SATURDAY EVENING, NOV. 9, 1872. Local and Other Items.

Fall wheat looks well in Egremont.

A new fire brigade is being organized at Ferguson.

The population of the town of Winnipeg, in Manitoba, is now 1,487, having increased nearly 600 during the year.

The brig Lafayette Cook was driven ashore a night or two since, near Port Stanley, on Lake Erie. She was laden with coal.

Remember Hogan & Mudge's Minstrels to-night. The Toronto papers speak in the highest terms of praise about their entertainment given there.

A Chequer Match was played the other night at Biggars' hotel, Elora, between Ferguson and Elora, when Ferguson won by one point.

A new Temperance Lodge, I. O. G. T., was organized at Cummock, on the evening of Friday last. Seventeen members were initiated.

The potato crop of Newfoundland is nearly destroyed by the blight. Some farmers near St. Johns have lost five-sixths of their crops.

The furniture warehouses of Bosley & Gilson, Mount Forest, had a narrow escape from being burned on Friday night last, by the upsetting of a jar of varnish.

We notice that Mr. Charles Lemon, after an absence of some years, has returned to Guelph, and that he is now associated with the firm of Messrs. Lemon & Peterson, barristers.

The Galt Reporter says that Mr. E. Saline, last Sunday night, while going down the gallery stairs of Trinity Church, after taking up the collection, fell head foremost to the bottom, broke his collar bone, a small bone in his wrist, and one of his fingers.

Preparations are being made in Stratford for changing the gauge on the Grand Trunk. This fall it will be changed between Buffalo and Stratford, and from Stratford to Lark and London. The Buffalo and Lake Huron line, from Stratford to Goderich, will not be altered at present.

The Mount Forest Examiner says that one day last week a three year old bull belonging to Mr. Robt. Morrison, Egremont, made a sudden and unexpected attack on one of his horses, which were drawing a plough, and gored him so badly that he died shortly after.

Mr. FROUDE will lecture in Montreal sometime during the month of February next. Prof. Tyndall cannot at present say whether he shall be able to lecture in Montreal or not; and the answer from the Rev. Geo. Macdonald has not yet been received.

The Widow Elliott, landlady of the Eniskillen hotel, a few miles south of Durham, died suddenly on Sunday morning. An inquest was held, when a verdict was returned to the effect that death was caused by an overdose of laudanum, administered it is presumed by herself.

HARPER'S WEEKLY.—Mr. J. Anderson has sent us Harper's Weekly which contains some excellent cartoons about the Presidential election; also, No. 8, of Dore's London Views, containing some beautiful illustrations, all for one price. Mr. Anderson has also received Chamber's Journal for November, an excellent number.

REFERRING to a paragraph which we had on Thursday, that Messrs. Randall, Farr & Co., of Hespeler, had sold their stocking knitting machinery to a firm in Guelph, we may state that Messrs. Armstrong, McCrae & Company, of the Woolen Factory, have purchased the whole machinery, and are now busy making arrangements for putting up and working it.

The Bothwell Review says that another attempt is to be made to re-establish Bothwell as an oil centre. Mr. C. Edwards, who has acquired a large reputation as a well-driller at Petrolia, has removed his valuable set of tools and machinery to Bothwell, and intends to drill the Crowell well to a depth of 1,000 feet as a test. Mr. Edwards has great faith in deep wells for the development of the territory.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—A young lady named Putland, aged about 20, and only daughter of Mr. Putland, of Thorold, was so severely burned on Friday that she died soon after. She was pouring coal oil out of a can in the stove, in order to make it burn, when the oil ignited in the can and exploded, setting fire to her clothes, and burning them completely off before it could be extinguished. She was literally charred in many parts of the body.

A clever attempt at assisting prisoners to escape from the room in the Toronto Court House, took place this morning. Two men had been brought up from jail, and the wife of one of them, while bringing in provisions, tried to supply them with saws embedded in a loaf of bread. Deputy Sheriff Skinner had his suspicions aroused and took possession of a large loaf. On breaking it open he discovered three saws of the finest temper, either of which would suffice to saw through an ordinary prison bar in 15 minutes.

