Some Other Business.

By RUTH CAMERON.

"Now if I'd only gone into the newspaper business I feel as if I could have done something worth while," a man said to me the other day. "Don't you like your own business?" I asked. He is a rather successful crack-salesman. "Oh, yes," he said, "well enough, but there's so little chance to get ahead in it. I feel sure I could have done something big if I had gone into the newspaper business. There's more chance for an ambitious man there."

Now had he spoken of some other business I might have been impressed and convinced, but the newspaper business—well, that's something I happen to know about. And ever since I had anything to do with newspapers I have had it dinned into my ears by newspaper men that there never was a business where the chances of making money were so small. Almost every newspaper man I know is sure he would have made plenty of money if he had only put his brains and energy into some other business.

Some other business—how alluring it always is! How simple it appears to learn; how large its advantages seem; and its disadvantages—well, we don't really believe it has any. Of course, the other fellow says so, but then he's a pessimist anyway, and besides he is probably trying to discourage us because he fears our competition.

Now is it merely the disgruntled failure who laments what might have been? Even the successful man often believes he could have been still more successful if only he had chosen some other business.

Now, of course, there are plenty of square pegs in round holes—pegs that would be efficient and useful if only they had found their way into square holes. But on the other hand, there are a great many uneven, ill-shaped pegs that wouldn't efficiently fit any hole unless they were worked into the proper shape by education and training. And the man who thinks he is the first is quite often the second.

Your own business is the place to make good in. Choose it carefully with due attention to your talents and personal equipment, and then put the whole of yourself into it and you will probably do just as well as you would in some other business.

Of course, if at any time, after thorough investigation and, if possible, some tentative experiment, you become absolutely convinced that you are better fitted for some other line of work, it would be folly not to change. But remember that from the outside looking in one is likely to overestimate the advantages and opportunities and underestimate the difficulties and disadvantages. It is only when one is on the inside looking out—and quite often wishing one could get out—that one gets the whole of the picture.

Sometimes it seems sad to me that we cannot have half a dozen lives in which to find out if we couldn't do better at the other fellow's business. And then again I think it's unfortunate, for, after all, isn't it pleasanter to believe one could have done great things than to know one couldn't?

public no person may be kept isolated for more than forty hours before trial and even during that time must be permitted to receive close relations, like parents, wives, and children, but prisoners have been found who have been kept before trial for more than forty days in solitary confinement.

Why Is It?

Some find work where some find rest. And so the weary night goes on. Sometimes wonder which is best. The answer comes when life is gone.

Some eyes sleep when some eyes wake. And so the weary night goes on. Some hearts beat where some hearts break. I often wonder why 'tis so.

Some will fall where some will fight. Some love the tent and some the field. I often wonder who are right—The ones who strive or those who yield.

Some hands fold where other hands are lifted bravely in the strife. And so through ages and through lands. Move on the two extremes of life.

Some feet halt where some feet tread. In tireless march, a thorny way. Some struggle on where some have fled. Some seek when others shun the fray.

Some swords rust where others clash. Some fall back where some move on. Some flags furl where others flash. Until the battle has been won.

Some sleep on while others keep. The vigils of the true and brave; They will not rest till roses creep Around their name above a grave.

Get a 10-cent box now.

Furred Tongue, Bad Taste, Indigestion, Sallow Skin and Miserable Headache come from a torpid liver and clogged bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a gill barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gasses, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret to-night will give your constipated bowels a thorough cleansing and straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you feeling good for months. Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then to keep their stomach, liver and bowels regulated, and never know a miserable moment. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing, too.

Regime of Terror Sweeps Portugal.

Lisbon, Jan. 17.—A reign of terror exists in Portugal, and not only are the jails overflowing with innocent men, but other places of imprisonment are being built for the accommodation of victims equally guiltless.

Replying to an interpellation moved by Senor Machado Santos in the Chamber of Deputies, Dr. Alfonso Costa, the Premier, declared that in Portugal only guilty persons had been arrested, and that even those acquitted for lack of proof were strongly suspected of being enemies of the Republic, and were accordingly watched by friends of the Republic.

Deputy Camillo Rodrigues, having protested in the Chamber against the outrages committed by the Society of Carbonarios known as "White Ants," both he and the Civil Governor of Lisbon have been interviewed on the subject by a representative of the "Seculo." The former remarked that a "Portuguese society had for some time lived in such a regime of terror that it would have been impossible for me to protest, the more so because the perpetrators of these outrages are all so well known, and went on to say that "no liberty of thought or opinion or criticism exists. Especial indignation has been excited by the case of General Jaime de Castro, a man over sixty, who was arrested, insulted, and beaten by the Carbonarios, and whose arrest was maintained by the Government for over six weeks, after which he was released as innocent."

When the question was raised in the Chamber, the Minister for War declared that the Government did not know who had arrested General Castro, but that they could not be punished for an act of patriotism.

The Civil Governor, as reported in the "Seculo," admitted that this society of Carbonarios existed in Lisbon to the number of over 2,000, and that they were used as spies by the Government. As to the arrest of General Castro, he said that "an individual accused of high treason may be arrested by anybody."

Wholesale Disfranchisement.

By a stroke of the pen nearly two-thirds of the Portuguese people were disfranchised as illiterates. Yet whether or not they can read or write these disfranchised people have no political ideas, they hunger for food, for liberty of conscience and speech. A lawyer and a doctor suspected of Royalist tendencies were among those wiped off the list by the word "illiterate." But that precaution to ensure a Republican victory was hardly necessary. All through the country Royalists abstained from voting in the last election. Even in Lisbon itself, the stronghold of Republicanism, only 8,000 out of 27,000 people voted in one district. Senor Alfonso Costa's triumph, therefore, was that of a minority expressing itself loudly over the heads of a silent, voiceless multitude.

The prisons of Portugal do not tally with the statement of Ministers that all is well with the Republic. They are so overcrowded, and the numbers of prisoners are increasing so rapidly—after three years of Republican rule—that new jails are being built for them hurriedly, and they are being housed in convents and bishops' palaces from which the original owners have been evicted.

And the men behind the bars. Were they taken and condemned, sword in hand, in the early days of the Republic, or found guilty, upon good evidence, as conspirators? If to the Republic is justified for it has a right to defend itself. But scores of men, lawyers, doctors, and professors, have been arrested during recent months by spies, acting independently of the police, who have had no evidence produced against them, and who have not been brought to any trial. Although by a law of the Republic itself no man may be imprisoned for more than eight days without trial, men have been imprisoned for fifteen months without even being charged by a formal accusation.
