Peace Must Be Fundamentally Just.

The war is really over, and now the question of peace terms is being everywhere discussed. The British election will be on Dec. 14th, and it does not seem possible to hold a peace conference before that time; but already the matter is being freely canvassed, and certain broad outlines are generally accepted as an assured basis. So far as possible the smaller nationalities will be assured the right to determine their own form of government, and this will mean the formation of a new Polish State, including all the territory now inhabited mainly by Polish people. It will mean that Alsace and Lorraine will be again incorporated into France; that Italy will take over Trieste and the Trentino; that a Jugoslav State will be formed; that Roumania will include Transylvania and Bessarabia; and that the Turk will disappear from Europe. Russia will be allowed to work out her own destiny, and Armenia, Arabia, Syria and Palestine will probably be allowed local self government under the protection of the British, or United States, or French flag. The German colonies will not be returned. The Hon. Lloyd George pleads for a peace which shall be fundamentally just, and this alone would bar Germany from regaining the colonies, which formerly she used so ill. But one of the sorest questions which Germany will be that of reparation. The New York Times, discussing this, declares that Germany must be prepared to take her own medicine. Only last June, in the Prussian House of Lords, the demands of Germany upon the Allies were detailed, and they included, along with much territory, an indemnity of $45,000,000,000; and this, the Times argues, is the least that Germany should be requested to pay. In answer to the plea that Germany cannot do this and pay her own people, the Times insists that this is a prior claim and must be settled first. The debt which Germany incurred in making the war must not take precedence over the debt which she owes to the nations whom she so grievously wronged. These are matters which should be settled, not by prejudice nor racial antipathy, but by cool and reasoned justice, not unmixed with mercy.

"Spec" and "Dot" Shular left on Wednesday morning for a trip, accompanied by Constable Duke. "Spec" goes to the Industrial school at Mimico, and "Dot," who is too old for that institution, goes to Walkerton for trial by the judge. The sigh which will go up at the departure of this precious pair from our midst will be one of satisfaction on the part of our citizens generally. "They toil not" neither do they spin," does not apply in this case for they were a pretty busy pair, and someone usually suffered as a result of their activities. Peck's Bad Boy would be awarded a good conduct medal in comparison with these two. The cause of their departure from our midst was the result of an appearance last Tuesday forenoon before Justice of the Peace. Andrew McIntosh for recent misdemeanors, and the general hope is that they may never come back.—Southampton Beacon.

Mrs. Florence Schanhardt, a Kinardine woman, was lodged in the County goal this week on a charge of attempting suicide. While she was a patient at the Kinardine Hospital suffering from nephritis, it is charged that she stole down to the lake and attempted to drown herself. Her trial is down for the Fall Assizes on the 26th.

To Avoid and Relieve Influenza

BY DR. FRANKLIN DUANE.

Many people have been frightened by what they have read or heard of influenza. The more you fear the disease, the surer you are to get it. Go right about your business and forget it. As the disease is spread principally by contact thru sneezing, coughing or spitting, many health authorities have advised that everyone wear a gauze, which is daily washed and saturated with a one to five hundred solution of zinc sulphate in water, and then dried before wearing over the nose and mouth. You should avoid crowds, common drinking cups and public towels. Keep your strength up by taking lots of exercise in the open air and plenty of nourishing food. If you have any of such symptoms as chilliness, nasal obstructions, flushed face, headache, feverishness, restlessness, weakness, or irritating cough, give up work at once and go to bed. This will save your strength to help overcome the disease. Put your feet in hot water for fifteen minutes. Thoroughly loosen the bowels with some such mild and non-irritating physic as Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. Drink principally of hot lemonade and then cover up with plenty of clothes in bed so as to get a good sweat. When sweating is free and the fever reduced take a dose of two Anuric Tablets every four hours, followed by drinking at least a glass or two of hot water. Anuric Tablets help quickly to relieve the soreness of the muscles and bones from which most patients complain and help the kidneys flush out the poisons.

To relieve nasal obstructions and excessive discharge from the nose, probably nothing is better than such a mild, soothing, antiseptic wash as Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. It will give great relief. Employed as a gargle, in same strength as made up for use in the nose, and as hot as can be borne, it quickly arrests soreness and dryness in the throat. Influenza weakens the patient's resistance to disease, so that there is danger of bronchitis and pneumonia developing. To combat this tendency and fortify the patient's strength insist that he keep in bed at least two days. Probably nothing will at this stage hasten the recovery and strengthen the patient more than an iron tonic tablet called "Ironite" or that well known herbal tonic, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which has been used by thousands in the past two generations.

Frank Rennie Protests.

