The Course of Empire. The following stanzes of Bishop Berkeley are little known, yet contain two of the most oft-quoted lines in our language:

The muse, disgusted at an age and clime Barren of every glorious theme, In distant land now waits a better time, Producing subjects worthy fame.

In happy climes, where from the genial sun And virgin earth such scenes ensue, The force of art by nature seems undone, And fancied beauties by the true.

In happy climes, the seat of innocence, ere nature guides and virtue rules, Where men shall not impose, for truth and sen The pedantry of courts and schools,

There shall be sung another golden age,
The rise of empire and of arts;
The good and great, inspiring epic page.
The wisest heads and noblest hearts.

Not such as Europe breeds in her decay; Such as she bred when fresh and young; When heavenly flame did animate her clay, By future poets shall be sung.

Westward the course of empire takes i The four first acts already past, The fifth shall close the drama with the Time's noblest offspring is the last.

Lord Brougham on Newton.

Lord Brougham pronounced an oration at not walk. He had sat so long in bed, with the recent inauguration of a statue of Isaac legs bent on his thighs, that the knees, had Newton, at Grantham, England. After become as inflexible as iron. passing in review the successive discoveries of Newton, and pointing out their relations two, brother and the sister, dwelt in misery to the investigations of others, he concluded together; and together might have rotted surmounting them, exercise the faculties of the wise while commanding their admira-

well-considered and well-informed judgment of the masters of science. Leibniz, when asked at the royal table in Berlin his opinion of Newton, said that, 'taking mathemathe time when Newton lived, what he had done was much the better half.' 'The Principle will ever remain a monument of was one of the first who pointed out the done was much the better half.' 'The was one of the first who pointed out the profound genuis which revealed to us the greatest laws of the universe,' are the computed. But neither his abilities nor his was one of the first work stands prewords of Laplace. 'That work stands preeminent above all the other productions of knowledge could protect him against the the human mind.' 'The discovery of that spirit of his age. In 1524 he published the simple and general law, by the greatness and the variety of the objects which it embraces, confers honor upon the intellect of man.' Lagrange, we are told by D'Alembert, was wont to describe Newton as the greatest genuis that ever existed, but to add how fortunate he was also, ' because there can only once be found a system of the universe to establish." 'Never,' says the father of the Institute of France—one filling a high place among the most eminent of its members-'never,' says M. Biot, 'was the supremacy of intellect so justly established and so fully confessed. In mathematical and in experimental science without an equal and without an example, combining the genius for both in its highest degree. The Principia he terms the greatest work ever produced by the mind of man, adding, in the words of Halley, 'that a nearer approach to the Divine nature has not been permitted to mortals.' 'In first giving to the world Newton's method of fluxious,' says Fontenelle, 'Leibnitz did like Promatheus-he stole fire from heaven to bestow it upon men.' 'Does Newton,' L'Hôpital asked, 'sleep and wake like other men? I figure him to myself as a celestial genuis, entirely disengaged from matter.' renowned a benefactor of the world, thus exalted to the loftiest place by the common consent of all men-one whose life, without the intermission of an hour, was passed ant, and at whose hands the human race ent proposals which were made and rejecthad only received good, never evil—no memorial has been raised by those nations which erected statues to the tyrants and carried into effect with great zeal, and is which erected statues to the tyrants and conquerors, the scourges of mankind, whose very characteristic of the age. The inhabitants regret, deemed the day lost that saw the sun go down upon their forbearance—no victim deceived, or betrayed, or oppressed. That the worshippers of such pestilent genius continue their race, and repeople the earth should consecrate to the memory of the after the waters should have subsided, and most illustrious of men no outward symbol of the admiration they freely confessed, is not matter of wonder. The Life long Lunatic. On Friday, May 29, 1857, the following statement was made in the British House of Commons, by Mr. Ellice: "In an unfrequented part of Rosshire, Scotland, was found a house, four and a half feet high, with walls of turf, two and a half feet thick, thatched with heather, but admitting rain in several places. The room was nine feet by seven, with a dirty floor. There was no window and no fireplace. There was no turniture, but a bed of boards two feet from the ground. On these boards some loose moss was scattered, and on this sat a man, wrapped in a piece of blanket, old and dirty, with two pieces of old bed cover, -all his clothing; these were washed once a fortnight; two pieces of blanketing supplied their places, meanwhile. To that bed this man had been chained for thirty years, and had left it. The chain was two and a half feet-one end around his ankle, the other attached to a staple in the bed. His food consisted of potatoes, ostmeal, herrings, and molasses. He was sixty-eight years old and had been insane forty years. He clips his beard with a pair of scissors, once or twice a month, and never washes, except his face, once or twice a year. His only attendant was an old woman of seventy years, who lived in the other end of the miserable hut-this poor woman was his sister, almost as poor as himself. He was helpless. He could

An Anticipated Deluge.