THE ACCIDENT TO MR. JOHN MOORE.—We gave the particulars on Friday of the accident to Mr. John Moore, of Eramosa, which occurred on Thursday evening by his falling through the bridge on the Grand Trunk, on Ostrander's farm, about a mile from Rockwood. Dr. Clarke and Dr. McCullough on Friday morning, on examining him, found that he had received a fracture of the neck of the thigh bone. Fortunately he had received no other injuries, and though the fracture is very painful, and will confine him to the house for some time, yet it will not deprive him of the use of his leg. The sole cause of his falling through was the slippery state of the stringers on which he was walking, caused by the rain and sleet that fell that afternoon.

Wellington Fall Assizes.

THE ARTHUR MURDER CASE.

Ludlow Acquitted; Moore Discharged.

(Isaac Hewitt's evidence continued.) Cross-examined.—The reason why William Ludlow left the wagon was because he heard George's voice and he was afraid he would get into a row; recollect Geo. Church at Lundy's Hotel showing a pistol holding it up by the butt; he said nothing; when asked about the murder shortly after I told prisoner and Ludlow that I did not recollect telling either of them that if they were talking better hide them; never mentioned to mention what prisoner told us in the wagon; will positively swear that I will not swear that I did not tell Brandon that it was not necessary to tell everything; at any rate don't recollect saying so; had some conversation with Draper about withholding certain facts, he replied that I must tell the whole truth; had some doubts at one time as to whether I was telling the truth; but I don't know whether prisoner or Moore were a badge that night, but on being further asked witness admitted prisoner must have had a badge on; recollects George Ludlow picking up a stone on account of the confusion with some person; that he asked him for so doing and he dropped it; don't know if he put any stones in the wagon; George Ludlow was rather the worse of liquor; if I swore at the coroner's inquest that prisoner wore a long black coat, and that he told me that he had jumped on to the flat car it would be untrue, as my memory was fresher then than now.

GEORGE CASWELL, sworn.—Keep hotel at Arthur station; I was in the house when I heard the sound of a shot; I then went out to the end of the platform and I saw shortly after two shots fired in the street; I have not seen as much doubt that the party who fired the shots stood in the Luther road; I called pretty loud to the party returning to the hotel who fired those shots, "Was it Ludlow?" some one answered "no, it was Moore."

Cross-examined.—Where I was standing would be about sixty feet from the hotel; I could see a person at that distance on that night; the train was in motion and the passenger car was just passing; didn't know about the fuss and why it was that I mentioned Ludlow's name in connection with the shots.

THOMAS POLSON, sworn.—Was in Capt. H. Jones' company; Moore asked for the captain's pistol; took it over to Ballantine; returned with it saying it was too small; give him another longer pistol.

ROBERT FARMER, sworn.—Was inside the Arthur station grounds on the night of the 12th July; I was standing close to the cattle-guard; I saw William Ludlow running after the train and fall into the cattle-guard; heard the pistol shots; think they were fired after the passenger car passed; Church came to Ludlow's rescue from the north side of the track.

Cross-examined.—Can't say whether the shots were fired before or after prisoner fell into the cattle-guard; I thought they were fire crackers and not pistol shots, and that they came from the direction of Luther line; I saw several persons standing on the Luther line, but didn't know who they were at the time; after I learned of the murder I was under the impression that some of our party had fired the pistol; never saw Moore leave the wagon to go for his pistol; the way I went with him for the pistol was this: after we returned from Lundy's hotel we drove to Brandon's saloon, and after being there for a few minutes Moore told me that he wished me to go along with him and fetch his pistol which he had laid beside a stump, I objected because I thought it looked bad, but after some persuasion I went along with him; after some little searching found the pistol at the foot of a stump; he asked me to take charge of it, which I did; and returned it to him at the gate of his own house.

GEORGE CHURCH, sworn.—Was at the Arthur station on the night of the 12th of July last; heard the disturbance there; first saw prisoner some forty to fifty feet back; he ran past me; I heard three shots fired; prisoner could not have fired these shots, because I saw him running behind the train at the time; the shots seemed to come from the direction of the Luther road; prisoner owned a pistol, but it was in my desk at the blacksmith shop; took it from him on Dominion day; if prisoner had a pistol on the 12th it could not have been his own; am pretty sure the pistol shots were fired from the Luther road.

