BEGINNING TO FIND OUT.

(Manitoba Free Press.)

When Ambassador Gerard was after some hesitation, given his passport by the German Foreign Office, the understrapper who delivered the papers informed the ambassador that the Americans would not fight any war.

The Kaiser and his satellites are beginning to find out whether the Americans will fight. What has happened to date is a mere foretaste of what is to come when a couple of million Americans, lined up with the British, French and Italian allies will march forward "over the line and across the Rhine," shouting "Hip-hip hooray!" as the Yankee war-song has it.

There is the less excuse for the German misconception about the Americans because they had previously admitted their parallel blunder about the British armies. Contempt, first for the British armies, and then for the Americans sprang from the same cause; a feeling that only a militarized nation, in the grip of a military caste, with an hereditary aptitude and taste for war, can successfully make war on the modern scale.

They knew nothing about the fighting power of aroused democracies. But they are learning, with most of the lessons yet to come.

PUBLISHERS TO MEET.

The newspaper publishers have been called to meet at Sackville on Wednesday, August 14th, for the purpose of reorganizing the Maritime Press Association, which has been dormant for the past few years. An exceptionally strong programme has been arranged for the meeting and items of interest to the press will be discussed from all points of view. War conditions have revolutionized the newspaper industry, and there is no doubt much good will accrue from the coming meeting.

DALHOUSIE.

DALHOUSIE, N. B. Aug. 7.—Sunday the 4th of August being the anniversary of the formation of the congregation of St. John's Church, Dalhousie, some eight odd years ago, being also the sixteen anniversary of the opening of the present church, erected to replace the one destroyed by lightning in 1901, and the fourth anniversary of the declaration of War by Great Britain against Germany and her allies, special services relating to these events were conducted most interestingly by the minister, Rev. J. H. McLean.

The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion, and the whole service was much enjoyed by a large congregation.

Miss Wilkinson of Quebec and other friends assisted the choir very effectively in the musical part of the service.

A special offering to wipe out a debt of two hundred dollars due on the name sufficed to relieve the congregation of further liability.

Mr. and Mrs. George Haddow celebrated their marriage at the home of Rev. Mr. John of New Mills, on the second of August, returning to their home in the evening in time to receive the congratulations of friends nearby.

The Dalhousie Convent will reopen Sept. 4th as a large number of applications have already been received, it is hoped that this will be one of the best years since the convent has been opened.

A regular commercial course will be continued and attended by many young ladies of all denominations.

The school year ending June 28th was attended by very gratifying success. Twenty two music diplomas, from the Dominion College, Montreal, were obtained by the young ladies, Miss Bernice LeBlanc winning the beautiful medal offered by the same college for distinction in her examinations, Senior and Laweate.

Twenty of the candidates for Normal School Entrance were successful. The following young ladies getting first class: Misses Elaine Hache, Corine Elisiger, Bernice LeBlanc, Lola Doucet. Those getting second class were: Misses Yvonne Roy, Marguerite LaPointe, Corina Blanchard, Amelia LeTourneau, Blanche Geron and the three other candidates third class.

The following pupils won medals for speed as typists:—Master Romeo Laviole, aged fourteen, winning one silver medal and two gold ones, taking his place as third speed typist in Canada with one hundred and five words per minute. Misses Lola Doucet, Joseph Herrell also won silver medals, and Misses Kathleen Delaney, Annie McInerney, Lucienne Gauthier, Blanche LaPointe Celina Landry, winning diplomas from the Underwood Co. Toronto. Miss Helen Elisiger obtaining the bronze medal for efficiency as a typist.

The Gold Medals awarded by Reverend Father Boucher to the Normal School candidates were won by Bernice LeBlanc and Yvonne Roy. Miss Corine Elisiger being the successful winner last year.

Daring British Airmen

Perform Numerous Acts

That Read Like Romances

Now is permitted, writes a correspondent of the Daily Chronicle, to transcribe from Admiralty records the story of certain typical achievements, occurring in different countries at different dates, of the R.N.A.S.

Those records read like a sort of "Arabian Nights Entertainment." There is, for example, the "Story of an Airman who Tried to Bomb the Kaiser and then Butted into a Mountain."

