FARM CONDITIONS

As Reported Up to Tuesday, April 6th.

The following is a summary of reports made by agricultural representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:

The strong, keen winds prevailing during the latter part of the week have been somewhat trying to fall wheat, which is looking a little brown; but the roots of the plants are said to be strong, and a vigorous growth is expected with the first warm rain. Up to date there has been less heating than usual of either fall wheat or clover. The latter crop is doing well where there was a good catch last season, which, however, was not general. Maple syrup is selling at from $3 to $4 a gallon. The run of sap so far has been comparatively light.

Hay, owing to the scarcity of straw, keeps up in price, the price per ton from $17.50 to $19 a ton.

Hogs are being marketed slowly at from $17.50 to $18 a ton.

Many cattle are selling in an unfinished condition, owing to the scarcity of grain and the high price of mill feeds. Young beef animals, however, are in good demand, vealers selling at from 12 to 17 cents a pound.

Many dairy cows are coming in this season earlier than usual. Horses range in value from $120 to $300, according to weight.

Auction sales are frequent in many counties, and surprisingly high prices are being paid for machinery and live stock.

System in housecraft makes leisure for the housewife a certainty, however large in the house. Have hanging in the kitchen a slate containing scheme of duties and timetable for performance of same. Thus will mud-dle be avoided. Herewith is a sample chart which works well in one house:

Monday—Washing.
Tuesday—Ironing and airing of clothes.
Wednesday—Cleaning of bedrooms.
Thursday—Sewing.
Friday—Cleaning of downstairs rooms.
Saturday—Ditto and shopping.
Tea leaves. Don't throw tea leaves away. Collect a week's leaves in a pail. Then pour over them one quart of boiling water, and leave for one hour. Strain and bottle the brown liquid. This is a splendid gloss-maker. If used with a soft piece of flannel on mirrors, glasses or windows it makes them shine like crystal. It is a very good cleaner also for varnished wood and doors and furniture; also for linoleum. Only a little should be put on the flannel, but it cleans linoleum better than water, and if afterward polished with a soft duster it gives a polish like beeswax.

suggestion and invention, but use brains to adapt it to your own house and household. There is no royal road to labor saving; the capable woman must, and will, work out her own salvation.

In the household borax is one of the most useful articles, and should always be kept handy. Particularly useful is it for keeping meat, fish or other perishables fresh for any length of time. Water is rendered softer for washing by having a small quantity of borax dissolved in it. Borax in the garden is a splendid agent. If dissolved in hot water in the proportion of one pennyworth to a pint of water, and allowed to cool, it will kill green flies on roses and plants, and when applied to apple trees suffering from blight proves most effective. Borax well sprinkled in the kitchen is also effective in banishing black beetles. For cleaning windows, mirrors and lamp glasses use borax instead of soda. A little borax added to black lead makes it give brighter lustre with less labor.

Keeping Flowers With Sugar.

It is reported that two professors of a school of agriculture have made some interesting experiments in prolonging the lives of cut flowers. One hundred different flowers were used in the experiments, and it was found that sugar helped to keep most of them fresh, but positively injurious to lilies and sweet peas. It hastened the opening of roses and orchids, but did not affect tulips, daisies or chrysanthemums.

Experiments were made with small quantities of chloral, ether, glycerine, alcohol, lime-water, and ammonia salts, each of which served to lengthen the lives of various flowers. Some of the flowers kept in sugar and water lived four times as long as they ordinarily would.

The sugar does not have exactly equal effect on the different flowers. It preserves. Carnations seem to like a 15 per cent. solution and roses do better in a solution of from 8 to 10 per cent.

POULTRY WORLD

HOW EXPERT FOUND A NEW BREED.

