If the information which we are in the process of collecting from the 'Greenpeace' crew, together with that which we expect to receive in due course from the French authorities should, in our opinion, justify formal espousal of his claim, which would thus be raised to the Government-to-Government level, the Canadian Government would be quite prepared to do this. I believe, however, that until we have received all the depositions from the crew and until the French authorities have had an opportunity to respond to our formal request for an investigation, this would be premature."
