

No. 23.

Mr. Hugh P. Ray.

President of the Undergraduate Society of Applied Science.

Mr. Ray asks you to believe that he was born in Montreal and is still at heart a Montrealer, although by a cruel fate he was removed to Westmount at the early age of one. However, he had a healthy constitution and as other great men had done, set himself to overcome the disadvantages of environment and make a name for himself.

His early education took place at the Westmount Academy, but in spite of this, when he left that institute in 1897 he commenced his fight with the world well equipped.

He was for some years in the employ of the Northern Electric Co., and after that went on a voyage of exploration out West. No, he assures us, he never rode in a side-door Pullman.

Of his life in the "wild and woolly" he is reticent, only telling us that it was there that he learned to make bread and cook generally. You're wrong again; it was a N.W.M. Cop that taught him.
