Berlin, Oct. 21.—Stringent measures are being taken to prevent the deficiency in a genuine article from being replaced by an inferior substitute, as may be gathered from an order just issued by the Prefect of Police in this city. By this mandate the street vendors of hot frankfurters are compelled to display a large sign on their cooking cans describing their sausages as made of horseflesh whenever such is the case. The order was issued in consequence of numerous complaints, and the result is that the itinerant sausage venders have become scarce in the better parts of the city. In the workingmen's quarters, however, he boldly flaunts his sign, and there the movelty of the confession is already wearing off, while the business continues to flourish. Sharp Words from Granville.

London, Oct. 21.—In a speech at Newcastle Lord Granville said the Tories pretended they were confident of the result of appealing to the country, yet they delayed dissolving Parliament as long as possible. Referring to the new American tariff he said: "Exaggerated language has been used with regard to the McKinley tariff, which will not injure us as much as was expected. It is certain to be more injurious to American herself." He added that the measure would tell against American farmers and artisans, and eventually agains American manufacturers. After generally censuring the Government for its policy toward Ireland, he strongly condemned the practice of "shadowing." from which he said even a felon in England is exempt.

Mr. Gladstone Starts on His Scottish
Tour.

London, Oct. 21.—Mr. Gladstone will be accompanied by his wife throughout his tour of Scotland. They left Liverpool yesterday morning. Four hundred persons gathered at the railway station at Wigan and Mr. Gladstone was heartily cheered. The crowd shouted that they did not want him to make a speech but wanted him to reserve his voice in order to be able to speak in Midlothian and demolish the Tories. Mr. Gladstone nevertheless made a short speech, in which he said that Midlothian knew what to do of itself. Nothing was left for him to do in that respect. At Preston hundreds of persons gathered at the station to welcome Mr. Gladstone, and he was loudly cheered upon his wrival. When Carlisle was reached a crowd numbering 1,500 was found waiting the coming of the train. Mr. Gladstone delivered an address here. In the course of his remarks he said he had no fear for Scotland and hoped England would do as well in the home rule movement as the people of the former country. When Mr. Gladstone reached Edinburgh he received a large number of leading Scotch politicians. There was a large crowd at the station, and he was given an ovation. He bowed his thanks.

Morley on Balfour.

London, Oct. 21.—Mr. Morley addressed his constituents in Newcastle last evening. He said he had promised when at leisure to write a history of England from 1886 to the next general election, but he despaired of being able to please Mr. Balfour in so doing. Mr. Balfour's arguments in his recent speeches were mainly tuquoque misrepresentations and irrelevancies. The speaker remind Mr. Balfour that the Compensation of Disturbance Bill of 1880, the Arrears Bill of 1882, and the Tramways Bill of 1883 were all due to Parnellite suggestions, and that the Land Bill of 1887 was drafted on the basis Mr. Parnell suggested in 1886. As late as last July Mr. Balfour said in the House of Commons: "I think the member for Cork's suggestions worthy of most attentive consideration." Mr. Balfour's statement that he (Morley) had been only five days in Ireland was absolutely untrue. In addition to bearing the burden of the whole Irish Department during that session of Parliament, doing laborious and incessant work on the Home Rule and Land Bills, and taking part in two election contests in Newcastle during his term of office, he had visited Ireland at Easter and Whitsuntide, and the final visit itself exceeded five days. Mr. Balfour was responsible for the exceptional coercive Govceeded five days. Mr. Balfour was re sponsible for the exceptional coercive Gov ernment, and he ought still more to super-vise it on the spot. He would defer re-plying to the Balfour strictures until he had time to sift them, merely remarking that the Liberals had ap-pointed a commission of inquiry into the Belfast riots, while Mr. Balfour had no commission to inquire into the toubles at justice recently to say that he had said a word against them. Mr. adhered to his previous assertion t police had used excessive force in
