HE WAS A NATIVE OF NOVA SCOTIA

Captain R. E. McKiel Who Died at Victoria Had Sailed the Pacific Over Twenty Years.

(Victoria Colonist.)

The passing of Capt. R. E. McKiel yesterday morning removes one of the best known of the former sealing captains of Victoria. Capt. McKiel, who had been lying ill for some months at his residence at 709 Craigflower road, followed the sealing business from the time he brought the sealing schooner, Mary Taylor from the Atlantic coast to join the Bering Sea fleet in 1888, until he was recently appointed pilot for the newformed Claycoot company. It was expected that the operation of the mills at Mosquito harbor would result in bringing many ships to Claycoot Sound, but during the year the late Capt. McKiel had but one steamer, the Earl of Douglas, which took lumber from Claycoot.

When he came from Mainland, Nova Scotia, in 1888, to throw in his lot with Captain J. G. Cox, Captain W. Cox and others who came here from Mainland, Captain McKiel took the schooner Mary Taylor, north. The first year he went to Bering Sea the U. S. revenue cutters began making seizures and he had some trying experiences while dodging the revenue cutters. He sailed the Mary Taylor on the B. coast in the spring of 1888, and was afterward engaged on the Western Slope. He was then sent to Japan from where he brought the schooner McKiel, afterward sold to the Anglo-American expedition of Capt. Mikkelson and renamed Duchess of Bedford, and while in Japan he met and associated with Captain Payne, Captain Johnny Keran and others, hearing from them the story they went so fond of telling of the raid on Robben bank, the incident upon which Rudyard Kipling based his poem "The Rhymers of the Three Sealers." In 1890 Captain McKiel took the E. B. Marvin and after a cruise in Bering Sea that vessel, went to Halifax to bring out the schooner Maud S., in which he was engaged in Bering Sea and off Copper Islands until 1893.

A claim against the Russian government is still pending on account of the deceased sealing captain for the ordering of his vessel, the Maud S., from the Copper Island, sealing grounds to Yokohama under seizure. The schooner was delivered to the British consul at Yokohama and on being tried before him was found not guilty of infringing any regulations and was released. Like some other Canadian vessels, the Russian government this is not being pressed by the government.

In 1895 the schooner Maud S., was wrecked off the north end of Queen Charlotte islands and Captain McKiel and his crew except one over the bowsprit to safety. Returning to Victoria he took charge of the schooner Annie E. Pait, and later the De Seward, leaving the latter to enter upon his duties as a pilot for the west coast of Vancouver island.

He was born at Seabrook, Nova Scotia, in 1857, and followed the sea since boyhood. A wife and four children survive. A brother, Andrew McKiel, and two sisters, Mrs. White and Mrs. Pratt, all of Boston, Mass., also survive.
