has been arrested. In one of the rooms was found a note written by the woman, which told of her reason for the act.

To whom it may concern:—I did it because I loved him better than anything on earth and he loved me and we could not be separated. Good bye, Charlotte.

The note, supplemented by a statement by Dr. Burnett, tells of the tragedy. According to the dentist's story he met Mrs. Nichol while yet a young girl, in Nashville, Tenn., and fell in love with her. Burnett moved to Chicago and married several years later.

"Our love was still strong for each other," said Burnett, "and she moved to Chicago to be near me. We were together nearly every day. There seemed, however, to be a constant remorse on her part on account of the dual life she was leading. Saturday we went down town together and after having several drinks she proposed suicide to me and we went to the Marlborough hotel. She produced a bottle of morphine she had hidden in her dress. She again asked me to do with her and I consented. Then she swallowed nearly all the contents of the bottle and handed it to me. I drank what was left, but believing that I had not taken enough to prove fatal I tried to end my life by sticking the hat pin into my neck. I saw this also was going to be a failure so I turned all the gas on and laid down to die."

Burnett stated that his wife knew nothing of his attachment for Mrs. Nichol.

A policeman who was sent to the Nichol home tonight to notify Mr. Nichol of the tragedy found no one there but two little children of the dead woman, one a boy of 8 and the other a little girl of 4. They told the policeman that their father was looking for their mother who had been missing all night and to-day.

A Fine Retort.
The Duchess of Cleveland, the mother of Lord Rosebery, whose "Rolls of Battle Abbey," published in three volumes, occupied her for many years, was very fond of the historic pile. The story is told that she was one day at the house of an American millionaire, who, pointing to his palatial staircase, remarked, "I venture to think, Your Grace, that even Battle Abbey cannot show a finer staircase than this." "Oh, no," answered the Duchess of Cleveland, "the Battle Abbey stairs are very shabby. You see, those old crusaders wore them out so dreadfully."

Scotch Heart of Heart.
On one occasion the late Chief Justice Russell went into the English provinces to help the Liberals in a certain campaign. He began his speech of set purpose with some very badly pronounced Scotch. After the confusion caused by his apparent blunder had subsided, Sir Charles Russell (as he was then) said: "Gentlemen, I do not speak Scotch, but I vote Scotch." Tremendous applause followed, whereupon Sir Charles proceeded: "and I sometimes drink Scotch." With this, his hold on the audience was secure. — Argonaut.

Killed at Mahlabattin.
It has transpired that one of the gallant sergeants of the Natal police who was killed in the Boer attack on Mahlabattin, when a small garrison of about 20 beat off 500 Boers, was Mr. Nigel Locke of Sittingbourne, Kent, information of his death having just been received by his relatives there. He was the son of the late Mr. Frederick Locke, D. L., J. P., and was brother-in-law to Major-General Pretymann, now Military Governor of Bloemfontein. He was well known on Kent cricket and football fields.

Barry Pain "Rediscovered."
A London editor who was much struck by an unsigned article in a Cambridge magazine wrote to the editor and asked for the author's name, as he was "anxious to encourage rising talent." The editor wrote back to say that it was talent which had already risen, for the writer was Barry Pain. "I'm used to being discovered," was the remark attributed to Mr. Pain when he heard of the incident. It is rumored now that Mr. Pain is writing a play.

Willcocks of Kumasi.
It seems that in service circles there is much surprise that, although for the relief of Kumasi Sir James Willcocks was awarded a K.C.M.G. and a long-overdue brevet-colonelcy, he has received no recognition whatever of his conduct of the important and very arduous campaign which began only after Kumasi had been relieved and ended with the battle of Oshana, when the Ashantis were completely and finally defeated.

"Badly Crippled."

Rheumatism at its worst is a sort of living death. It chains a man to a chair or binds him to a bed, and metes out to him a daily martyrdom. At the best it is a painful malady, interfering with pleasure and business.

To cure rheumatism it is necessary to eliminate from the blood the acid poisons which are the cause of the disease. This is effectually done by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It carries out of the blood the corrupt and poisonous accumulations which breed disease. It increases the activity of the blood-making glands and sends an increased supply of rich, pure blood through every vein and artery to strengthen every organ of the body.

"I had been troubled with rheumatism for twelve years, so bad at times I could not leave my bed," writes Mr. R. J. McKnight, of Cadiz, Williamsburg, Va. "I was badly crippled. Tried many doctors and two of them gave me up to die. None of them did me much good. The pains in my back, hips and legs, and at times in my head, would nearly kill me. My appetite was very bad. Every body who saw me said I must die. I took five bottles of the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and four vials of 'Pellies,' and to-day my health is good after suffering twelve years with rheumatism."

Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are powerful aids to the cleansing of the clogged system. By all dealers in medicine.

The Vegetarians Hold High Carnival at London—The Dinner Honorably Described by a Meat-Eating Reporter.

On Tuesday night the health of the King was drunk by Mr. Arnold F. Hills, and some hundred and fifty loyal vegetarians in the best lemonade, says The London Graphic. The occasion, the joyful occasion, was the annual dinner which is held by thoughtful vegetarians at the Vegetarian restaurant in Victoria street, and the toast followed a meal which raised enthusiasm and loyalty in vegetarian bosoms to the highest pitch. It began with olives and radishes, and continued with vegetable consommé and mock turtle, which was so frankly impossible that no one could accuse it of falsity. The entrees which raised delusive hopes in the minds of some rather silent representatives of the press who attended the dinner, included mushroom patties and carous croquettes, with tomato sauce. After the entrees came the "pieces de resistance," and hope in unregenerate bosoms rose high. Alas! the "roasts" consisted of asparagus with mousseline sauce and straw potatoes. The vegetarians were happy, but carnivorous pressmen found their feelings too deep for words. Their despondency increased when the dinner at this point suddenly swung on to the sweets—with nothing to break the fall. The sweets were savories of fruit, bees, and Windsor wafers. Cheese, souffles and fruit wound it all up with startling suddenness. It was all very beautiful, dreamy and ethereal, but a few hungry men, thinking in a calm way of chops and steaks, were reminded of that famous message sent out by Major Baillie from beleaguered Mafeking on the 100th day of the siege—"There is an aching void. Pass the loaf!" But the vegetarians were quite happy. Unlike the poet, they were not too full for sound or foam, and they were still enthusiastically speaking when The Daily Graphic regretfully sought another restaurant.

The Cow Parlor of Holland.
There is no need of telling you that the Dutch cows are kept clean. No wonder the people of Holland have black and white cows. They must have something white for a standard of cleanliness. At the time of our visit in midsummer, the place where the cows had stood the winter before was as clean as any parlor. The walls had been scoured and painted; the floor had been scrubbed and scrubbed and finally covered with pure white sea sand beautifully smoothed.

Then this smooth sand was made more interesting by the sticking of figures in it with sticks as a child does when it plays on the seashore. In some houses hundreds of sea shells were used for decorating sand-stable floors.

The matting drop was covered with either rattan matting or rattan and ingrain carpet. In some places the family, instead of using the living rooms in summer, were dwelling in the cow stable, the dining table standing on the platform where the cows had stood.

The better class of farmers in North Holland have gas machines and cook with gas, and use it for illuminating purposes. In the higher grade of houses the windows are often of plate glass, the furniture solid mahogany, and silver plate and fine china are in evidence.

The cows are members of the family, and the choicest pets. When we went to the field to inspect them, the whole family accompanied us, father, wife, sons and daughters. We found the animals remarkably docile and as fond of being caressed as the average house dog.

Let those who turn up their noses at the practical Dutch farmers for keeping useful cows in their houses, remember that we have with us leucophaea, many dogs, diphtheria, breeding cats, besides birds of various kinds in cruel captivity. The return per cow with good farmers in Holland is about $80 each.—From a recent lecture by Prof. W. A. Henry.

Virtues of the Onion.
It is with the onion as with the lemon. Its devotees regard it as a panacea for a good many ills and as a preventive of many of the disorders to which flesh is heir.

The onion is really a very ordinary vegetable, but there is one point which distinguishes it, and that is the somewhat high percentage of sulphur it contains. Possibly the virtues ascribed to it depend on the presence of this element.

Like the lemon, the onion may lay claim to antiscorbutic properties—that is, to qualities which render it a preventive of scurvy. Its mineral constituents include a proportion of potash salts, and probably its antiscorbutic qualities depend upon these latter compounds.

The onion is doubtless a healthful enough vegetable, but its supposed sleep-producing powers are said to be mythical, although very many people vouch for them. The virtue of onion juice as a remedy for the stings and wasp attacks is conceded. In the cottager's repertoire of "first-aid" expedients, onion juice, rubbed on the sting, represents the ammonia of a more advanced stage of domestic medicine.

Robert Louis Stevenson's Prayer.
A Canadian list of well-known publishers have issued in a neat form, suitable for hanging on an office wall, Robert Louis Stevenson's prayer, a prayer so suited to the necessities of the average man of affairs that we offer no apology for reproducing its few strong eloquent sentences: "The day returns and brings us the petty round of irritating concerns and duties. Help us to play the man; help us to perform them with laughter and kind faces; let cheerfulness abound with industry. Give us to go blithely on our business all this day; bring us to our resting beds weary and content and undisturbed, and grant us in the end the gift of sleep. Amen."
