goal. Two games were claimed by the Shamrocks but were disallowed by the umpires. The play continued, and after nine minutes' play from the start Heelan got the ball safely through the flags for the Shamrocks. Heelan again got the second game for the Shamrocks at the Schamocks. In the Camporay enclosure, inside of which was about two minutes. The Torontos seemed unnerved by the sudden rath of the Shamrocks, but gradually recovered for the Shamrocks in tem furnitures. Consider the sum of the Shamrocks in tem furnitures, thus winning them the match. The game was too short to give a chance to exhibit good play, and an individual distinction is out of the question. Suffice it to say that Mitchell played gamely, and got a run in for goal, but Morton was equal to the emergency and seat the ball diying back. Mackenzie too got in a good throw, which was a close shave on goal. Burns did his work well, and with the exception of Crown the least said about the rest the better. The Samrocks, with two weeks' daily practice, were in fine trin, and played together like a piece of machinery. One surprising feature of the game was the absence of rough play. Hobbell got a cut on the jaw in the first game and was disabled, McKay taking his place for the remainder of the match.

The Torontos speak well of the manner in which they were treated by the Shamrocks and their friends. They arrived home yesteredy forenoon, and the large crowd that greeted them was not by any means so enthusiastic as when they left on Fridsy evening. Mourning goeth on in the camp.
