ROBBED OF HER TRESSES.

Miss Pence's Hair Cut Clande etinely While She Was Napping.

Indianapolis, Sept. 14.-While the 18year-old daughter of Joseph Pence, a wealthy farmer of Madison county, was indulging in a nap at the farmhouse yesterday some one slipped into the room and clipped off her hair, which was done up in a plait and which measured 28 inches in length. The man was afterward seen crossing a field and disappeared in a wood. The girl set store by her beautiful tresses and is heart-broken over the loss. The despoilment is attributed to a discarded suitor. Mr. Pence telegraphed for a brace of blood-hounds to follow the tracks and vows he will find use for a shotgun in case the despoiler is over-

Death Through the Kidneys.

Hardly any organs of the human system play a more vital part than the kidneys. A derangement of these, even to a slight degree, will lead to trouble that is likely, if not stayed, to prove fatal. There is only one way for the system to be rid of this disease, and that is by trying a medicine that will act specially, and is a specific for kidney disease. This is the strong factor in the great South American Kidney Cure. It is prepared specially for these organs, is radical in its banishment of disease located here, and rich in the healing powers necessary to complete retoration.

This eminent firm holds two opinions very strongly. The first is that an exhibition building with its noise and busyour esteem, as well as make it a the is scarcely the place in which the positive advantage for you to trade tonal beauties of a fine instrument of any description can be heard to advantage. In point of fact it is as a rule only those instruments possessing a brassy and wiry tone which can be heard at all amidst such a noise.

The Company recognizes the fact, however, that an exhibition is one of the most popular means of making the name of a manufacturing concern known to large numbers who may not have heard it before, fore, no matter how famous the house may be, and they therefore believe in keeping themselves in evidence by having an exhibit at the principal exhibitions in this country.

The second opinion to which the company holds so strongly is that it is manifestly unfair to manufacture instruments for exhibition purposes on which perhaps three or four times the money has been expended than is usually spent upon the ordinary instruments sold by the exhibiting firm. This extra money is usually spent in case-work only, and the Mason & Risch concern, taking exception as it does to this course, exhibits only a few representative instruments of their ordinary styles such as they make and sell every

These instruments, while quiet in appearance and subdued in tone, are finished both as to outward appearance and musical quality in the most refined style of art. Their quiet elegance of appearance at once attracts the attention of people of good taste. Their instruments have so long been known in this locality as the instruments of the cultured section of the community that it is scarcely necessary for us to say much about them, but it may be added that their extraordinary durability is well illustrated by the fact that three-fourths of the largest teaching institutions of the country use these planes. Some colleges have between twenty and thirty of them, and it is a well-known fact that a plano which will stand the strain of the use which is given to it in a musical college must be made with the most remarkable degree of mechanical excellence. Leaving durability out of the question, however, let us say that the tone, touch and general musical quality ing par excellence the artist's instru-

The immortal Lizst (the greatest pi-anist who over lived) said: "The Mason & Risch grand piano is excellent, magnificent, unequalled." This was probably the greatest compliment ever paid to a piano manufacturer in any coun-

Whilst Sir A. E. Mackenzie (principal Royal Academy of London), going more into details, said: "I wish to express my high opinion of your planes. I was struck by the amount of tone-color which may be produced from them. Rich tone, quick responding touch, with durable mechanism, are the requisite qualities in a fine pianoforte.
You have secured all these."

These are merely extracts from many letters of a similar character received by Mason & Risch from the eminent ones of the world, and it must be a satisfaction to the people of London to be in possession of so many instru-ments of this celebrated manufacture. The Company has its own store in Lon-

DIED OF HYDROPHOBIA. The Dead Boy Bitten on the Lip Aug. 6 by a Dog.

New York, Sept. 14.-Frank Ther died of hydrophobia Wednesday night, at the home of his parents, No. 131 Neilson street, Jersey City. He was bitten by a mad dog on Tuesday, Aug. 6.
The dog jumped on him from beneath a porch, knocking him down and biting him on the lip. It was not supposed at the time that the dog was mad, although he was subsequently shot. The boy's wound was dressed by a physician, but was not cauterized. Frank went to the Bayard street school Tuesday morning when the school reopened. He remained through the morning and returned apparently well. Between 4 and 5 o'clock he could not eat fruit, and began to complain of pains in the back. The pains grew worse, but none of the usual symptoms of hydrophobia appeared. At 8 a.m. Wednesday the physician decided it was hydrophobia. The boy grew worse and repelled water, but did not become violent until about twenty minutes before his death. Then it required the strength of his father and another man to hold him. He was 9 years old.
