CHURCHILL OUTLINES HOME RULE BILL.

Special Evening Telegram.

BELFAST, Feb. 8. Winston Churchill arrived this morning with his wife, and was given a somewhat mixed reception. A number of Unionists, who had gathered at the station, greeted him with groans, but these were drowned by the hearty cheers of Liberals and Nationalists. There were no disturbances, and the large force of police on duty at the station had a very easy task to perform. Arrangements for preserving the peace had been made on a most elaborate scale. Detachments of police were posted everywhere, and the troops were held in readiness in their quarters. Matters looked ugly for a moment when Mr. and Mrs. Churchill started for the meeting place. A great crowd, which had gathered outside the hotel, appeared inclined to rush the First Lord's motor car, and tried to block its passage, but a militia of escorting motor cars, packed with detectives, succeeded in working their way through the growing throng, and the car moved safely away. Churchill and Redmond reached the Marquee safely, their journey being marked by nothing more serious than groans and hisses. Sixty thousand people were gathered in the tent. A steady shower of bath poured through the canvas roof, making the floor an incipient marsh. Churchill immediately got on good terms with his audience, promising them that the Government intended to pass a Home Rule Bill which would be harmonious with Imperial interests; smooth the path of the British Empire, liberate new forces for its service, and forever do away with the accursed machinery by which hatred had been manufactured in the past. The Government's Home Rule Bill, he said, would fit into a general scheme of Parliamentary devolution, leading ultimately to the federation of the Empire. That was the only way to free the Commons from the present congestion. Look at our great rivals, the United States of America and Germany. Both of these Powers conduct their business through separate Parliaments. Churchill contended that the settlement of the long quarrel between the British Government and the Irish people would be a boon to the Empire beyond compare, as the Irish throughout the world were a power for good or ill, and in the past had mostly worked counter to British interests. Without closely particularizing the terms of the Bill, he said that the Irish Parliament, including the Senate, would fairly represent the minority as well as the majority of the people of Ireland. The Crown would be in a position to refuse assent to any unjust law, and the Imperial Parliament would be able to repeal any such law. Religious freedom would be secured, and the Privy Council would be able to declare void any law which goes beyond the limits of Home

To the Medical Fraternity.

Special to Evening Telegram.

SALVAGE, Yesterday. To the medical fraternity: It will be a serious breach of medical etiquette and highly derogatory to the honor, dignity and independence of our whole profession, for any member of the fraternity to offer his services to Salvage or Salvage Bay. There is no vacancy in fact I am in the district, able and willing to render medical and surgical services as formerly for reasonable remuneration. I asked the people to increase my modest annual fee of three dollars, including medicines, per family, to four dollars, including medicines. Some refused, hence the irrational cry for another doctor.

C.C.C. Cups and Medals.

PRESENTED LAST NIGHT.

To witness the presentation of the cups and medals won during the summer of 1911, a large gathering of spectators were present at the Armoury of the Catholic Cadet Corps last night. There were present amongst them Hon. John Harris, Prof. C. Hutton, Rev. Fr. Sheehan (Chaplain of the Corps), Rev. Bro. Kennedy and Dr. Wakefield.

The full Battalion of the Corps mustered out in full kit headed by the Band, Major Donnelly being in charge. Five handsome cups were on the table for presentation with a beautiful array of medals, and at 8 p.m. sharp the proceedings began. Lieut. Col. Conroy with his good lady was there and the first presentation was the medals given for winning the Inter-Brigade Football for the season. Mrs. Conroy kindly placed the medals on the breasts of the lads of the team. The winners of events in the camp sports next received their trophies. Serg. W. Hart now handed over the beautiful football cup to Lieut. Col. Conroy for the Corps, making a very nice speech in doing so, praising the sturdy team who took the cup and hoping for further victories in future. Serg. G. Knight then stepped forward and in a very clever speech presented the Corps through the Lieut. Col. the three best trophies of the year, viz., the Mount Cashel relay cup, the P. F. Collins cup for the St. C. C. Sports, and the massive Coronation Cup presented him last week by Lady Williams for the C. C. C. Athletic team which won out in the Coronation Sports. Mr. Knight paid a due meed of praise to his friends in the Athletic team, asked for future co-operation and constant practice so that the Corps would be able to hold its present excellent place when future competitions occur.

Lieut. Col. Conroy made an eloquent reply on behalf of the Corps. He praised the earnestness with which the lads of the Corps entered into the athletic competitions, their zeal and strenuous endeavours, and hoped that all would strive for future successes by earnest preparation and practice, entering in a manly spirit and according to opponents that fair play for which the lads of the Corps were always noted. Some other very wholesome advice was tendered and a remainder was given the lads of the "At Home" on Monday next.

