nov8 A. DIXON.

THIS standard article is compounded with the greatest care.

Its effects are as wonderful and as satisfactory as ever.

It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color.

It removes all eruptions, itching and dandruff. It gives the head a cooling, soothing sensation of great comfort, and the scalp by its use becomes white and clean.

By its tonic properties it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness, and making the hair grow thick and strong.

As a dressing, nothing has been found so effectual or desirable.

A. A. Hayes, M.D., State Assayer of Massachusetts, says, "The constituents are pure, and carefully selected for excellent quality; and I consider it the BEST PREPARATION for its intended purposes."

Price, One Dollar.

Buckingham's Dye

President Inch.

The St. John Globe refers Editorially to Principal Inch's promotion in the following terms: Prof. Inch is in the prime of life, not being more than two or three years beyond forty. He is a native of Queen's County, in this Province, and has for a long time been connected with the Institutions at Sackville. He graduated in the class of 1864, B. A., and took his M. A. in 1867. Since graduation he has been in charge of the Ladies' Academy, first as Vice-Principal and then as Principal, which latter position, as is well known, he now holds. He is a gentleman of fine presence, possesses first-class executive and administrative ability, and has been highly successful in his management of the Ladies' Academy. As a student he took first rank, and since graduation has given much attention to Modern Languages. He possesses large general information, and is what may be called "well read." He possesses fine literary taste and writes with ease and grace. He has succeeded well as a teacher and Professor. From what we know of Prof. Inch, and judging from his past record, we feel satisfied the keeping of Mount Allison College is in safe hands, and that the friends of the College should congratulate the Board of Governors upon the judicious selection they have made.

For the Post.

Wedding a l'Acadien.

It was recently the happy lot of your correspondent to attend the wedding festivities of a young couple of French extraction and I herein propose to offer to such of yours readers as have never had the pleasure of a like opportunity, an account of my visit. A Frenchman's marriage is the great event of his life—a sort of era to which, before the arrival of the happy time, he looks forward, and afterwards from which he dates all the occurrences of his life.

The festivities, consisting for the most part of dancing, are prolonged through the greater part of three days. The first day's enjoyment is entirely anticipative in its character. On the eve of their marriage, the bride and bridegroom elect, attended by bridesmaid and groomsman, take their places among the assembled company. Of course the indispensible fiddle is in attendance, and dancing constitutes the main part of the programme of the evening. On the following morning, and as early as possible, the two couples, unattended by any friends, proceed to the chapel, where the candidates for matrimonial bliss are united in nuptial bonds. After which the wedding party return and partake of the wedding dinner; after dinner the assembled friends proceed to dancing, which is kept up with only sufficient intermission for tea, to an uncertain hour of the night. Next day the married couple proceed to the residence of the new-made husband, where the sports of the previous day are re-enacted. In all this festivity no one is there by special invitation; but everyone who hears of the event is expected to attend, and all are seemingly welcome.

The particular time when I attended was the evening of the day on which the couple were married. On approaching the house, my ears were saluted by the enlivening strains of the fiddle at times drowned by a violent stamping of the feet, accompanied by an occasional whoop. Being myself at a loss to understand these latter sounds, I was informed by my companion who was versed in the matter that they were mere noises made by the dancing party. Silenced, but still wondering, I crossed the threshold. But to enter the dancing-room was another matter. It was literally packed; only sufficient space being left for the dancers to perform. After considerable elbowing I attained a position whence I could command a tolerably comprehensive view of what was going on. In one corner seated upon a lounge are the bride and groom with bridesmaid and groomsman. The men were rendered conspicuous by their tall plug hats, which they did not remove during the whole evening. Nothing else is remarkable in their dress except immense standing-collars, of which my friend remarked that he guessed they had to unbotton them to spit. However, that may have been, they were certainly wonderful collars. The "blushing bride" was attired in a light-colored dress adorned with scarlet ribbon which was scattered in great profusion over every part of her person. Having satisfied my curiosity in regard to the wedded ones, I turned my attention to the dancers, who were tripping immediately in front of them. They were executing an eight-handed reel to a tune, which judging from the enthusiasm the fiddler elicited, must have been got up in honor of that particular occasion. What the dancing performance lacked in grace and harmony was made up in foot-power and rousing were the stamps to which the walls of that room at times resounded. These stamping episodes were also graced with those astounding whoops which had so mystified me when approaching the house. Surrounding the dancers was a crowd of talking, laughing and applauding on-lookers. The conversation was mostly in French but sometimes when one of the dancers performed a remarkable gyration their enthusiasm broke forth in such English phrases as: Good Boy! Well done! Go it old fellow! &c. Good humour prevailed and everyone seemed possessed of excellent spirits, but some of the more exuberant ones evidently had obtained theirs at the nearest bar-room. But now this set ends, and another is in course of formation. My ideas of the polite in society were dreadfully shocked by this part of the proceedings. I had been used to to seing the gentleman approach the lady with the preliminary enquiry if she was engaged for the next dance; when, if she replied in the negative, he politely asked if she would honor him by being his partner, or words to that effect. But here the matter was merely what might be termed a "game of grab." The ladies who had been dancing were seized by those of the male sex standing nearest; and, a number of other couples stepping up from different parts of the room, there were in a few minutes twice as many as could dance in the confined space crowding for an inside position. Of course it was necessary that some should retire; but none wanted to be the discarded ones. Those in the centre of the crowd maintained that they had the right of the next dance; while those on the outside, admitting this, sought to shove them out of position. After a good deal of altercation, during which there was a considerable doubt in my mind as to whether right or might should triumph, the matter was amicably settled by the retirement of those in the secondary position, when the dancing proceeded. When I had watched these scenes with occasional variations for sometime, one of the household approached and accosted me with the enquiry, "How do you like de spree?" I replied that I was "very much pleased with it." He further questioned, "Why you not dance?" Feeling that if I attempted it then and there I should be as to acquaintance with persons and customs in the position of "a cat in a strange garret," I departed slightly from the strict truthfulness of my character by replying that I did not know how. This fact was, however, in his estimation no drawback to my taking part, as he intimated I could soon learn and had better try. Fearing that further persuasion might induce me to comply and knowing that if I did so my dignity would be very much hurt I concluded to retire at once. I was soon wending my way home with a sense of gratified curiosity, cogitating on the wonderful preservation of the national love of amusement displayed by some of the Acadians though separated from La belle France by generations of time; and I wondered if these pleasures, rude and coarse as they sometimes are, do not after all tend to soften the rough asperities of life, and make better friends, better neighbors, and better citizens.

