HOW TO HELP THE WORLD.

Every day, and especially since the elec tons, The World has been receiving cong tulations from many persons both by mouth and by letter. "We like The World," they say and "want sto see it go ahead." Well there is just one way to realize that wish and that is to subscribe for the paper and get your friends to do the same, and if you have any advertising send it along as well. A fresh, strong and healthy newspaper lives on dollars and cents not on good wishes. The letters of I. J. H. in another column has the right ring about it. COUNTING THEM OUT.

One of the most discreditable acts of the government just before the election-even worse than the gerrymauder was the amendment of the election law, so that partizan returning officers might be appointed, and another change which increased the deposit made by candidates from $50 to close it would have been easy for the partizan returning officers to count the conservatives in. We are in no position to say seat for Bothwell, but the public will be inclined to suspect that his opponent, Mr. Hawkins, had everything in his favor in the count. At all events Mr. Hawkins has been counted in. And one prominent conservative said yesterday that they could count in Mr. Plumb if they wished to.

THE INDUSTRIES OF THE WORLD. The official report of the United States commission at the Paris universal exposition of 1878 has been published in five large and beautiful volumes, abundantly illustrated. They throw much light on the comparative industrial position of the various countries of the world. Each country has its speciality. In art Italy is found to excel. The mosaic work of that superior to anything of the kind produced elsewhere. The report on textile fabrics gives England the preponderance over all others. France and Switzerland carry off the palm for the perfection and ingenuity of their clock-work. Clocks that would run a month without winding, were numerous, and there was one watch no larger than a dime which was certified to be an excellent time keeper, and would strike the hours and half hours. In dentistry and silverware several American firms obtained the highest praise. The American dry goods have also reached a high degree of perfection, and their manufacture is being pushed forward to an extent which threatens serious rivalry to the English industry which free trade (has left defenceless.

When King Pyrrhus surveyed the scene signs of declension in popular support, mandering; "My good friend, Boultbee, has been badly beaten" by Mr. Mackenzie, and no one is particularly sorry for his exclusion from parliament; Poetaster Plumb will no loager bore the house. That Sir John should have been returned to power was of course a foregone conclusion simply because to have put the liberals in office would have involved treason to the one all-important issue which the common sense of Canada recognizes as vital. THE AMERICAN CANADIANS. [BY A CANADIAN NATIONALIST.]

In the beginning of the national movement in Canada the great effort was to get the men of British origin and proclivities converted to Canadianism. In this respect Canada is greatly indebted to Sir John A. Macdonald or rather to the fact of his being of a hardly contested battle with the legions out of office at the time. At an earlier of Rome, he remarked that another such period the "National Policy" was victory would be worse than a defeat. But apart from the diminished authority, those who read the signs of the times can perceive indications that the promise of future success is not to be sought in the conservative camp. Their trump cards have been played, with less result than might have been played, with less result than might have been anticipated by such experienced gamblers. But it does not follow that the future is to the jiberals. Everything to them depends on reconstruction, on the abolition of gritism, on the definite and unmistakable disarrowsh of the reconcilable and cantankerous journal which has out-lived its usefulness and became a dead weight on the party if once led.