Dr. Wakefield who was present also addressed the lads, complimenting them on their successes, and told of an organization he was forming known as the Legion of Frontiersmen. He hoped to see the Cadets represented in this. Afterwards the Corps went through physical and other exercises, with Battalion marching and in columns of Companies, and the general salute was given while the band rendered God Save the King, bringing this interesting function to a close.

The Cadets now possess in their Armoury 22 handsome cups including the Earl Grey and the Coronation Trophy. The Telegram congratulates the Cadets on their success.

As a Cure for Whooping Cough

A medicine that will cure whooping cough can certainly be relied upon to overcome all ordinary coughs and colds. This is about the severest test, and one to which Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine has frequently been put with the most satisfactory results.

Mrs. John Chesney, Inverkip, Ont., writes:—"We have used a dozen bottles of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. It cured my little girl of whooping cough when the doctor had given her up, and since then we always keep it in the house as a treatment for coughs and colds. It is the best medicine we ever used. In spite of imitations and substitutes the sales of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine keep right on increasing, and this is, we believe, the most substantial evidence that can be offered as to the reliability of this well-known medicine as a cure for croup, bronchitis, whooping cough and kindred ailments; 25 cents a bottle, at all dealers, or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

John Redmond's Appeal.

Special to Evening Telegram.

BELFAST, To-day. Churchill's incursion into Ulster which threatened at one time to cause sanguinary rioting and serious loss of life, ended without even a broken head. The first Lord of the Admiralty and Redmond spoke from the same platform on the Home Rule Bill. Churchill outlined the intention of the Government in respect of self Government in Ireland and declared no greater boon could come to the Empire than a settlement of a long and bitter quarrel between the British Government and the Irish people. Redmond appealed to Ulster "in the name of Ireland and the British Empire and justice and good will," to lend its aid in settling the Irish question wisely, well and forever. Churchill's speech delivered before an audience from which every effort had been made to bar all hostile elements, aroused tremendous enthusiasm but at one point a group of suffragettes attempted to create a disturbance and several of them were ejected. The night passed quietly. The Nationalists burned effigies of Lord Londonderry and Sir Edward Carson, Unionist leaders. In response to continued and enthusiastic cheers of their supporters, Londonderry and Carson appeared on the steps of the Ulster Club. Sir Edward in a brief speech said he was proud of Belfast's behaviour and "we fight every inch against Home Rule." Troops will be kept in Belfast over Saturday as a precautionary measure.

McMurdo's Store News.

FRIDAY, Feb. 9, '12.

During the winter months many people seem to need something extra in the way of heat forming foods to enable them to withstand the cold, and so prevent coughs and chills. Mathieu's Syrup is an ideal food-medicine in these not rare cases. It contains cod liver oil in good quantity, but so disguised as to lose all the characteristic nauseating taste of the raw oil; and to this is added tar, an efficient antiseptic. It has done many people good service this winter. Price 50c. a bottle.

Somewhat in the same class is Glaxo—an infant's food prepared on scientific principles, consisting of pure milk with extra fat, and so prepared as to be ready for instant use on simple dilution with hot water. It makes babies fat, and many children have thriven on Glaxo, to whom ordinary prepared foods were useless. Price 40c., 80c. and $2 a tin.

Wealth of the Rothschilds.

The wealth of the Rothschilds is a fascinating theme for speculation, but accuracy is difficult to arrive at. The fortunes of the house, as is well known, were founded by the Rothschild who was the first in England to obtain the news of the battle of Waterloo and profit by it on the Stock Exchange. The recent death in Paris of Baron Gustave recalls the first occasion on which some idea could be obtained as to the wealth of the firm. The brothers are partners, and the bank has branches in London, Berlin, Paris, Frankfurt and Vienna. The French branch was founded by Baron James, who had four sons. Of these only one, Edmond, outlived him. When his first son, Solomon, died in 1864 he left a widow and a daughter, Helen. When Helen married Baron van Zuylen de Nyevelt her share of her father's fortune, which she brought with her as a dowry, was about $70,000,000. Baron Solomon's fortune was double this amount, and his three brothers and his sister, who married Baron Nathaniel of London, had equal amounts. Thus the total fortune of the five in 1864 was nearly $800,000,000. As the four branches of the family are equally rich, its aggregate wealth at that time must have been $4,800,000,000, and that was more than forty-five years ago.

Leaped From the Statute of Liberty.

