CONVERSION. In reply to a rather caustic and... remark of a neighbor...

Prof. J. W. ... I like to know when you will get enough old women to be teachers...

"Old women" is my friend's reply. I think I do not quite understand the drift of your question.

"I dare say not," was the reply. "If you will be apt to find it out for yourself if you try teaching the Science of Living to young people, nowadays."

Human race is the name of the world over and nobody can tell what is best for themselves...

It is only old women who really know anything about the matter, because only they do who know all the muscle ropes that are pulled to keep the ball of life rolling...

It is only old women who really know anything about the matter, because only they do who know all the muscle ropes that are pulled to keep the ball of life rolling...

It is only old women who really know anything about the matter, because only they do who know all the muscle ropes that are pulled to keep the ball of life rolling...

And, just here, political economy thrusts its nose in and claims right to be heard, but we cannot stop to be heard, knowing full well that we do, Sociology and all the other sciences will come marching in with a mob of men that will only mangle us at a fubbery that we will forget our subject under discussion...

So, let us at the door and let us have no more of our little boys and girls and boys and girls...

This, we find, is clothing and certainly we have here a most congenial subject for an evening's talk...

DOMESTIC ECONOMY. My evening I was talking with a friend about the science of economics, and of domestic economy, and particularly of a dear old lady whom we call Grandma, sat near, peacefully knitting a child's stocking, and seemingly oblivious to our conversation...

And now the ways and means part of our life comes before us—and a most important part it is for which we have so many money to spend on food and clothing, it generally depends upon the housekeeper whether it is used to the best advantage. The housewife knows how to buy the kind of food that will best supply the wants of her family, and has good judgment in the choice of clothing and furniture, it is a truly a wage earner as the man who works outside. She must learn that the expenditures should never come upon her when we will be free from the worry of excessive uncertainty of income, but her golden rule, and the wisest lesson she will learn will be in the art of very economical living.

REILLY THE HATTER. 622 Queen St. West. Very Beneficial to Health. I take pleasure in stating that the St. Leon Mineral Water is very beneficial to health. It is a pure, natural, and healthful water, and is highly recommended by the medical profession. It is sold in bottles of 12, 24, and 48 bottles each.
