CHAPTER XII.
"You owe me nothing," he said. "All I want to say—and I want to say it as badly as I ever wanted to say anything in my life—is that I hope we shall be friends. We are neighbors—"

"Neighbors are not always friends," said Maida, her exquisite eyes resting on his gravely; "there is often a vast gulf."

"It will be one of your—of your father's digging if it separates us," he said, quickly. "But tell me; has your good fortune made you happy?"

"Why do you ask?" she enquired, with a smile. "Do I not look happy, Lord Heroncourt?"

He was silent for a moment, then he said:

"Not as happy as that evening when we were all applauding you."

The color stole into her face and into her eyes crept a little look of surprise and gratitude.

"You are quick to read one's face, Lord Heroncourt. My father has found riches, but I have lost—my art."

"Not," he said. "You have only changed the theatre. Will you be

THOUSANDS OF SICK WOMEN

Helped Every Year by Common Sense Suggestions Given Free by The Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co.

For forty years women suffering from all kinds of female ills have been writing the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. of Lynn, Mass., for advice.

Thus they receive common sense suggestions drawn from a vast volume of experience, and thousands of sick women have been saved from untold suffering, as letters like the following clearly show:—

Newark, Ohio.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has made me a well woman. Your Sanative Wash is just the thing to overcome female weakness. I have told young mothers as well as older ones about your remedies, and what they have done for me. I think Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound saved my life, as my health was very bad when I wrote you, but now I can do my own work and have not had a sick day since I began taking your remedies. I keep the Compound and Liver Pills on hand all the time."—Mrs. Geo. Thompson, 24 Sherwood Court, Newark, Ohio.

Why don't you write for free advice? Address Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass.

her ladyship's going to help you!" he muttered to himself, as, with another glance at the pair in the conservatory, he glided away.

CHAPTER XIII.

Heroncourt felt as if he were under a spell. Ever since he had recognized Maida, and realised that she was under his roof, he had been suffering from a kind of suppressed excitement; he who was usually the most calm and unimpressible of men. As a rule he had plenty to say for himself, and when he chose, could talk fluently enough; but now, as he leant over the back of the chair beside her, so that the faint perfume of her hair was perceptible to him, and made his heart throb, he found a difficulty in speaking, as if his mind were too full, too crowded, to permit of expression. And her very calmness, that reposeful serenity which was one of her chief characteristics, only served to more completely destroy his calm; it was as if one were in the presence of a young goddess, too pure, too spiritual, for contact with this work-a-day world with its sordid aims and aspirations.

He knew that he ought to return to his other guests, that the men would wonder where he had gone; but he could not tear himself away, could not let her go back to be absorbed by the rest. He heard Lady Glassbury playing at the piano and drew a sigh of relief. How could he interest this beautiful creature, break the serenity and calm which encircled like a barrier and a charm? In a kind of despair he said, trying to speak quite casually:

"I wonder whether you would like to see some of the things I have collected during my globe-trotting, Miss Carrington? They are in the hall. Will you come?"

"Thank you, I should like to very much," she said, very quietly.

He led her through the conservatory, by a kind of vestibule, into the hall. It was still dimly lighted, and he was about to turn up the electric lamps which were so arranged as to resemble wax candles; but Maida in a low voice, said:

"Ah, don't!"

He lowered the lights again and stood beside her silently. She was standing with her hands loosely clasped in front of her, her eyes wandering slowly round the hall. It was so different to the gorgeous one of the Towers; it was different to anything she had ever seen. The carved panelling, the great fire-place, with its gleaming dog-irons making a shining spot in the dimness, the antique cabinets with their treasures of china and ivory and bronze; the tattered flags suspended from the vaulted roof; the armour on the wall—armour not bought in Wardour Street, but pieces which had been actually worn by Heroncourt's of the remote ages; the rich coloring of purple curtains here and there; the subdued tones of ancient tapestry; the dead white of statuary punctuating the half-tones; it was like an exquisite dream to Maida who was so sensitive to all artistic impressions.

"It is beautiful," she said, in a low voice; and his heart warmed at her praise, for he too had discovered that he admired and loved the old hall.

"Let me show you some of the things," he said, in a voice almost as low as hers—for Maida had the peculiar faculty of impressing her mood upon most persons with whom she came in contact. "Are you fond of old china?"

He went to one of the cabinets and took out some of the pieces, and as he placed one in her hand he thought that, dainty as the china was, it seemed coarse and common against the exquisitely shaggy hand that held it.

"That is old Bohemian," he said. "I picked it up in one of the slums of Prague. That is a Moorish scent-bottle; it got it in Fez. You can smell the otto of roses yet."