New York, Feb. 2.—A man slowly ascended the uprated arm of giant Statue of Liberty out in the harbor this afternoon made tortuous way to the outside of the great hand, then sprang out into the air and shot toward earth. Pedestrians in Battery Park across the bay, gazed at the whirling figure spell bound, then gaped with relief when a parachute opened and the figure settled lightly on the ground at the statue's base. The man was Frederick Law, a steeple jack. He had obtained a Government permit to make the leap.

Uncle Walt THE POET PHILOSOPHER.

Sometimes I get tired of my writing, and think, with some heart-rending groans, of those who make business of fighting, and gather in bushels of bones. Sometimes I grow tired of the botches sent out WEARINESS to my readers as rhymes and think of the Mahmouts and Gatches who wallow in diamonds and dimes. Sometimes I grow tired of the bustle, of breaking cheap words from their stems, and wish I was old Pastor Russell with whiskers all studded with gems. Sometimes I get tired of the million disfigurements marring my face, and wish I was lovely like Lillian, a vision of beauty and grace. My worries—I simply can't sink 'em, they float like the leaves on the rills! I wish I was Liddy E. Pinkham, dispensing my back action pills! I wish I was J. Rockefeller, with seventeen kinds of a roll, when I push myself down to the cellar and look at what's left of the coal. But, happiness soon reappearing, I put all my gloom on the shelf, and go around whooping and cheering, and saying: "I'm glad I'm myself!"

Woolen Factory.

The new Woolen Factory on Alexander Street, which has been open since the early part of January, is now running full time in the making of men's underwear and colored jerseys. There are so far 25 hands employed—men and girls. Mr. McCabe, the Manager, has great confidence in the gradual development of the industry. When the underwear branch is well established the Manager will take up the making of blankets and later on will set up the machinery necessary for the manufacture of tweeds. The company is obliged to import most of the wool required to carry on their work. They will be only too glad to buy wool raised in this country. They buy all that is sent along. The quality of most of it compares very favourably with what is imported. The machinery at the factory is said to be the most up to date, and Mr. McCabe is an experienced man in all that relates to the business. He expects to be able to increase the number of his employes about 100 per cent next year when he goes into the making of blankets and tweeds.

Monday last a meeting of the shareholders in the Cabot Whaling Co. met and elected the Directors for the year, viz., President, A. J. Harvey; Vice-President, K. R. Prowse; Sec. Hon. John Harvey. A dividend of 7 per cent. was declared, which under the circumstances is regarded as a satisfactory showing. Hon. M. G. Whiter's name was added to form the General Managing Board.

The Eve

How do you read poetry? A modernish essayist recently declared his opinion that excellent poems if they were composed by the natives of the Lost Atlantis around Trafalgar Square at on their knees in sackcloth, choose the ordeal of public reading. I fancy that statement is strong, and yet I certainly agree with the underlying belief that people nowadays care to read. Again I ask, "How often do you read poetry?" I don't mean how often you glance over one of the little poems, but take perhaps a minute to read, but how often sit down and read poetry as you read a novel or a newspaper, hour or an hour at a time? What difference does it make, say, whether you do or not? My friend, the essayist has undoubtedly heard you say that, for he is ready with his anger. You read poetry, he says, because imaginative poetry is the highest wisdom. In a word, there is to compare with it. He makes these remarks in the of a little book telling the of business man how, despite, the winds of business and social can still keep on feeding his mind instead of letting it die of starvation.

Father Vaughan Again

Denounces Present Day Society. New York, Feb. 1.—Father Vaughan, the noted English priest and orator, told an audience that crowded Carnegie Hall last night that the greatest danger threatening society to-day are a lax system of divorce and marriage, creditless series, and a system of education which drives Christ from the headmaster to a place on the seat, and instead of drilling an only arming a mob. "Only storing Christian principles (his things)," he said, "can society be ed from approaching the low level Pagan Rome in the middle of its 'muddy' golden age." Father Vaughan declared that the cent day society, "while not yet a cemetery, is heading rapidly to it." He instanced as one of the causes of the decadence of the age the careless system of divorce which not improved, he said, would be out to the country. Socialism in various phases he also assailed.

Nerves Are Exhausted

And nervous prostration or paralysis is creeping steadily upon you. You hear of people suddenly falling victims of nervous prostration in some form of paralysis. But you get all the facts of the case find that they have had months of warning. They haven't slept well. There been frequent attacks of nervous headache. Digestion has failed. They have been irritable, easily worried and excited and have found men and concentration failing. Had they but known that the symptoms tell of exhausted nerves or had they realized their danger they would have restored the feeble, worn nerves by use of such treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. This Great restorative treatment cures by forming new, rich blood by rebuilding the wasted nerve cells. No medicine is more certain to produce lasting benefit to the system. cents a box, 6 boxes for $2.50; at dealers or Edmondson, Bates & Toronto.