The following letter was written by Mr. Frank Rennie of Brant to the Walkerton papers:—

Walkerton, Nov. 19th, 1918.

The Peace Celebration had some regrettable features. We have so often heard from over the footlights at the Town Hall from men with tears in their eyes saying how we must make way for our returned hero boys. They must have first place in first things. Did those men keep faith with that oft repeated vow, did they see that those hero boys have first place in that monster parade? No, not they. Not one returned soldier in that parade proper, no father, mother, brother or sister of our gallant immortal dead was there to whom we owe more than to the living. But the path was made clear at the close of the parade for some of the most daring and high handed vandalism that men could possibly conceive of.

The first raid took place at the home of Mr. Stade, who is just recovering from an attack of typhoid fever. He was grabbed, jostled about and thrown to the ground. At this juncture a soldier son came running from the field and defied further interference with his father and they left without their prey. There were four others in the Stadel neighborhood rounded up and brought to the Town Hall and judgment passed according to the dictates of their would-be captors.

Mr. Radel of the South Line, whose wife has two brothers at the front and one seriously wounded, was taken almost from the funeral procession of a neighbor and put through some humiliating exercises.

Then to the home of Mr. Seegmiller a howling mob, about eight or ten in number, had the audacity to enter the home of that old couple, who are in their seventies, and compel the old man to accompany their gang down town amidst jeers.

Next an entrance was effected into the home of Mr. Wm. Webber at three o'clock in the morning. Rushing upstairs and into the sleeping apartments of that quiet and respectable home and with hand uplifted the ring-leader said, "I am armed with authority to take you." Mr. Webber, like David of old, was too many for that great Goliath, who, with his party was forced to leave without the fulfillment of their mission, but left behind them such a train of blasphemy as never was heard in that locality before. The scanty and respectability of the Webber home needs no comment. During the stay of the 160th in Walkerton an epidemic of measles broke out amongst the soldiers. Mr. and Mrs. Webber threw open their spacious home for the sick boys. There were about seventy-five in all located at that home. When the boys got well Mrs. Webber was made the recipient of many gifts for her exceedingly kind hospitality during their illness. Nothing but words of praise on all sides from the boys for Mr. and Mrs. Webber. That the Mayor and Chief Magistrates of the town who must or should have known could stand by and wink at such high-handed vandalism as was carried on at the Webber home is beyond comprehension.

Perhaps the most malicious invasion of all was perpetrated at the home of Mr. John Bell in the township of Carleton Place where that home was attacked in furious fashion, three raids in all. The first raid took place at mid-night and the prey in this was Mr. Gress, who was at the Bell home visiting his sister, Mrs. Bell, who has been ill and confined to her room for some time. However, the raid was not successful this time. The raiders left for town, soon to return again with half a dozen cars loaded with an infuriated mob who walked right into the house, which was in darkness and no one in the house but two young girls and the sick mother. It was then that the dastardly work was done, frenzied men ransacking the house from room to room. Then Mr. Bell and the young man that works for him, who had gone home with Mr. Gress, appeared on the scene and undertook to defend their home, and in the malee the young girls were pushed aside, furniture knocked about and the phone torn from its moorings. I would not dare mention some of the things that took place here, but no doubt they will be aired through another channel.

Some of the participants are now hanging their heads with shame, cursing their luck and blaming the drink, saying "When whiskey is in, wit is out." How such an infraction of the Liquor Law, extending over a period of thirty hours could take place right under the nose of Inspector White unheeded, calls for an immediate thorough investigation.

The Daughters of the Empire, who had become disgusted with the rowdism that was being carried on, drew up a resolution asking the men to kindly stop. With all there was still a spark of common decency among that crowd. One of them spoke up and said "Boys we had better stop," and they did. Thanks to Daughters of the Empire that through their instrumentality for thus bringing to a close assuredly the most disgraceful scenes ever enacted in the historic old County of Bruce.

FRANK RENNIE.

Walkerton, Nov. 21st, 1918.

High Prices For Years Says Armour.

J. Ogden Armour, of Chicago, made this statement the other day, on the outlook for food costs:

"I do not think food prices will decline much for four years. Provisions may not go any higher, but at the same time they are not likely to decline much for some time to come. There will be a big trade for the next four years. It is fortunate that we have good stocks as Europe will need a lot. It looks to me as though prices for grains will not recede rapidly and the same applies to many other things and it will be some years before values get down to the normal."

Sent Up for Trial.

