CHAPTER II.

1. Now when the fulness of time was come behold a great multitude gathered together at Legin, in a place over against the synagogue.

2. For the battle was again to be fought between the ginuts of Notron Robit of Molos Araption, Warden of Trendor, Warden of Trendor, Warden of Trendor, Warden of Treit and Vegetable. 2. For the battle was again to be Broderick; Mr. white, of Tenton; fought between the giauts of Notrom and the youths of Legin.

8. But as the time for battle drew the wharf a smart shower was falling M. B. Holmes, H. S. Moffatt. and the youths of Legin.

8. But as the time for battle drew high, behold there was a great stirm ade, and the sound of many voices arose from the camp of the Notromites, for they murmured among themselves, saying:

4. Of a surety see we not here among the Leginites two youths whom we met not before? And they counselled together.

5. At length came forth Goliath, the leader of the giants, and drew nigh unto the youths, saying:

6. Ye men of Legin, know-ye not that we, the giants of Notrom, came forth to do battle valiantly with the youths of Legin?

7. And now, see we not here with you to do us battle two white faced young men fresh from their books, to do us evil?

8. Then Hiram, the son of the High Priest, being spokesman for the youths, came forth and, bowing low before Goliath, said unto him:

9. Let now Goliath but command the vouths, and whatsoever he desireth it shall be done.

10. Then a smile, even for the space of eight by ten hand-breafdths, overspread the countenance of Goliath, still the state of the fight of the price of the space of eight by ten hand-breafdths, overspread the countenance of Goliath, still the state of the space of eight by ten hand-breafdths, overspread the countenance of Goliath, still the space of th