Cross-examined.—First went to the right side and then went to the left side of the track and remained there; I did not see the prisoner until I saw him running after the train; I got on the track from the south side; can't tell whether prisoner fell into the cattle-guard on the right side of the track; recollect O'Connell speaking in the wagon about the disturbance that had been done, and also Hewitt's reply recollect holding up a pistol at Lundy's; I was considerably the worse of liquor, and perhaps don't remember everything; recollect the pistol produced as prisoner's; there were seven grooves and langes on the bullet produced; the other pistol (produced) has only five grooves; the bullet produced could not have been fired from the five groove pistol; I never fixed the authorship of the shots on any person; I never told Stevenson or any other person that when I pulled Ludlow out of the cattle-guard, I had the prisoner's pistol from Dominion night till I gave it up to the Coroner, (at the suggestion of counsel, the witness whittled a piece of stick in order to test the accuracy of the number of grooves in the 5 groove revolver, and resulted in the fact being admitted as was alleged.)

JOHN HASSARD, sworn.—Was at Arthur station on the 12th July; heard a disturbance there; I was up stairs in the sitting-room at Caswell's hotel and heard a pistol shot; I went downstairs and outside, and heard two other pistol shots; they were fired by the prisoner, Moore, in rapid succession; I was about five yards from him at the time; knew Moore well; Moore ought to have known me for I had a drink with the party at the hotel; I spoke to Moore about having shot that man; he replied that "he did not care a d—n"; the man shot fell on train.

Cross-examined.—Was an Orangeman; am not now; was turned out of Orange Lodge which which I was connected; when I was at the cattle-guard I did not see Farmer or Church there; did not see any person on the cattle-guard; did not see a person fall in some time after the train passed; can't say whether Stephenson was in the room upstairs when I left; can't say whether Josephine Bennett remained to the room before I went down stairs; when I was looking out of the window I saw two shots fired and a man killed; never said that the evidence at the inquest pointed to Ludlow, and if his evidence could have been torn up he would tell a different story altogether; never said so to Bacon and Martin on the train coming down; deny telling W. Brandon behind his stable that it was William Ludlow who shot HENRY; told him it was Moore who did so; never told Josephine Bennett that if I would swear against Ludlow I would have to leave the country; did not see Caswell or Carr standing on the platform; never saw any more observant than others, that don't remember that my evidence was read over to me at the inquest; as read over now it seems a good deal mixed up, and pretty much all wrong; noticed that Moore wore a rosette that night.

ROBERT HASSARD, sworn.—Heard Moore on the night of the 12th of July say that he heard two shots fired, but did not know who fired them; this took place opposite Clarke's.

The following rebuttal evidence was called:

JAMES MOORE recalled for the prosecution.—Never said what was reported by Stevenson; it was reported that night before I got home; Farmer's statement about leaving Brandon's hotel for the pistol is incorrect; as I stated before we left the wagon for that purpose.

RICHARD BRANDON recalled.—Moore was not at my tavern that night after the firing of the shots; Hewitt told me that I was not to tell what Ludlow said if I could possibly help it; Hewitt spoke to me several times about not being bound to tell all I knew about the matter; before John Hassard was subpoenaed he told me that it was William Ludlow who fired the shot; I have not seen as much doubt that the matter was as I did; I did not say what Constable Moore has represented me to say, that Jack Hassard said he was close to the man who fired the shot.

By Mr. Cameron.—Can't remember if either Farmer or Moore was at my house on that night after we returned from Lundy's.

JAMES MARTIN, sworn.—Heard John Hassard say that if his evidence could be torn up he would swear a different thing (the witness explaining that this meant something plumper against Moore).

EDWARD LEECH, sworn.—Proceeded to this much to account for the colouring and discrepancies in this case, that I usually proceed to lay before them the two points of importance and the evidence by which they were sustained. These points were, "Where were the shots fired, and by whom?" The theory of the defence was that the shots were not fired within the Company's grounds, but from the adjacent highway—the Luther road and that the shots were fired by some other person than prisoner. His Lordship here refreshed the minds of the Jury by reading over the entire evidence from beginning to end, a remark from Mr. M. J. Cameron that he regarded such a course as injudicious in criminal matters, on account of the improbability of the Judge taking down many important little matters. His Lordship then proceeded to comment on the evidence given, in the first point drawing attention to the fact that nearly all the witnesses for the Crown testified that the shots were fired inside the Company's grounds, and to the evidence for the defence that they were fired from the Luther road, and the inability of the witness Farmer being able to say whether it was before or after he pulled prisoner out of the cattle-guard. Then as to who fired the shots; most of the Railway employees point to prisoner as being the man who jumped on the platform car, and who, after jumping off, fired the pistol; three witnesses, Ogden, R. Brandon and Moore, friends of prisoner, positively identify him as the man who fired the fatal shot. For the defence it was contended that by Church's testimony prisoner could not have fired the fatal shot because he saw him running behind the train at the time it was fired, and Hassard swears that he was on the Luther road and saw Moore fire the shot from there. It must be borne in mind that the two girls' testimony is to be believed, Hassard was in Caswell's hotel at the time he stated, and, therefore, the jury had to be careful in considering his evidence. With reference to the attack upon Moore's veracity, and his saying that it was George Ludlow, was explainable, on the ground that his saying so would be sufficient to give rise to the belief in other witnesses that he said so. It was very strange, however, that he should say it was George in the morning, and swear it was William in the evening at the inquest. This and many other things were hard to reconcile, and it was the Jury's province to endeavor to do so; they were the best judges of the evidence and from the manner of the witnesses they could draw their own conclusions. It was a great matter of thankfulness that there was no religious question at stake; the parties were all Orangemen together, and whilst they were to give the prisoner the benefit of every reasonable doubt they were not to shrink from doing their duty in returning a verdict either of manslaughter or murder if they considered the evidence demanded their doing so.