William Stanley, who was arraigned before Magistrate Jas. Tolton in Walkerton on Monday afternoon on a charge of smashing twenty-nine pails of glass with a long club in the home of Alex. McDermid, who lives across the road from Stanley, in the village of Kinloss, was sent up for trial, and was granted his liberty on furnishing bail of $500. McDermid, who places the amount of his damage at $23.00, sprang out of bed on hearing the crash of glass, which occurred near midnight on Friday, Nov. 8th, and claims to have followed the intruder who, he alleges ran into Stanley's home and who after entering the house struck a match to see his way, and enabled McDermid to identify him through the window. The lad's mother and three sisters swore that the accused was in bed at the time he is charged with pulling off the crime. Sam Braden, general merchant of Kinloss, and Frank Baechler, sawmiller, there, also gave evidence as to the probable cost to repair the damage done, and which was considerably below the figure set by McDermid, the latter of whom, however, maintained he got his estimate for the glass, etc., from the two hardware merchants in Lucknow.—Herald & Times.

Potted a Bear.

A Walkerton hunter, who arrived back from the chase last Saturday, startled the natives by bringing home, in addition to two fine carcasses of venison, a huge black bear. That it was a subject of frightfulness in its haunts north of Sundridge, where it was shot, was borne out by the scare a companion of the Walkertonian got, when he suddenly espied it near its cave in the mountain. Yelling like an Apache Indian and beating it down the mountain like a jack-rabbit before a prairie fire, he rushed towards our townsmen and breathlessly announced the find. He expected the local nind to follow him on the wild stampede home, but when the latter asked him "why he didn't shoot it?" he ceased spurring and came back to parley. He was finally persuaded to lead our townsmen back towards the bear. A collie dog, which was the first on this occasion to see bruin, gave a yelp and struck for home. A hound, however, showed more spirit, and grappled with the monster, which was threatening to make short work of the dog, when the Walkertonian pulled on his bearship and with two well placed shots, which penetrated its neck, laid it out like a fur mat at the door of its own cave. On arriving in Walkerton it was donated to the I.O.D.E., who will serve bear steak on the menu Friday.—Herald & Times.

Cost of Living Upwards.

During October, the last full month of the war period, the cost of living in Canada was still ascending, according to figures compiled by the Labor Department. This statement applies both to the index number of wholesale prices, which rose approximately four points as compared with September, and the weekly budget of staple foods. This budget averaged $13.54 in some 60 cities, as compared with $13.31 in September and $11.81 in October, 1917. The retail price of meats was slightly lower than in September, but eggs, milk and butter were higher. The department reports that the loss of time on account of industrial disputes amounted to 65,969 working days. This was less than in September, but greater than in October, 1917. The percentage of unemployment among trade unions was less than 1 per cent. on October 1, but this condition was disturbed by the influenza epidemic.

The death of Mr. Adam Scott of Howick, near Lakelet, on Monday, was sudden. He had a week or so before suffered with an attack of influenza but recovered and had gone to Mildmay, cider mill with apples. On account of the mill being rushed and unable to fill his order that day, he remained at Mildmay, taking a chill during the night. Upon returning home he was again affected with a chill which developed into a relapse of influenza, followed by pneumonia, and inside of a week he succumbed. He was about 38 years of age. His widow and a child a few weeks old also contracted the disease and were at last accounts quite seriously ill.—Clifford Express.

MARY POMEROY, Administratrix.

With the advent of peace it will relieve the suspense of many people in Canada to know that the casualty lists often weeks behind, are tapering off to the end.

The Military Service Act has not yet been officially suspended, said Colonel Machin, director of Military Service Council. It is expected, however, that the act will be suspended immediately. In the meantime it is not being enforced and is virtually in suspense. The Military Service Council held a conference with the military authorities last week. While no orders have been issued, it will no longer be necessary to carry marriage certificates and registration cards.

Do not throw away frozen potatoes. An American Chemical Society bulletin says if they are kept frozen until they are used they will be just as wholesome, nutritious and palatable as if they had not been frozen at all. It is only when prematurely thawed that they are spoiled. It would be difficult to estimate the waste caused by the mistaken belief that potatoes are unfit for food because they have been frozen.

A man was arrested on the charge of robbing another of his watch and chain. It was said he had thrown a bag over his victim's head, strangled and robbed him. There was so little evidence, however, that the judge quickly said:

"Discharged!"

The prisoner stood still in the dock, amazed at being given his freedom so soon.

"You're discharged," repeated the judge. "You can go. You are free."

Still no word from the prisoner, who stood staring at the judge.

"Don't you understand? You have been acquitted. Get out!" shouted the judge.

"Well," stammered the man, "do I have to give him back his watch and chain?"

The situation was embarrassing, to say the least of it.