(Ottawa Journal.) This address by Dr. La Fortune, president of "Chantecler" Club, was delivered before the Ottawa Poultry Association: "Almost every country possesses its breeds of poultry, and in most cases, the breed kept is one which suits the demand of the locality, whilst at the same time being adapted to the climate of that particular country. Here in Canada, the first fowls were imported by the first French settlers, and originated in the old Gauls, as direct descendant of the Romans during their invasion of early France. "But, undoubtedly, there was no breed of purely Canadian formation as the Barred Rocks were the American composite of different breeds to create a new fowl ideal to the pullets nearest his ideal in color, shape and laying quality and mate her to a beautiful White Plymouth Rock of 9 3/4 lbs. The results were a greatly improved color but disappointing as layers. Then during six years, he line-bred with his former crosses with one outcross of White Wyandotte with the result of uniform shape and remarkable laying capacity.

THE CHANTECLER. "In 1916, the Brother was gratified with an exceptionally good pullet, weighing 8 lbs. at 7 months and having a record of 91 eggs during the four months of November, October, January and February. He decided to mate her of a beautiful White Plymouth Rock of ten pounds for a cockerel mating to mat to the best pullets of former crossings. These resulted the first generation of the new Canadian breed, the Chantecler. I secured five unpicked pullets from these original and they averaged 153 eggs in their pullet year, the best reaching the 237 mark with the lowest 109. Other breeders have had similar good results. One hen shown in the utility class at Oakville was placed reserve to a White Wyandotte, as champion of all varieties competing. Although few specimens of the breed were shown at the Chicago Coliseum, requirements of the country and of the breeders. Admitting the universal demand for the dual purpose hen, not disowning the special merits of the American breeds, but experienced with severe losses caused by extremely cold winters of Quebec, Bro. Wilfrid, a monk in charge of the Poultry Division of Oka College, conceived the ideal of building up a hen that would combine the special conformation to endure our severe climate and would possess the laying and meat qualities of the already existing breeds. He wanted to produce a bird with no fancy plumage color, and snow white, with no comb nor wattles to freeze, with light, short feathers closely set to the body combined with an elegant and graceful shape.

HISTORY OF STRAINS.

"The dark Cornish was called upon to transmit its vigor and rusticity, to minimize the comb and wattles, to build a plump and tender carcass, the carcasses, the Reds and the Rocks, to give the proper American body; the Leghorns, to add to the laying capacity, and grace and harmony were borrowed from the White Wyandottes. So, in 1908 the Brother laid out two matings, a dark Cornish to a White Leghorn hen and a Rhode Island Red to a White Wyandotte hen. He selected the best laying Cornish-Leghorn pullets and mated them to the best cockerel obtained from the Red-Wyandotte crossing, an almost perfect Columbian Wyandotte in shape and color. The pullets were then of grayish color, tightly feathered, with neither comb nor wattles.

"In 1910, he carefully selected all

Toronto, Hamilton and Oakville, the breed was remarkably well represented at Kingston, and St. Scholastique, each show with about ninety birds in the class. The association already has held two yearly club shows with 300 to 500 Chanteclers shown. Although exclusively bred for utility, this breed is not altogether without charms for the fancier. Its graceful carriage, the snow white color, its peculiarity of comb and wattles are favorably appealing to the amateurs and the commercial breeders. Indeed, we are not claiming the Chantecler a perfection, the last word of improvement, but it is an improvement and the beginning of a long needed Canadian hen.

"In resume, the Chantecler, the synthesis of the best five breeds of poultry, in this America, and bearing all their attributes, even more, excelling them in fitness and sturdiness, necessary to this country, can now make her way to the rank and file and prove her utility in the poultry world.

IDENTICAL RESULTS.

"A year ago, when I first heard of a hen originated at Guelph and known as the New-Ontario; I secured a trio from the college and I was particularly struck with their similarity to the Chanteclers. Unaware of the experimentation done at Oakville, this grand old reliable poultryman of Canada, Prof. Graham, was also working at the formation of a Canadian fowl whose characteristics he idealized closely to those aimed at by Brother Wilfrid in the formation of the Chantecler. Although calling upon different breeds—light Brahmas, light Sussex and Red Laced Cornish—for the elements of its formation. Prof. Graham practically secured the identical results. I equally obtained satisfactory laying with the New-Ontario, I even showed one pullet in the utility class at the recent Chantecler show and secured a third prize on her. This fairly illustrates that the production of either the French or the English School, or this ideal, has not yet proved one to be second to the other.
