

Dr. Coke consince in Europe, 89; Dr. Coke
ference, p. 92;
his labors and
ion for married ops authorized

Whatcoat, p. 185; withdrawals, locations, and expulsions, numbers, and conferences, p. 189; Bishop Asbury's travels and prayers, p. 190; Methodism in Missouri, p. 191; in Savannah, Ga., p. 192; deaths and numbers, p. 194.

CHAPTER VII.

General Conference of 1808—number of members, p. 195; the case of Dr. Coke—his letter to the General Conference, p. 196; conference dissatisfied with him, p. 199; his letter to Bishop White, p. 200; the bishop's answer, p. 204; remarks on this correspondence, p. 205; Dr. Coke's explanatory letter, p. 206; letter to Dr. Coke, p. 211; resolutions in reference to Dr. Coke, p. 214; address of the British to the American conference, p. 216; of the American to the British conference, p. 218; defence of those measures, p. 220; measures for a delegated General Conference, p. 225; memorial of the New-York conference, p. 226; concurred in by other conferences, p. 228; referred to a committee, p. 228; report, and its rejection, p. 229; a source of grief, p. 231; second report accepted, p. 231; well received, p. 233; election of William M'Kendree to the episcopal office, p. 235; sketch of his character and labors, p. 236; E. Cooper resigns his station as book steward, and J. Wilson and D. Hitt appointed, p. 238; local deacons, raising supplies, settling disputes, and adjournment of conference, p. 239; minute respecting Dr. Coke, p. 240.

CHAPTER VIII.

Extent of the annual conferences, p. 240; general satisfaction in what had been done, p. 240; Bishop Asbury relieved in his labors by his new colleague, p. 241; Bishop M'Kendree enters upon his work, p. 242; their manner of traveling, p. 243; privations and enjoyments, p. 244; extension of the work in Ohio, p. 245; singular conversion, p. 246; progress of the work in New-England, p. 248; revival in the city of New-York, p. 250; locations and deaths of preachers, p. 251; account of Captain Webb, p. 255; numbers, p. 261; Methodism in the west, p. 262; in Boston, p. 264; origin of camp-meetings, p. 265; manner in which they are held, p. 266; Account of one held on Long Island, N. Y., p. 270; another in the west, p. 276; numbers, p. 280; Genesee conference, p. 280; Methodism in Cincinnati, p. 281; in Indiana, p. 283; revival in New-York, p. 285; locations and deaths of preachers, p. 285; character of Joseph Everett, p. 286; of John Wilson, p. 288; numbers, p. 291; rumours of war, p. 291; earthquakes, p. 292; want of houses of worship, 293; of parsonages, p. 294; Bishop Asbury in Upper Canada, p. 296; in the western states, p. 298; Methodism in Pittsburg, p. 299; locations and death of preachers, p. 301; numbers, p. 303.

BOOK V.

CHAPTER I.

FIRST delegated General Conference, p. 303; names of its members, p. 305; rules, p. 307; address from Bishop M'Kendree, p. 308; referred to committees, p. 312; Bishop Asbury's desire to visit his native land, p. 313; Genesee and other conferences, p. 313; ordination of local deacons, p. 314; rule for settling disputes, p. 316; low state of literature in the M. E. C., p. 317; sad effects of this state of things, p. 320; Lee's History and