At the end of the fifteenth, and early in the sixteenth century, Stæffer, the celebrated astronomer, was Professor of Matheresult of some abstruse calculations, in which he had been long engaged, and by which he had ascertained the remarkable fact that in that same year the world would again be destroyed by a deluge. This announcement, made by a man of such eminence, and made, too, with the utmost confidence, caused a lively and universal alarm. News of the approaching event was rapidly circulated, and Europe was filled with conwho had houses by the sea, or on rivers, For Invalids and Infants, which saves fifty

In the midst of these and similar schemes, the fatal day adrew near, and nothing had yet been contrived on a scale large enough to meet the evil. To enumerate the differprofessor of canon law at the University of Toulouse, revolved in his own mind various

The following remedies are offered to the public as the best, most perfect, which medical science can afford. AFE'S CATHALTIC PILLS have been prepared with the utmost skill which the medical profession of this age possesses, and their effects show they have virtues which surpass any combination of medicines hitherto known. Other preparations do more or less good; but this cures such dangerous complaints, so quick and so surely, as to prove an efficacy and a power to uproof disease beyond any thing which men have known before. By removing the obstructions of the internal organs and stimulating them into healthy action, they renovate the fountains of life and vigor,—health courses anew through the body, and the sick man is well again. They are adapted to disease, and disease only, for when taken by one in health they produce, but little effect. This is the perfection of medicine. It is antagonistic to disease, and no more. Tender children may take them with impunity. If they are sick they will cure them, if they are well they will do them no harm.

Give them to some patient who has been prostrated with bilious complaint: see his bent-up, totering form straighten with strength again; see his long-lost appetite return; see his clammy features blossom into health. Give them to some sufferer whose foul blood has burst out in scrofula till his skin is covered with sores; who stands, or sits, or lies in anguish. He has been drenched inside and long-lost appetite return; see his clammy features blossom into health. Give them to some sufferer whose foul blood has burst out in scrofula till his skin is covered with sores; who stands, or sits, or lies in anguish. He has been drenched inside and out with every potion which ingenuity could suggest. Give him these PILLs, and mark the effect; see the scabs fall from his body; see the new, fair skin that has grown under them; see the late leper that is clean. Give them to him whose angry humors have planted rheumatism in his joints and bones; move him, and he screeches with pain; he too has been soaked through every muscle of his body with liniments and salves; give him these PILLs to purify his blood; they may not cure him, for, alas! there are cases which no mortal power can reach; but mark, he walks with crutches now, and now he walks alone; they have cured him. Give them to the lean, soff; haggard dyspeptic, whose gnawing stomach has long ago caten every smile from his face and every muscle from his body. See his appetite return, and with it his health; see the new man. See her that was radiant with health and loveliness blasted and too early withering away; want of exercise or mental anguish, or some lurking disease, has deranged the internal organs of digestion, assimilation or secretion, till they do their office ill. Her blood is vitiated, her health is gone. Give her these PILLs to stimulate the vital principle into renewed vigor, to cast out the obstructions, and infuse a new vitality into the blood. Now look again — the roses blossom on her check, and where lately sorrow sat joy bursts from every feature. See the sweet infant wasted with worms. Its wan, sickly features tell you without disguise, and painfully distinct, that they are eating its life away. Its pinched-up nose and ears, and restless sleepings, tell the dreadful truth in language which every mother knows. Give it the PILLs in large dones to sweep these vile parasites from the body. Now turn sgain and see the ruddy bloom of childhood. I

Have you the less serious symptoms of these distempers, they are the easier cured. Jaundice, Costiveness, Headache, Sideache, Heartburn, Foul Stomach, Nausea, Pain in the Bowels, Flatulency, Loss of Appetite, King's Evil, Neuralgia, Gout, and kindred complaints all arise from the derangements which these Pills rapidly cure. Take them perseveringly, and under the counsel of a good Physician if you can; if not, take them judiciously by such advice as we give you, and the distressing, dangerous diseases they cure, which afflict so many millions of the human race, are cast out like the devils of old—they must burrow in the brutes and in the sea. Price 25 cents per box—5 boxes for $1.

Through a trial of many years and through every nation of civilized men, Ayen's Cherry Pectoral. has been found to afford more relief and to cure more cases of pulmonary disease than any other remedy known to mankind. Cases of apparently settled consumption have been cured by it, and thousands of sufferers who were deemed beyond the successors to make further progress. How unlike the blind devotion to a master which for so many ages of the modern world paraged the energies of the human mind!

"Had we still paid that homage to a name Which only God and nature justly claim, And poets still might dream the sun was drowned, And all the stars that shine is southern skies. Had been admired by none but savage eyes.

Nor let it be imagined that the feelings of wonder excited by contemplating the solvements of this great man are in any degree whatever the result of national partiality, and confined to the country which glories in having given him birth. The equalled, perhaps exceeded, by that in which other nations give utterance to their the modern of the poor and wretched merely by the general voice, and by the which would have ripened into a dreadful harvest of incurable diseases. Influenza, Croup, Bronchitis, Hoarseness, Pleurisy, Whooping Cough, and all irritations of the throat and lungs are easily cured by the CHERLY PECTORAL if taken in season. Every family should have it by them, and they will find it an invaluable protection from the insidious prowder which carries off the parent sheep from many a flock, the darling lamb from many a horse.

who had houses by the sea, or on rivers, abandoned them; while others, perceiving that such measures could only be temporary, adopted more active precautions. It was suggested that, as a preliminary step, the Emperor Charles V. should appoint inspectors to survey the country, and mark those places which, being least exposed to the coming flood, would be most likely to efford a shelter. That this should be done was the wish of the imperial general, who was then stationed at Florence, and by whose desire a work was written recommending it.

But the minds of men were too distracted for so delibarate a plan; and besides, as the height of the flood ws uncertain, it was impossible to say whether it would not reach to the top of the most elevated mountains. In the midst of these and similar schemes, Phor. Woon.—About two years ago my hair commenced falling off and turning gray; I was fast becoming baid, and had tried many remedies to no effect. I commenced using your Restorative in January last. A few applications instened my hair firmly. It began to fill up, grow out, and turned back to its former color, (black) At this time it is fully restored to its original color, health and appearance, and I cheerfully recommend its use to all.
