The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

Suppose an engineer had a certain great weight to lift. Suppose it took three hundred horse power of pressure to lift that weight. And suppose that the engineer should apply fifty horse power to it, and then shut off his engine and then try again and again with fifty or seventy-five or a hundred horse power. Wouldn't we think he was an extraordinary foolish man?

He has wasted his power, we would say, and has accomplished nothing. He would have done better to use all his power at once or not try to do the thing at all.

And yet how many people act just like that engineer?

I am thinking of a woman who lives with a very trying elder sister.

The older woman is one of those people who make life miserable for all about them by harboring a thousand whims and crochets and cautions and irritating little prejudices and fustinesses.

All these things fret the younger sister to the verge of insanity, and she lives in a continual state of protest—fretful, nervous, inefficient protest.

She argues, she pleads, she scolds, she nags.

But never—and here you catch my simile—never hard enough to do any good.

Her sister's obstinacy and self will is a weight that cannot be moved except by some great pressure. And that the younger sister never exerts.

As a result both their lives are embittered and saddened by perpetual petty warfare without one bit of good being accomplished.

Now this is the way it seems to me. That the only thing to be done in a case like this is for the sufferer to make up her mind that she, when she wants anything badly enough, will stand firm and get it, and that when she doesn't want anything enough to exert that pressure she will give up pleasantly.

In other words, when the weight must be lifted, she will exert the necessary amount of power and lift it, and when it doesn't she won't waste her power.

In regard to the law of obedience, Elbert Hubbard says:

"Revolt is sometimes necessary, but the man who mixes revolt and obedience is doomed to disappoint himself, and everybody with whom he has dealings. To flavor work with protest is to fail utterly."

It seems to me it's the same way with family life.

There are conditions in family life when revolt is absolutely necessary. When you are sure these conditions exist, why revolt and do it thoroughly.

But when you know that acquiescence is wisest, why acquiesce and do it cheerfully.

But don't mix the two.

At least, not if you care anything for peace in your home.

THE ONE REMEDY for women which contains no alcohol and no habit-forming drugs. Made from native medicinal forest roots of well established curative value.

Household Notes.

Drawn-work borders are not infrequently combined with solid centres.

Mice object to camphor, which if put in places frequented by them will drive them away completely.

Apply the white of an egg with a camel's hair brush to fly specks on a gilt frame and they will disappear.

Remove rust stains from white goods by applying lemon juice and salt and laying the material in the hot sun.

If the cellar stairs are not well lighted, paint the bottom step white. This will save many an unfortunate misstep.

Grass on a wall can generally be eradicated by covering with clean blotting paper, and then passing a warm iron over it.

Needles both for hand-sewing and machine work may be sharpened on the discarded emery-boards from the dressing table.

Brass bedsteads can be cleaned by rubbing with a cloth dipped in sweet oil. Afterward polish with a soft dry piece of leather.

To bleach handkerchiefs, after washing, let them soak over night in water in which a bit of cream of tartar has been dissolved.

Ivory knife handles which have become yellow may be improved in appearance by being rubbed with a cloth dipped in turpentine.

A simple way to separate eggs is to break them, one at a time, into a small funnel. The whites will pass through and the yolks remain.

Wooden bedsteads are again the fashion. They should be wiped over every three months with turpentine to keep them perfectly clean.

When the kitchen table is of natural wood, a cut lemon rubbed over the surface gives a whiter, smoother board than when a scrubbing brush is used.

Stains on flannels may be removed by applying equal quantities of yolk of egg and glycerine, and allowing it to soak for half an hour before the garment is washed.

An eiderdown quilt may be washed in a lather. Rinse it carefully, and then shake it well before hanging out in the wind. While drying, shake several times and it will be like new.

A small block of wood, covered with a piece of old carpet, is excellent to rub off the range when through using it, and also makes a very good polisher when blacking has been applied.

To clean white paint, rub well with a damp cloth dipped in oatmeal, wipe with a damp cloth and lastly with a dry duster. This is especially useful treatment for fingermarks on doors.

Ginger boudons are readily made by taking oblong pieces of preserved ginger and inserting these in the hollows of fine large daisies which have been stoned. Draw the daisies together and roll in powdered sugar.

Cooking in a double boiler is sometimes so slow—if sure—that cooks should know that adding a tablespoon-

Folks Past Fifty Must Use Cascarets.

What glasses are to weak eyes, Cascarets are to weak bowels—a 10-cent box will truly amaze you.

Most old people must give to the bowels some regular help, else they suffer from constipation. The condition is perfectly natural. It is just as natural as it is for old people to walk slowly. For age is never so active as youth. The muscles are less elastic. And the bowels are muscles.

So all old people need Cascarets. One might as well refuse to aid weak eyes with glasses as to neglect this gentle aid to weak bowels. The bowels must be kept active. This is important at all ages, but never so much as at fifty.

Age is not a time for harsh physics. Youth may occasionally whip the bowels into activity. But a lash can't be used every day. What the bowels of the old need is a gentle and natural tonic. One that can be constantly used without harm. The only such tonic is Cascarets and they cost only 10 cents per box at any drug store. They work while you sleep.

ful of salt to the water in the outer vessel will raise the temperature of the food more quickly.

To lighten wooden floors add two table-spoonsful of paraffin to the hot, soapy water used for washing a floor. It will cleanse the boards and will also destroy any insects that may be lurking in the cracks of the wood.

To renovate a bath scrub with hot soda-water, and then scour with sand-paper till the surface is perfectly smooth. Apply evenly two coats of white paint, and lastly, one of bath enamel. Let it get thoroughly dry before using.

The Camilla scarf is the latest conceit of the needleworker. It is made of a very fine white canvas, and is worked in quite light colors, such as blue and white, or pink and white, a mercerized floss being used. The edges are scalloped.

Baste a narrow strip of muslin along each outer edge before putting the curtains in water, and let it remain until the curtains are washed and stretched. You will find your curtains will be straight without the usual sagging.

Dish-covers may be easily kept bright and clean. Remove grease with warm water and soda, dry with a soft cloth, then apply a little metal polish with a flannel. A final polish with fine whiting will then make the covers look like silver.

Into a lemon jelly made as usual stir, as it begins to harden, half a cup of shredded preserved ginger. Or, if preferred, cut into small, inch-long pieces. Set away to harden. Serve with whipped cream, flavoured with just a drop or two of brandy.

Silk and woolen goods may be cleaned of grease spots by gently rubbing them with cake magnesia. Lay the goods away in a dark place for several days and then shake out the magnesia. Press the fabric with a hot iron, first covering it with brown paper.

Damp shoes must be carefully dried. Do not put them in an oven or dry quickly. Stuff with newspaper or bran and stand in a draught. When the leather has stiffened from neglect, rub in a little vaseline. Vaseline is excellent for most leathers if not used to excess.

Indigestion & Dyspepsia

In all its Forms Can be Cured.

It is quite a daily occurrence to hear persons say: "Oh, what a feeling of distress I have after meals, fullness of the stomach, heaviness and headache, I feel too tired to do anything. I have no heart to exert myself, and at times I care for nothing. I often have a pain in the pit of the stomach, no appetite, my heart beats rapidly on the slightest exertion. I feel just as tired when rising in the morning as when retiring to bed. My sleep is often disturbed, and I often awake with a sense of suffocation and a difficulty of again going to sleep. I have to be careful of what I eat, and my life seems a veritable burden."

Now, it seems a shame and a pity for persons to be suffering like that when it is in their power to get cured by taking a bottle of Dr. Stafford's Prescription. A sure cure for persons afflicted with stomach troubles. It can be obtained at