The Jury then retired, the foreman, Mr. Arthur Jones, of Eramosa, intimating in reply to His Lordship that he did not think they would be long absent, an intimation that seemed to impress a number of the public that the verdict would be favorable. At five minutes to 12 o'clock p. m., the Jury, after an absence of more than an hour, returned into Court with a verdict of Noe Guilty, which was immediately followed by loud hurrahs from prisoner's friends, and which were at once suppressed by the officers of the Court. The prisoner then left the dock, and was warmly congratulated by the large crowd of relations and others who had now surrounded him. We may add that prisoner appeared confident that the verdict would be in his favor, and looking to the Jury exclaimed: "Well, boys, I'm discharged an innocent man."

MOORE DISCHARGED.

In consequence of the evidence in the previous case being the same as against Moore, the Crown did not deem it necessary to place him on his trial and he was accordingly discharged from custody, amid the warm congratulations of his friends.

the evidence, showing very conclusively the occurring testimony of the witnesses for the crown, even without the aid of Moore's testimony, and dwelling with great force on the worthlessness of Hassard's evidence, whom he dubbed "a constitutional liar." He called on the jury to do their duty according to their consciences, leaving the consequences of their verdict, if it should be adverse to the prisoner, to that judicial authority which can also deal with it after their understanding thereof. This is the first occasion we believe that Mr. Wood has appeared on this circuit, and from the very able manner in which he managed the case, in conjunction with the valuable assistance of his confederate, Mr. Peterson, County Attorney, left a most favorable impression on the minds of the spectators of the legal qualities of the learned gentleman, who, we understand, intends devoting himself in future to the exercise of his profession.

At this stage the Jury retired for refreshment, and the Court stood adjourned till 9 p. m., when his Lordship proceeded to address the Jury.

He commented on the gravity of the crime with which prisoner stood charged; and said that the case was one of considerable difficulty on account of the contradictory evidence with which it was surrounded. The variety of statements made by witnesses as to an occurrence, is due very much to what was passing through their minds at the time, the occurrence happening at night, some having better eye-sight and hearing than others, some more observant than others, and matters of a similar nature; all these combine to make contrariety of opinion among witnesses when testifying in a matter of this kind. A great deal of difficulty attendant on the truth in such cases is owing in a great measure to the manner in which such evidence is taken at coroner's inquests; where there is usually an absence of that care and accuracy which is so essential in the interests of justice, and where witnesses often give an unnecessary colouring to their testimony from the belief that it is incumbent on them to do the best for whichever side they are called, and they are too apt on such occasions to shield a friend and fix an enemy. Many witnesses think that they should only answer the questions put them, and that it is not their business to volunteer evidence which may be of the greatest value in arriving at the truth. It is readily seen, therefore, that much difficulty ensues, and which only a practised hand at taking evidence can properly unravel, and hence it is that so much of inquest evidence when exposed to a skilful cross-examination assumes a totally different aspect. Having said this much to account for the colouring and discrepancies in this case, the witness proceeded to lay before them the two points of importance and the evidence by which they were sustained. These points were, "Where were the shots fired, and by whom?" The theory of the defence was that the shots were not fired within the Company's grounds, but from the adjacent highway—the Luther road and that the shots were fired by some other person than prisoner. His Lordship here refreshed the minds of the Jury by reading over the entire evidence from beginning to end, a remark from Mr. M. J.
