There are, however, two factors operating against a move of this kind. One is T. Herbert Lennox, who gave the Commissioner on May 29 last, and who is said to be spoiling for another battle. The other factor is Dr. Stewart, the de-feated candidate in Centre Bruce. He has ambitions. He was not consulted when Minister Harcourt arranged to saw-off his protest against Hugh Clark's last summer, and when he heard that Mr. Harcourt had made himself safe at his (Stewart's) ex-pense he registered a strong appeai. Whether it was because of this that Minister Dryden and Minister Stratton at the approaching session. It will decided to break pact, after the time have to take sides definitely with the for filing the particulars in the Monck corporations or with the people. The question is no longer Toronto's. It belongs to all the municipalities which Mr. Davis the annoyance of another capitalists there is bound to be trouble. It cannot be denied, however, that if the difficulties in the way of allowing one municipality to go into the business of producing and transmitting electrical energy were great, the difficulties of arranging a partnership between several municipalities for such a purpose are enormous. Why should not the province itself build and operate a plant for the benefit of the million people living within a sixty or seventy mile radius of Niagara to the west and north? I am not aware that anyone has yet ventured to advance such a proposition, but if sixty of sevent mine tand north? I am not aware that anyone has yet ventured to advance such a proposition, but if it is admissible for the government by commission to build and operate a railway thru a remote section of the province in the interests of industrial development, why should it not be equally practicable to provide a power plant for the development of a nearer and more populous section, in which industries are now established, vital to the prosperity of the province, and that can be crushed crnourished according as the power problem is solved ill or solved well? It is argued that the government can effectually control the rates to be charged for electric current from Niagara. But government control of rates, where a monopoly has been established, is a shadow, as abundantly proven in the case of the railways. In the long run there can be no control of rates without control of the capitalization, and in this matter there are always a thousand and one ways of evading and nullifying the requirements of the law. Here is a case where a score of municipalities, differing in size, wealth and credit, are seek-quirements of the law. Here is a case where a score of municipalities, differing in size, wealth and credit, are seeking to participate in a huge and experimental enterprise. The difficulties of inter-municipal organization for the purpose of carrying on such a work would be infinitely greater than in the case of straight provincial operation from the start. The whole Municipal Act as applied to cities and towns might have to be forn to pieces from the ground up to permit municipalities to join hands in such a scheme as the one proposed. The province, A. W. Campbell, Good Roads Commissioner, is at Niagara Falls looking over the Ontario government park in connection with the power constructies to join hands in such a scheme as the one proposed. The province, with its rights of eminent domain and its unlimited credit, could conceivably do the whole thing much better and with far less trouble. We cannot afford to place ourselves at the mercy of a private corporation which, once it is established, can keep everyone else out of the field. We also cannot afford to join a rabble of small municipalities in some airy scheme the details of which cannot be worked out beforehand. What is wanted is the surrance that there will be abundant and cheap power and that all will be and cheap power and that all will be treated alike. If this is the desideratum the suggestion of ap ower plant and trunk lines owned and operated by the province is worthy of serious central about the situation that I had merely guestabout the situation that I had merely guestabout

Women's Winter Coats, $25 to $35 Monday, Each, $5.00.

Last Monday there were many women who encountered disappointment just because they thought there would be plenty of coats to choose from, even though they didn't come till the afternoon. Like ourselves, they would be plenty of coats to choose from, even though they didn't come the alternoon. Like ourselves, they were somewhat surprised to find assortments practically nil, even at mid-day; but then there were between two and three hundred customers ready to make a choice at 8 o'clock sharp. This naturally resulted in a quickly-depleted stock. Now, the offering for next Monday is equal in importance to that of a week ago, and it is just possible the early crowd circumstance will be repeated; all of which should suggest to you the advisability of being here early, if you are at all interested.

But, to reap the benefit of this extraordinary bargain offering it is necessary that you compromise somewhat with fashion's strictest mandate. If you are an extremist, possibly the coats will not interest you; but, should you look more to quality, tailoring, character and finish, there is not the slightest doubt that you will find in the lot a garment to suit. Now, let us not be m sunderstood with respect to the style of the coats—they are fully entitled to the consideration of fashionable-dressing women, but they are not the long, loose, boxy styles of the present moment; rather are they a compromise—some are semi-fitting, others close-fitting, and mostly all short, although there are a few 26-inch and three-quarter lengths—garments that were made in London, Paris and Berlin, of beautiful fine beaver cloth, in browns, navy, fawn and black, lined with handsome plain or brocaded silks and satins, elegantly trimmed with silk braidings, jetted patterns and strappings — a few garments with Persian Lamb trimming, tailored and finished superbly, regular prices were