"You may break, you may shatter the vase if you will."

The scent of the roses will cling to it still," she murmured to herself.

He nodded, as if the hackneyed lines were the most precious of poetry.

"Here is a Malay cress. The owner and I had a fight for it down in Timor one night. He managed to give me a slight cut; but it was very slight—not so deep as many it had made. You see it is stained here and there."

She put the thing down quickly, and a slight shudder passed over her, as the wind rippled the surface of a mountain tarn.

"I beg your pardon! Forgive me!" he said, penitently. "Here is the pen with which Camens wrote some of his poetry."

Rheumatism Entirely Gone

After Twenty-seven Years of Suffering—Swelling and Puffiness Has Disappeared—No Pain or an Ache Left.

Kincardine, Ont., Jun 25th.—A most astonishing cure of rheumatism and eczema has been reported here, and Mrs. Ray is enthusiastic in telling her many friends how cure was effected.

Rheumatism and eczema frequently go together, and in this case caused the most keen distress imaginable. All the swelling and puffiness resulting from many years of rheumatism have disappeared, and there is not a pain or an ache left.

Mr. G. H. Ray, R.R. No. 1, Kincardine, Ont., writes: "Mrs. Ray has been using your Kidney-Liver Pills. She was very bad with rheumatism and eczema, and had had that fearful itch for twenty-seven years. It was simply terrible when she suffered. I persuaded her to try $1.00 worth of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, she is now on the last box, and let me tell you she has gone down in weight 15 1/2 pounds. She never has an ache nor pain, biliousness nor sick headache all these months. She often says herself 'How glad I am that I know what to do instead of paying doctors so much to make me worse.'"

There is only one way that the poisons in the blood can be cleaned away and the cause of pains and aches removed, and that is by the healthful action of the kidneys, liver and bowels. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills act directly and specifically on these organs and ensure their activity they remove the cause of rheumatism and other dreadfully painful and fatal diseases. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box, all dealers, or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Everyday Etiquette.

"Where should a man walk when he is acting as an escort to two ladies to the theatre?" asked George.

"A man takes the outside of the walk. In escorting two ladies to the theatre he seats them together and sits nearest the end himself. Of course, this last must be modified according to circumstances, there may be some reason why he should sit between the ladies, but by taking the outside seat he prevents either of them from being inconvenienced by the occupant of an adjoining seat," advised his father.

Paste for pies should be rolled very thin. Always brush the under crust with water, and be sure to perforate the upper crust.

Telegram Fashion Plates.

The Home Dressmaker should keep a Catalogue Scrap Book of our Pattern Cuts. These will be found very useful to refer to from time to time.

A PRETTY "PARTY" OR "BEST" DRESS.

2080—One could make this of dimity or dotted Swiss, of lawn or batiste. It is also nice for crepe and albatross, challis and lawn. In wash silk, with a finish of smocking, it will be very pleasing. The lines are simple and very little trimming will be required. Lace edging and insertion, or bands of embroidery would make a pretty finish. Flouncing or bordered goods could be used for this model.

The Pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 1, 2, 3 and 4 years. It requires 2 1/2 yards of 27-inch material for a 4-year size.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps.

A PRACTICAL CONVENIENT MODEL.

1425—Ladies' House Dress, with Long or Short Sleeve.

For utility, comfort and convenience, this design has much to commend it. It closes in coat style, with the centre fronts overlapping. This assures easy and practical adjustment. An ample pocket is arranged over the side front. The waist is finished with a neat collar, and with cuffs for sleeve in short length. The long sleeve is dart fitted. The dart fulness may be cut away and the opening, thus made, be finished with a facing and underlap for buttons and buttonholes or other fasteners; then the sleeve may be turned back over the arm when desired. The Pattern is good for ginghams, percale, lawn, seersucker, soisette, madras, dimity, drill or linen. It is cut in 7 sizes: 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. It requires 6 1/4 yards of 36-inch material for a 36-inch size.

Editor: Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—In conversation with two gentlemen last evening, who are two sons on active service, they suggested that some move ought to be made to induce His Excellency the Governor to use his influence to obtain a furlough for those volunteers who have been here about three years ago with the First Contingent. The two gentlemen to whom I refer have both made great sacrifices to help in this war, but naturally feel a longing to see those brave heroic sons after a lapse of three long years.

His Excellency, I feel confident, will do his utmost in the matter and will succeed if it will mean a renewal of life, as it were, to these heroes, to meet their friends at home, to see more, while to the parents it will be a happiness which no one will wish them richly deserve.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for inserting this appeal.

I remain yours etc.