OBSERVER.

TRADE KISSES.—A curious divorce case is on the tapis in Harrison County. A wife who was greatly in need of a mess of cabbage made a "bargain and sale" with a neighbor, trading three kisses for three heads of cabbage. The irate husband accused her of the act; she acknowledged the circumstance and added that she thought she had made a good bargain. The husband did not care much for the loss of the kisses, but was fearful that they indicated more than was apparent on "the face of the returns," and he filed his petition for divorce.—Barnesville (W. Va.) Enterprise.

For Severe Coughs and Hoarseness.

Philadelphia, Jan. 1, 1876.

Messrs. Seth W. Fowle & Sons:

Gentlemen—Miss S. Burns, of 17th and Coates streets, has long been a sufferer from a severe cough and hoarseness, which I considered chronic. She was treated by some of our most eminent physicians, but they were only able to afford her temporary relief. I prescribed DR. WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY, the use of four bottles of which entirely cured her, as it is now four months since she took the last of it, during which time she has had no return of the complaint. For the good of suffering humanity, Miss Burns has requested me to lay the case before the public. Yours truly.

50 cents and $1 a bottle. Sold by all druggists.

Impurities of the Blood.—The decided alterative action of ROBINSON'S PHOSPHORIZED EMULSION OF COD LIVER WITH LACTO-PHOSPHATE OF LIME adapts it in a remarkable degree as a blood purifier well worthy of the trial of those suffering from a diseased condition of the circulating fluid. The unsightly blotches, pustules and pimples that disfigure the face and neck, as well as other portions of the body, of so many persons, are indications of a diseased state of the blood induced by, as well as associated with, depraved nutrition, feeble digestion and imperfect assimilation. The continued use of the PHOSPHORIZED EMULSION invariably cleanses the blood from all these impurities and restores the system to a state of healthfulness that is manifested in increased constitutional vigor, mental activity and lightness and buoyancy of spirits.

For sale by Druggists and General Dealers. Price, $1 per bottle; six bottles for $5. Prepared by J. H. Robinson, St. John, N. B.

"German Syrup."

No other medicine in the world was ever given such a test of its curative qualities as Boschee's German Syrup. In three years two million four hundred thousand small bottles of this medicine were distributed free of charge by Druggists in this country to those afflicted with Consumption, Asthma, Croup, severe Coughs, Pneumonia and other diseases of the Throat and Lungs, giving the American people undeniable proof that German Syrup will cure them. The result has been that Druggists in every town and village in the United States are recommending it to their customers. Go to your Druggist, and ask what they know about it. Sample Bottles 10 cents. Regular size 75 cents. Three doses will relieve any case.

Is health worth having? If it is protect it—it is a jewel as easily lost as virtue, and in many cases as difficult to recover. In this climate, and more particularly at this season of the year, people are very apt to take cold and suffer from sore throat, coughs, spitting of blood and pulmonary complaints generally, which if not checked immediately lead to serious consequences. The question arises—which is the quickest and most effectual remedy? Bryan's Pulmonic Wafers have been before the public for twenty years, and have always given perfect satisfaction, and invariably effect permanent cures when taken in season. Sold by all medicine dealers and country stores generally throughout the Province, at 25cts per box.

We have recently published a New Edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

The Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land. Address