On one occasion particular attention was paid to Chanak, in consequence of information that the Kaiser and his entourage was paying a visit there. Only one of the machines reached the town, on which the pilot dropped a number of bombs. After that his luck changed. In returning he struck the side of a mountain in the darkness, and the machine caught fire on crashing. But things might have been worse, he thought severely injured, the hero was able to climb out of his machine, and he was found next morning by a Greek shepherd.

Postscript: At dawn on the following day, an extremely bad weather, and in spite of heavy anti-aircraft fire, British machines effectively bombed Chanak.

The reader may now like to peruse the "Brief History of an Airman Who, After a Busy Day, Went Home by Train."

In October, 1916, a number of R.N.A.S. machines were despatched from Imbros to Bucharest, a distance of 310 miles. Thunderstorms and thick mists were encountered, and all those airmen had a bad time. But we have to do merely with one of them. After passing westward of Adrianople he got mixed up with shocking weather, and an electric storm cost him the control of his machine. From 3,000 feet he fell to 1,000 feet, which height he emerged upside down out of a cloud. Fortunately control was regained at 500 feet. While in the cloud he saw several loops the loop without wanting to, and his compass became useless.

He decided to land, with a view, if possible, to an adjustment of fittings. Alas! he came down near a Bulgarian camp. Having discovered his mistake, he was "tagging" off, when a party of Bulgarians opened fire upon him. Turning, he charged his enemies, whom he scattered with a few rounds from his machine-gun. Presently our young hero was following the course of a river, in the hope of striking the Danube. Thirty Bulgarians on a barge opened fire upon him with their rifles. So he swung round and emptied a tray of ammunition into that barge. With the result that all those Bulgarians were soon in the water. But the day was not yet over. After crossing the Danube he ran into rain and fog, completely losing his bearings, and ultimately he came down in Russian territory. Thence he returned to Bucharest by train.

Finally, I should like to find room for the case of "A British Pilot Who Did Not Mind Cold." On Monday, the 10th, he was encountered by five hostile machines at 15,000 feet. He attacked them single-handed and four retreated. Into the fifth, a Fokker, he fired twenty rounds, causing it to dive steeply into the sea at Ostend. Then he noticed, not far away, a large Aviatik that seemed to want something, so gave it the rest of his tray. Then the Aviatik likewise dived steeply. But this is not quite all. On his way home the British pilot encountered another Aviatik, and, diving at it from 15,000 feet, he forced it to descend.

A service which, although at the outset of war included only some five or six dozen machines, has now doubled that number of officers, now has to its credit two V.C.'s (Flight-Lieut. Warneford and Wing-Commander Bill Davies); 29 D.S.O.'s, the annihilation of three Zeppelins, innumerable bombardments of Zeppelins and the docks of Ostend, the bringing of nearly two dozen London raiders, the dropping of 12,000 lbs. of food and a quantity of medical stores in besieged Kut, and the winning of praise from Sir Douglas Haig for services rendered in the present prolonged and colossal battle.

Cooks Bake Foot Powder.

An amusing story is being told relative to the American expeditionary force in France. The army cooks at a camp in France lately had a sudden windfall in the shape of an unexpected ton of white flour. They worked that flour for all it was worth. Some of it went into bread, more of it went into pies. And when these appeared for use the reputation of the cooks was made.

But before even a sample could be taken an angry officer stormed the camp kitchen and demanded the lifeblood of the men who had laid ill-fated hands on a ton of foot-powder for which he had successfully indentured a week before. Over the fate of the good things a bill has been closely drawn.

A Wonderful Service.

How great have been the demands upon the British merchant marine for the preservation of ships for purely military purposes is shown by the statistics of the first two and a quarter years of the war. During that time 2,000,000 tons were transported across the sea and over a million sold and wounded. Of supplies and explosives 2,450,000 tons were carried, besides 1,000,000 horses and cattle, and 47,000,000 gallons of petrol. If the channel tunnel had been built in the days before the war, a vast amount of merchant tonnage, now employed on transport service, would have been available for the world's commercial service. — Science Magazine.

TOO MUCH JAM.

Old Gent—You say you are crying because you jammed your finger, little boy!

Tommy—Y-yes, sir. I put my finger in the jam, mother caught me doing it.

Most people would rather blame a man for what he does not than give him credit for what he does.
