The President characterizes Admiral Brownson's action as highly was to have been opened on December Admiral Brownson's action as highly injurious to the service." He adds, further, "his action has undoubtedly been prejudicial to the interests of th born on Sunday morning at Kylegore navy, and may severely impair the castle to the Duchess of Manchester. confidence which is essential to securing the legislation sorely needed."

In his last letter the President defends the plan of placing a physician connected with the medical staff in command of an hospital smp in preference to a regular line officer, and cites the fact that the Japanese hospital ships were commanded by staff officers during the war with Russia. Mr. Roosevelt's action in making these letters public, just before the reconvening of congress, is taken as a defiance of the members of the Senate who have criticised his stand in this case. In fact, the President makes definite in his last letter that hospital ships in the navy will hereafter be in command of a medical officer of the command of command of a medical officer of the navy, unless otherwise ordered by W.
