ANNUAL INSPECTION AND SPORTS OF THE DRAGOON GUARDS.

On Saturday at three o'clock sharp, General Middleton, accompanied by Capt. Wise, A.D.C., Lt.-Col. Lamontagne, D.A.G., and Lt.-Col. Lewis, B.M. of the District, arrived on Cartier Square for the purpose of inspecting the Princess Louise's Dragoon Guards. The beautiful weather, the popularity of the corps and the anticipation of the military sports that would follow, had drawn a large crowd of spectators. Lady Middleton and Lady Melgund were noticed among the ladies present; ex-Governor Dewdney, Lt.-Col. Irwin, Inspector of Artillery, and a number of officers of other city corps were also present. The Dragoons, under command of Capt. Gourdeau, were drawn up facing the centre of the square. The neat appearance of the men, their good equipment, the bits and chains flashing in the sunlight, and the fine horses of the troop, presented an appearance highly flattering to this corps. The troop were then put through different movements, including sword exercise and pursuing practice. The march past at the walk and the wheeling were particularly good, but the trot past was somewhat spoiled by the irrepressible boys crowding the flanks. The sword exercise and pursuing practice were well done, and one could not help admiring the proficiency of the men and the steadiness of the horses. Sir Frederick Middleton expressed his satisfaction to Captain Gourdeau, and desired to witness further movements on the gallop, which were performed in a manner to please him very much. It may be mentioned here that Lieuts. Keefer and Humfrey, the lately appointed officers of this corps, on this occasion made their first appearance with the troop, which may be congratulated on having secured the services of such efficient cavalry officers.—Citizen.

After the inspection the troop proceeded to carry out their programme of sports, which had been prepared by Dr. Coleman and Pay Sergeant Martin.

The hurdle jumping was exceedingly good and keenly contested. The winners were Sergt. Rogers (rough rider) and Corpl. Botterell. Troopers Taché, O'Connor and McLeod also shewed fine horsemanship.

The prizes for heads and posts and tilting at the ring were won by Sergt. Henderson and Tr. Bell.

The rag baby or dismounting race proved very exciting. It consisted in the competitors mounting, riding to the extreme end of the square, dismounting and finding a head, remounting and bringing it back. This race was ridden in four heats, the winner in each riding a final heat. The first was won by Tr. Bell after a close struggle, the second by Sergt. Rogers easily, and the third and fourth by Lieut. Humfrey and Tr. Powell with little to spare. The final heat was a good one, Rogers leading to the turning point, where he lost time in remounting and was passed by Lieut. Humfrey, who won by half a length. Bell's horse bolted in this heat.

The tug of war resulted in an easy victory for six non-coms. over the same number of troopers. A spectator suggested that it would have been better fun if the competitors had been mounted.

The quarter mile race was open to all comers, and consequently only two professionals entered. It was won easily by Duffy.

The drill competition for sections was won by Sergt. Rogers' squad, both horses and men going through the prescribed manoeuvres with perfect steadiness.
