Sufferers are not generally aware that these diseases are contagious, or that they are due to the presence of living parasites in the membrane of the nose and eustachian tubes. Microscopic research, however, has proved this to be a fact, and the result is that a simple remedy has been formulated, whereby Catarrh, Catarrhal Deafness and Hay Fever are cured in from one to three simple applications made at home. A pamphlet, explaining this new treatment, is sent free on receipt of stamp, by

FIVE BANKS WINDING UP

Such is the news from the Official Gazette of Ottawa. What an amount of loss the starting of these superfluous and worse than useless banks have inflicted upon the public. By subscribing to their stock at par, hundreds of men expected to make money through the rise in value and were bitterly disappointed. Thousands of innocent people interested their all in the stock, or placed the savings of a life-time in the savings bank branches, on account of the expectation of better returns than could be given by the sound and well established banks. Now that the five young banks have failed these people and a good many others, can see clearly that they did wrong, and acted foolishly. In putting their money at risk in those new, untried, experimental affairs, their eyes have been opened since the failure.

But it was just as foolish for them to put their money there (upon the expectation of greater value for it than the older and richer banks could give) before their eyes were so rudely opened, as after. They did not then see, now they do see

Upwards of twenty two long years the writer of this advertisement has represented one of the oldest and most carefully conducted, and most profitable Life Insurance Companies of this continent—

THE AETNA LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY, OF HARTFORD, CONN.

During all that time he has kept his property, as well as his life insurance, in the oldest and most solid institutions. What were deemed tempting inducements have been held out for change, but by pursuing this line, no loss has been met with. Fire Insurance companies, Life Insurance companies, Building societies and banks, of much room character, have caused heavy losses to thousands during that time, who thought they saw in them better returns for their money in years to come than would be drawn from a With Profits Endowment Bond issued by the AETNA LIFE, and payable ten, fifteen or twenty years from date, or earlier death.

$100,000.00 A YEAR

on the average, has been and will be paid down in solid gold, or its equivalent, in this Dominion by the old AETNA LIFE, to those who were wise enough to see the rich and solid investment afforded by these bonds ten, fifteen and twenty years ago. The grand thing about this is that, unlike the old style, or the new style life insurance, you do not have to die to win. Nor do you squander, or lessen your estate, as many are foolishly doing, in joining societies from which no return for all the money paid is obtainable should the policy or membership be dropped, from any cause. No such business as that is done by the AETNA LIFE. All its Life Policies and Endowment Bonds are Nonforfeiting after three, and most of them after two years' payments are made.

Before insuring elsewhere, call for our rates, and do not believe the man who tells you some other company has done, or can do better for you, until you have investigated the matter thoroughly for yourself. It will pay you to see what the AETNA has done and is likely to do.

"Blow the trumpet, beat the drum,
Here the temperance soldiers come,
Girls and boys in armor bright,
Ready to defend the Right.

Frith our armor, Right our shield,
All the world our battle-field,
Old King Alcohol our foe,
And to fight him we must go.

Feet to keep the narrow way,
Eyes to watch they do not stray,
Hands to stay this erring youth,
Tongues to tell the honest truth.

Temperance is the queen we own,
As we rally round her throne,
Never doubting, standing fast,
Knowing we shall win at last

Temperance Record.

"Good Creatures of God."

DAVID WYER reported in the New York Times was the speaker of the following: "Said a drinker to me once, thinking he'd got me quite in a close place, 'I'd just like to ask you one question. You condemn wine and beer—how can you do that if you believe that God made everything for the use of man?' 'Easily enough,' said I, 'God made good grapes and good barley for the use of man, and man's gone and messed and spoiled them to get wine and beer out of them to make himself drunk. God made everything for man's use, but He didn't make everything to go down man's throat.' Well, isn't that so? God made everything for man's use, I say, but He didn't make everything to go down man's throat. Stones in a quarry are all very well in their way; but how would you like 'em ground up and put in your soup? The wool on a sheep's back is a fine thing, too, and it makes famous warm coats for cold weather. But suppose, now, that you had an old coat at home (as I dare say some of you have), and that when you came back, tired and hungry after a hard day's work, you found the wife chopping up one of those coats to fry for supper. (Laughter.) 'Why wife,' says you, 'what on earth are you at?' 'Oh,' says she, 'God made everything for man's use, you know, so we're going to have some old-coat steaks to-night.' (Renewed laughter and applause.)"

A Life-Long Testotaler to be Imitated.

If we were to search earth's history past and present, for a model public character to particularly commend to the youth and manhood of this great republic, our eye would instinctively rest on Abraham Lincoln. The recent unveiling of the statue in bronze at Lincoln Park, Chicago, reintroduces the majestic figure of a most worthy public exemplar, the great man of the people, who at their command 27 years ago, was brought forward and made the chief ruler of a great nation. The simple and almost pathetic story of the rise of this model American from humble origin to the highest office in the realm, is familiar to all.

In early life he adopted fixed principles of total abstinence from all intoxicants. To a firm adherence to those principles through life, he acknowledged that he owed more in shaping and rounding out his great career than to almost all other influences which inspired and surrounded him. Will the young men of the country please remember and make a note of the acknowledged fact, that total abstinence did most in perfectly moulding the greatest and most lovable character the nineteenth century has produced, than all else put together! It is for the purpose of impressing upon your minds the importance of this great truth—the power of total abstinence in shaping character—that I reintroduce our beloved model American Abraham Lincoln.

Hon. Leonard Swett, his eulogist on the occasion of unveiling the "bronze statue," was saved from a drunkard's grave by intimate association with and example of Mr. Lincoln.—National Hope

Deacon Styles' Conversion.

(Founded on fact.)

BY FANNIE L. FANCHER.

"Es them fanatical wimmen folks air agoin' to rule this 'ere church, the quicker I resign, the better. Fur nigh onto three years, their carryin' on he been shameful, time an' agin they've desecrated the house o' God. They go agin Scripture, an' you must know it, when they send fur them wimmen from abroad to come an' talk in that air pulpit. I talk on temperance too, a subject that I think churches ought n't meddle with. I declare for it, these wimmen air 'en a'most turnin' the world topsy turvy."

Thus spoke the aggrieved Deacon Styles, who had desired a meeting to "settle matters." Of course, no female member of the church was expected to be present.

"Well, Uncle Zebadee," said Lawyer Hilton, who enjoyed nothing better than an argument, "haven't you heard that this century was the 'woman's century'?"
