Bailey, controls more circus property than the "great showman" ever did. The New York Press in giving the circus routes for the season tells the story in this tashion:

There was a ten years' contract between Barnum & Bailey and Adam Forepaugh for the division of territory over which their respective shows were to be routed. Then Mr. Bailey bought an interest in the Adam Forepaugh show, Mr. Barnum died, leaving in his will specific instructions that his investment in circus property was not to be disturbed owing to the contract which had been entered into with Mr. Forepaugh. Mr Bailey bought a half interest in the Forepaugh show, and without creating any trust whatever Mr. Bailey has now the absolute management of circus business in the United States. He controls the Barnum & Bailey show and also the contract with Adam Forepaugh. He has now, purchased the other half interest held by the widow and has brought it all into the family. As one of the old employes put it, "Mr. McCadden came down town in the morning as treasurer and general manager, and went home at night the owner of half the Forepaugh show." The results is that Bailey controls more circus property than Barnum ever did. He is the absolute director of the two shows. They will start out as usual, the Barnum show opening in New York and

On reading the announcement in Tuesday's paper that the promoters of the Nordica concert were obliged to give up all idea of hodding it, owing to the fact that only 400 seats had been booked, I skt inclined to sak with Bret Harte, it's our civilization a failure?" It really seems incredible that, in a city of the size and importance of St. John, there should be so few real levers of music willing to pay one dollar for a good professional concert, a luxury which we seldom eajoy. The various accellences of Mdme Nordica and her company are as well known, that it would be superfluous to calarge on them here. I would merely say that wherever she has sung, on either side of the Atlantic, she has always been received with the tumose enhusiasm and pleasure. I think, per haps the promoters might have done more to make the tumose enhusiasm and pleasure. I think, per haps the promoters might have done more to make the tumose enhusiasm and pleasure. one cent for the advertisements, and not as much as five dollars for subscriptons, most of which I returned. Thus ended my first attempt at journalism.

In an article on the newspapers of Fredericton editor Butler concludes with a reference to the Journal, which shows to what heights one may climb from small and discouraging beginnings. The present condition of the Journal is summed up as follows:

"Last but not least comes Butler's Journal, which has no need to hide its editorship or its light under a busbel, and at least says what it means, and means what it says, regardless of consequences. It is half through its second year and has doubled both its size and circulation, which shows that there enough who admire honest, independent, manly opinions to make it regardless of the little, narrow-minded critics who would weigh it in their own scales, to which it is in comparison as an electric light to a tallow candle."

A Messenger and Delivery Service.

So St. John is to have a messenger service deliver a stream of the properties of the stream of the properties of the little, narrow-minded critics who would weigh it in their own scales, to which it is in comparison as an electric light to a tallow candle."

A Messenger and Delivery Service.

So St. John is to have a messenger service. kisses of the stage are real, and columns have been written about them. The following story now going the rounds of the press settles the "real tears" matter, so far as Adelaide Neilson is concerned:

"There never was an actress who could command her lachrymal glands as Adelaide Meilson could," says Jack Barnes, of Joe Jefferson's company. "I was her leading man at one time," continued Jack, "and I learned her peculiar faculty in this way to my cost. At that time I rather fancied myself, don't you know, in such parts as Romeo and the like, and I went to generate the such was the such as the such as
